Ostrer States International Pictures Near

Sees Foreign Pictures With U. S. Appeal

BY MARK OSTRER
Chairman of Board, G.B. Picture Corp., Ltd.

It is my prediction that the complete internationalization of motion pictures will be accomplished in 1936.

Just as we in England are making pictures for world-wide appeal, so is Hollywood turning out product with a definite universal stamp and this wise policy will continue to predominate.

A greater interchange of artistic and technical talent will be effected and there will be a notable increase in the number of foreign-produced films released in the U. S. A.

From abroad will come productions of high box-office value, devoid of any drawbacks for American consumption. Picture-making in England will hit its stride. Our company, for one, will produce films especially suitable for America; pictures that any exhibitor anywhere will welcome.

I believe that 1936 will be a banner year for every branch of the industry.

Judge Bondy Signs RKO-RCA-M.H.Pact

Federal Judge William Bondy on Tuesday signed the petition extending to Feb. 29 the agreement under which RKO and RCA participate in profits of the Music Hall and the petition extending to Aug. 31 an agreement under which RKO Service Corp. performs certain managerial services for the Radio City house. The agreements were scheduled to expire Dec. 31.

Under the first agreement, which was originally made Sept. 1, 1934, and is now extended for two months to complete an 18-month computation basis, RKO and RCA jointly are to receive $750 per week from the initial operating profits of the Music Hall available on Feb. 29. An initial rent

The Headline Parade of 1935

Nineteen thirty-five was an interesting and important year in the industry. Kaleidoscopic in its changes, as always, the story, in quick resume, is re-told this morning, culled from the day-by-day headlines of Motion Picture Daily on pages 9, 10 and 11.

Pointing the way to days immediately on the horizon, the industry last year began to smile once more, for business generally took a decided turn for the better. Grosses at large reflected an improvement, measured, of course, by the calibre of the product.

The year marked the demise of the NRA code and saw no substitute arrive by which the industry might regulate itself. The year also witnessed the anti-trust trial in St. Louis and complete victory for Warners, Paramount, RKO and a number of its high executives.

Many changes in personnel of the major companies also took place. Among them, John E. Otterson became president of Paramount, Leo Spitz, president of RKO. Al Lichtman resigned as president of United Artists to join M-G-M. Twentieth Century merged with Fox and Winfield Sheehan retired from the production helm to make way for Darryl F. Zanuck.

Allied Looks Askance Upon Warner Move

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Allied views Warners' withdrawal from Ascap "with suspicion," says the latest bulletin from Abram F. Myers' office.

"The withdrawal was not from motives of philanthropy," the bulletin reads. "The chortles which greeted the so-called breakup of Ascap may have been premature. For even if Ascap should reduce its charges by an amount proportionate to the depletion of its repertoire, due to the withdrawal of Warner affiliates, the exhibitors would still stand to lose in case those affiliates demand an increased royalty for the right publicly to perform their music.

"The music situation is complicated, but this does not justify the muddy thinking that is being indulged in re-

Warners Say 143 Stations Signed

Up to Tuesday 143 independent radio stations throughout the country had accepted the new music licensing contract offered by Warners and covering the first three months of the New Year, it was stated by Warners.

The independent stations accepting the revised contract will be licensed by Music Publishers' Holding Corp., a Warner subsidiary, to broadcast music published by Harms, Inc., M. Witmark & Sons, T. B. Harms Co., Remick Music Corp., and their subsidiaries, all owned by Warners.

Film issues of major companies gained $162,862,375 in market value in 1935 to a total of $565,835,500, as compared with $402,973,125 at the close of 1934.

The gradual return to more prosperous times and the added strength accorded the financial structures of principal companies through reorganizations apparently reflected new confidence in film securities on the part of the investing public.

Eastman Kodak showed the most substantial increase, that issue jumping from $281,250,000 at the end of '34 to $388,750,000 at the end of '35, or a gain of $107,500,000. Next in

James V. Bryson Dies in London

LONDON, Jan. 1.—James V. Bryson died here yesterday at University College Hospital of a fractured skull suffered in an accident on Christmas Day. Bryson was dealing in European films, and had attempted studio deals here since his unsuccessful suit against Universal for alleged wrongful dismissal in 1933. He was 52.

Bryson first joined Laemmle in Minneapolis, playing an important part in developing Universal's American distribution system. Some years ago he was transferred to London, as managing director of Universal Pictures, Ltd. Following his dismissal from the company, he brought the action, which failed.

ExchangesAdd Sales Tax to Rentals Here

Called Protective Move Pending Settlement

Local exchanges are beginning the collection of the two per cent city sales tax on film rentals, effective as of yesterday. Exhibitors in New Jersey and up-state New York, as well as those within the city limits, received notice early in the week that the tax would be added to their film rentals.

Spokesmen for the exchanges said that the action was being taken as a "protective" measure and that the funds collected from exhibitors for the tax would be segregated and refunded in the event the distributors were successful in their efforts to have the tax on film rentals declared illegal. The exchangemen pointed out that the city sales tax has been in effect since Dec., 1934, and that ef-

Merging Denied in Suit Against 306

Justice Bernard Shientag on Tuesday denied the application of eight I. T. O. A. members for leave to consolidate their actions seeking a total of $650,000 damages from Local 306 for business losses allegedly suffered as a result of the extensive picketing and other activities in the operators' union controversy of last spring and summer. The court ruled, however, that the plaintiffs could bring a consolidated action by first

Tubman Goes to New RKO Post in Canada

TORONTO, Jan. 1.—An important development in the supervision of RKO theatres in the Dominion has taken place in the appointment of T. Ray Tubman of Ottawa as district manager for Manitoba with headquarters at Winnipeg, effective Jan. 15.

Tubman, who has managed the RKO Capitol at Ottawa for the past seven years, will have charge of theatres at Winnipeg, Brandon, Fort William and Port Arthur. He made his start 16 years ago at Calgary, where he was manager of the Allen, and later went to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and finally to Ottawa where he has been prominent in community activities.

Reels Restricted, Ban Rose Bowl Game

Virtually all newsreels made no provision to cover the Rose Bowl football game on the coast yesterday, following the action of the Board of Athletic Control of Stanford and the Tournament of Roses Ass'n in limiting the reels to 100 feet of film on the game. This is the first time such restriction has been exercised. It was indicated Tuesday that Universal, Pathe, Paramount and Hearst Metrotone had agreed on non-coverage. The reels concentrated instead on the Sugar Bowl game in New Orleans and the Orange Bowl game in Miami.

garding it. The breaking up of Ascap without an efficient substitute can not be a good thing and has never been advocated by Allied. So long as the copyright law allows a separate and distinct royalty for the public performance of music, there must be a central agency through which exhibitors, broadcasters, etc., can be licensed. Ascap served the purpose admirably in every respect save one—it was too grasping. The prospect of obtaining separate licenses from and paying separate fees to a large number of copyright owners is appalling. Unless prompt action is taken by those in a position to act, chaos will soon prevail.

"A fair solution would be for the producers with the cooperation of Warner Brothers to take advantage of the weakened condition of Ascap and work out an arrangement whereby the public performing rights for music used in motion pictures will be bargained for and obtained at the same time as the recording rights and royalties, so far as the exhibitors are concerned, be included in the film rentals. The producers acting together in this fashion, could bring about a great reformation which would end, once and for all, the music racket. As a small, compact group they could be relied upon to bargain for fair rates in behalf of the entire industry.

"In the meantime, the Warner publishing houses have indicated that they will demand a charge for the performance of their music. The broadcasters have countered by ordering the music of those houses deleted from their programs. The exhibitors, having to play the pictures delivered under their contracts, can exercise no such discrimination.

Bill Amendment Necessary

"It is obvious that the Duffy Bill, which looked pretty good a year ago, will not accomplish much in the present situation. Merely repealing the penalty clause will not do the trick, although it will mitigate the danger. To be really effective the bill will have to be amended to include the 'Allied amendments' above referred to. As soon as the Patents Committee is organized for the session Allied will reconnoiter and ascertain the chances of accomplishing this.

"No other plan can be formulated until the fog has been dispelled and the effects of the powerful opposition of the broadcasting companies have become apparent. Allied is watching all developments carefully and will have a plan of action as soon as we know exactly what we will have to contend with."

Directors to Meet Feb. 4-5

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—The annual meeting of Allied directors will be held here Feb. 4 and 5, so that members of the board who wish to attend the session of eastern directors and the product committee can do so without facing conflicting dates.

The eastern meeting will be held in Baltimore Feb. 3, and the product committee will meet here Feb. 6.

Congress will have been in session a month when the meetings are held and the Pettengill-Neely bill and the Duffy bill will be discussed along with plans for other legislative moves.

Cantor Rolls In

Eddie Cantor will roll into Grand Central this morning in a private car with Parkyakarkus, some of his daughters (Cantor's, not Parkyakarkus's), and 14 of those fellows who work out radio programs.

In Chicago Cantor said the internal pressure in the car made the train coast all the way across Arizona.

When he gets calmed down he'll announce "Pony Boy," a story by Harry Selby, will be his next for Samuel Goldwyn after "Strike Me Pink."

withdrawing their present suits and instituting the new one.

Plaintiffs in the action, as reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY of Dec. 14 are the Globe, Central, Times Square, Liberty and Park, in Manhattan; Colony, in Queens, and Globe, Brooklyn.

Joseph Basson, president of Local 306, who is named as a defendant in the suits, described them as "a clean-cut admission of the powerful effect and great success of the peaceful picketing conducted by Local 306. They are also clear evidence that the general public enthusiastically supported the local in its fight against the 'bosses.' The union regards these suits as nuisance suits and attempts to hinder the local," Basson said.

line on the plus side was Loew's, Inc., common, with a gain for 1935 over 1934 of $23,625,000. Third was Warner common, which gained $18,625,000. That company's preferred showed an increased market valuation of $3,064,250.

Number of shares traded in on the Stock Exchange for the year was 9,169,000, comparing with 10,881,440 in 1934. In 1933 the total was 8,573,864; in 1932 sales bulked 9,367,262. In 1931 the tally ended at 28,462,000, in what was largely a selling market which followed in the wake of the depression of two years earlier.

On the Curb Exchange 1935 sales were 919,960 shares, a very sizable increase over the total for 1934, which was 230,100. As a matter of fact, trading activity on this exchange was the most active since 1931, when the turnover was 1,958,625 shares. Nineteen thirty-three ended with curb sales of 495,850. In 1932 they were 367,905.

The bond market last year, too, was far more active than 1934's. Sales to a value of $65,126,000 were made, comparing with $43,704,000 in 1934, with $11,172,000 in 1933, with $17,708,000 in 1932 and with $1,165,000 in 1931.

participation of $1,050,000 then is payable to Rockefeller Center, after which a second joint payment of $36,000 per year is made to RKO and RCA to be applied to retirement of RCA's advances of working capital for the Music Hall during 1933 when it was still being operated by RKO. Thereafter, Rockefeller Center is entitled to an additional $150,000 as rent and if funds then remain over operating costs a first $300,000 is divided on the basis of 60 per cent to Rockefeller Center and 40 per cent to RKO and RCA, and a second $300,000 would be divided 50 per cent to Rockefeller Center and 50 per cent to RKO and RCA.

The terms of the extension are 50 per cent more than those of the original agreement which was made for one year. No split-up of Music Hall receipts was made at the end of the first year of the agreement despite the fact that earnings were more than sufficient to pay Rockefeller Center its initial $700,000 rent participation. Without a split-up and with the extension of the agreement for a total of an additional six months, all participation terms were automatically increased by one-half.

No split-up can be made now until Feb. 29 at the earliest. Indications are that none will be made until a settlement of Rockefeller Center's $8,207,000 claim against RKO has been agreed upon, at which time RKO's accrued participation in the Music Hall earnings would probably be applied as a discount against the claim. In the event RKO made new leases on the Music Hall and Center the claim could also be reduced by approximately $6,000,000.

Under the second agreement RKO Service Corp. received approximately $1,500 per month for its management services for the Music Hall. The fee is based on a percentage of the average weekly gross receipts of the house.

Sales Tax Added To Rentals Here

forts are being made by the city to assess the exchanges on the full amount of their film rental receipts from that date forward. As a result, it was said, the eight major exchanges here are incurring a possible liability to the city of approximately $16,000 a week.

New Jersey exhibitors and others outside the city limits are preparing an independent protest against the assessment based on the grounds that they are obliged to receive their film from the New York exchanges because it is the only film service center in their territory. They will claim that this circumstance, entirely outside their control, should not make them liable for a purely local tax levied by the city of New York.

The eight major exchanges here are continuing their fight against the application of the city sales tax to film rentals by uniting in opposition to the assessment already levied by the city against the United Artists' exchange revenue. This assessment, the only one made so far by the city, is being made a test case. Arguments against the application of the tax to film revenue have already been made by the exchanges before representatives of the city finance department, and a new hearing, based on additional arguments, has been set for Jan. 10. If the city continues to hold film rentals to be subject to the tax following this hearing appeals will be taken to the state courts.

Meanwhile, all exhibitors serviced out of New York exchanges will have the two per cent tax added to their film bills from Jan. 1 on.

Films Target Of Many Bills In Washington

...ntrol Drives Impend At New Session

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—New control rives against the industry will feature ıe session of Congress opening riday.

Invalidation of the recovery code is xpected to be seized upon by pro-onents of film legislation as the basis or new demands for anti-block-ooking legislation and the creation f a Federal motion picture commis-ion. Concentration of holdings of atents important to the industry in ıe hands of a few strong organiza-ons will be the foundation for legis-ation designed to make the use of atents available to all on a royalty asis, without discrimination.

New copyright legislation is antici-ated as a result of the split in ıscap, and it is believed the bill assed last session by the Senate and ow pending before the House of tepresentatives will be enacted.

A survey of Senate and House alendars shows that a number of pic-ure bills are pending, some with trong backing. Little was done with espect to film legislation at the last ession because of the pressure of ther business. During the term about o open, however, it is expected little egislation will be demanded by the

Not So, Says Spitz

Hollywood, Jan. 2.—Leo Spitz, president of RKO, stated today there was "not a chance" of B. P. Schulberg and Emanuel Cohen joining the company as unit producers, as reported reliably in New York.

He also hit at published reports Pandro S. Berman would leave. Spitz declared the latter remains with Radio in his current status as an associate producer.

Jersey Allied To Protest on Sale Tax Levy

Protests against the collection of the two per cent city sales tax on film rentals from exhibitors will be made at a meeting of Allied of New Jersey on Tuesday at the Lincoln Hotel, where the subject is scheduled for discussion, Lee Newberry, president of the Allied unit, said yesterday.

Indications are that the organization will formulate its policy of opposition to payment of the tax at the time of the meeting. The sentiment of exhibitors whose theatres are located outside the New York city limits is that the levying of a city sales tax is unfair to them because they cannot obtain their film supply any place but at the New York exchanges, although

HOLIDAY GROSSES UP, CIRCUITS SAY

Wisconsin's Gains Start New Theatres

This is the first of a series of surveys on the outlook in the field for 1936. Others will follow in succeeding issues.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 2.—Reports of improved business here and throughout Wisconsin during the past year are reflected in a revival in theatre construction with at least eight new houses completed or started for opening early in 1936. In addition, there was hundreds of thousands of dollars spent in remodeling and renovation of older theatres.

Milwaukee saw the opening in 1935 of the Times and Sherman, new neighborhood houses, while new state theatres included those in Dodgeville, Newald, Omro, Ripon, with houses still under construction in Beloit and Cedarburg.

General opinion among exhibitors is that if payroll and job indices continue to climb as they have during 1935, the next 12 months will show continued improvement.

In Milwaukee, employment for 1935 was at the highest point since early in 1930. The local employment index for November, latest month for which statistics have been compiled, stood at 96.2, according to the Wisconsin Industrial Commission, or only 3.8 points below the 1925-27 average which is used as a base.

The payroll index in Milwaukee stood at 84.8 for November, the best

Bernstein Cuts His Loew Stock Holdings

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Reduction of the holdings of Loew's, Inc., common stock by David Bernstein, to 1,890 shares during November through the making of a gift of 10,000 shares is shown in the semi-monthly report of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The report also shows that J. Robert Rubin, also a director, disposed of 1,000 shares of Loew's common during the month and acquired 1,500 shares, making a new increase in his holdings of 500 shares. At the end of the month he held 2,500 shares. Rubin

Loew's Gains 28% Over Last Year; Others' Increases Vary

National circuit operators smilingly reported Christmas-New Year's week business and grosses rolled up on the final day of the year were substantially ahead of the comparable week and day in 1934, thereby lending further strength to the widespread acknowledgment that conditions had improved and theatre receipts with them.

The Loew theatres out of New York, according to Joe Vogel, reflected a 28 per cent increase for the week as compared with last year. In virtually all situations out of New York, the attraction was "A Tale of Two Cities"; last year it was "Forsaking All Others." The new Harlow film, "Riffraff," opened the day before New Year's in 36 towns to "terrific" business, the circuit executive added. In the 70-odd units of the circuit in Greater New York and environs, New Year's Eve grosses ran to extremely heavy figures.

The week ran considerably ahead of last year's in the Paramount houses computed at large throughout the nation, it was reported in that direction early last evening. The South was hurt somewhat by a heavy storm fendants which was to have been begun several days ago has been postponed to Feb. 4.

Skouras-Fox Action Is Again Postponed

In its action, which was brought in state supreme court here, Skouras alleged that the terms of its franchise with Fox had been breached when latter closed a deal with the RKO 81st St. which permitted the house to play Twentieth Century-Fox product day and date with three Skouras houses in the same neighborhood. The complaint alleged that the operators of the 81st St. were aware that the terms of the franchise held by Skouras gave the company's houses one week's protection in the neighborhood when they induced Fox to make the deal with the 81st St.

Efforts to settle the litigation out of court were begun some time ago and are still under way. Meanwhile, an injunction obtained by Skouras is in force.

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—The charter of the Boston Friars' Club, a social and charity group formed Dec. 11, 1934, by local film men, has been declared void by Frederic W. Cook, Secretary of the Commonwealth.

The reasons for Cook's action included a notice from the Police Commissioner "that a person has been convicted of illegal gambling on the premises." The club changed its quarters from the Touraine to the Statler without obtaining written permission from the Police Commissioner, according to Cook.

since May, 1930, when it was 90.7. Average weekly earnings of factory workers in Milwaukee in November came to $23.57, best for that month since 1930, when the average earnings amounted to $23.87. In November, 1929, the figure was $28.40.

On a yearly basis the employment index for Milwaukee for the first 11 months of 1935 was 92.3, against 80.6 for all of 1934, 67.4 for 1933 and 59.0 for 1932. Pay rolls for 11 months of 1935 stood at 77.6, compared with 59.8 for the entire year 1934, 43.0 for 1933 and 37.0 for 1932. The weekly earnings average in 1935 was $22.60, against $20.03 in 1934, $17.30 in 1933 and $16.97 in 1932.

For Wisconsin at large the index for November was 88.2, a slight decline from the 89.1 the month before and from the year's peak of 92.3 in July, but the best November since 1929, when the index was 98.6, and far above the depression low of 57.3 reached in January, 1933.

Average per capita weekly earnings in the entire state in November totaled $21.68, against $21.79 the month before and $22.01 two months previous.

Retail sales in the Milwaukee retail area during 1935 were the largest since 1931. This increase in buying is reflected also by expansion in number of credit reports furnished retail stores during the last year. The credit bureau of the Milwaukee Ass'n of Commerce furnished 114,141 reports in 1935, compared with 104,596 reports for 1934, a gain of 9,545, or nine per cent.

Bank clearings, considered a good barometer of business conditions, reached the highest level in four years in Milwaukee during 1935. The year's total, according to Milwaukee Clearing House figures, with the last seven business days of December estimated, was $831,965,002.

While, because of the diversified nature of Milwaukee's industry, recovery for the city has not been uniform, there is practically no line that has not extended to some extent the gains of 1934.

Harrisburg on Upgrade

HARRISBURG, Jan. 2.—Business is definitely on the upgrade here in the opinion of the city's two leading theatre men, C. Floyd Hopkins, Harrisburg representative for Wilmer & Vincent's three houses, the Colonial, State and Victory, and Sam Gilman, Loew's Regent manager.

"Since conditions are improving in other lines I am certain they will improve in our lines as well," says Hopkins. "Money is much freer now, which means it is going to be spent for amusements as well as other things. Another important reason why I anticipate better business is the fact that superior pictures are being released."

Gilman is even more optimistic. He predicts business will be the best since 1929.

"People are spending more money," he states. "They spent so freely over Christmas that I am convinced they are going to have enough for entertainment. Department and other store sales were much greater than they were a year ago. And pictures are coming this season that are better than any ever produced before."

Baltimore Off to a Roaring Start; Talk of Bonanza Year

Baltimore, Jan. 2.—The New Year got away to such a walloping business in the downtown houses that managers can't restrain their enthusiasm. They're talking about a bonanza year.

After two and a half big weeks with "The Littlest Rebel" at the New, Morris A. Mechanic switched to "King of Burlesque" for the midnight show and packed 'em in. The grosses were so much better than the closing weeks of 1934 that he says better times are already here.

J. Lawrence Schanberger at Keith's didn't wind up his New Year show until seven o'clock in the morning. He says that it was like the good old days.

which normally runs approximately 25 per cent, are seen as opening the way to an increase in the number of American players willing to accept contracts with English companies.

Marchetti plans to negotiate a number of distribution deals here for English product, representing a group of English producers. He will also arrange for the interchange of talent, and has opened an office in London. He foresees an extremely good year in England, with gains in attendance and production activity. He has placed under contract Diana Ward, young singing and dancing actress playing in the London stage production of "Anything Goes," and Lady Queensbury, an artist, whom he hopes to place with a coast studio. He is representing Herbert Wilcox Prod., B. & D., B. I. P., British Lion, C. M. Woolf of General Film, Percy Raphael of Helgal Films, Max Schanck of Capitol, Garrett and Klement, Julius Hagen and Monty Banks.

Marchetti plans to leave for the coast on Saturday.

also reported that his holding company at the end of November held 350 shares of $6.50 cumulative preferred stock.

A report for June was filed with the commission by Jack Cohn, showing the acquisition of seven shares of common stock in Columbia, bringing his holdings to 321 shares; the acquisition of 611 shares of common through voting trust certificates and the disposition by gift of 600 shares, a new increase of 11 shares, bringing his holdings to 25,089 shares. Cohn's report also showed that he held 55 shares of convertible preferred stock.

Assuming that the 69 in the "doubtful" list become licensed, a total of 216 independent stations, of the 563 in this country, would be in the Warner fold at the outset of its independent licensing policy. This number may be increased in advance of the legal deadline, Warners having given eastern stations until Jan. 5 and western stations until Jan. 10 to accept the company's revised music licensing agreement.

Revelation May Try Making Films Here

Revelation Films, Ltd., of London, producer of industrial pictures for the British market, may produce advertising reels in this country, according to Stanley Neal, head of the company, who described his current visit here as being in that connection.

Neal said that Revelation would offer 27 industrial films next season. Six of these will be cartoons made here by Celebrity Prod. He said that the advertising reel was an accepted business factor in exhibition abroad and that royalties paid to exhibitors by his company last year approximated $750,000.

Holiday Takes Show a Jump, Circuits Say

which cut into theatre business in Atlanta and other cities and towns in the southeast, but not alarmingly. New Orleans was deluged with a four-inch rainfall which doused grosses at the same time.

RKO, according to Nathaniel Jerome Blumberg, general operator of that circuit, did well during the holiday week with grosses running in advance of the same period in 1934. The pre-Christmas week, however, was not as substantial as the preceding year.

The Warner circuit reported an identical experience. While refusing to comment on the percentage of increase, it was pointed out that, on a national basis, the circuit was comfortably ahead of last year during the holiday week.

The U. S. Department of Commerce estimates that the film industry will spend $110,000,000 for advertising throughout the world during 1936, most of it in newspapers and magazines. Approximately $77,000,000 of the total will be spent in this country, the department estimates, $60,500,000 of which will be for newspaper and magazine space, $8,250,000 on billboards and the remainder on incidental media.

Paramount opened its new advertising campaign yesterday with large display space in daily newspapers. The campaign involves the expenditure of $500,000 for newspaper advertising during the first three months of the year.

Art Directors Ask Award Rule Change

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2.—A committee representing the art directors' section of the Academy has submitted to the awards committee revisions in the rules for nominations up for the annual art award.

Under the new setup, the committee recommended that each ballot must contain at least one nomination of a picture for which another art director is responsible. All ballots not containing this nomination shall be disqualified. Whether or not the art director submits one of his own pictures for consideration is optional.

It was also recommended that, in cases of joint credit in which more than one art director submits the same picture, these nominations shall be combined and counted as one vote.

their own places of business are not located within the city. They contend that it would be injurious to their business to attempt to pass on to their patrons in New Jersey and up-state New York a tax designed solely for local relief within New York City.

The city finance department ruled several weeks ago that the tax would apply to all revenues of the New York exchanges, regardless of whether they originated with theatres located outside the city limits. Early this week the exchanges notified all exhibitor accounts that the two per cent sales tax would be added to film rentals beginning Jan. 1. The exchanges pointed out that if the city was successful in its efforts to prove the tax was applicable to film rentals, although distributors are contending that it is not, they would be liable for a tax of almost $900,000 for the 13 months the sales tax has been in effect. The exchanges asserted that in adding the tax to the film rentals now they were doing so as a protective measure and the money collected would be returned to exhibitors if their efforts to prove that the tax could not be applied to film rentals were successful.

The next hearing on the distributors' protests against the tax is scheduled for Jan. 10. It is believed that exhibitors with theatres outside the city will now organize their own opposition to the levy.

K. C. Studies Shift In Xmas Week Trend

iness the week preceding Christmas was better for all Kansas City theatres—and is reported so for theatres in the territory—than the week immediately following, which in former years furnished the best takes of any week in the year.

Observers assign several reasons for the trend. For one thing, people are shopping a little earlier each year. This was particularly noticeable in Kansas City this year. People go downtown the last week before the holiday now, apparently, only to pick up a few last minute things, and have time to go to a show.

During Christmas week itself, people apparently are doing more visiting, attending private parties, etc. Repeal may have had something to do with this.

At any rate, box-office records, it is reported, bear testimony to a decreasing Christmas business, and a slightly better pre-Christmas-week business.

M-G-M Signs Fodor

Hollywood, Jan. 2.—M-G-M has signed Ladislaus Fodor for four originals. The playwright, who lives in Budapest, will do the writing job at home. He wrote "The Church Mouse," "I Loved An Actress" and "The Kiss Before the Mirror" among other plays.

Looking 'Em Over

"Sylvia Scarlett"

(Radio)

These are the ingredients: Katharine Hepburn as star; Brian Aherne, Cary Grant and Edmund Gwenn in the support; Pandro S. Berman, the white-haired boy among Radio's producing forces, and George Cukor, the man who directed "David Copperfield." There is also to consider a story in which this array of talent would find something to do. Yet, assuming the story was not the strongest or the best knit, the chances are the results, drawn from histrionics and from direction, would be pretty good. "Sylvia Scarlett," however, is hardly that. It is a diffused and rambling assortment of scenes which have some bearing on each other, but not much.

Probably it was because the producer saw in "Early Life and Adventures of Sylvia Scarlett," by Compton MacKenzie, an opportunity for Miss Hepburn to play a boy most of the way that decision was reached to produce the novel. The story tells of her devotion to her father, Edmund Gwenn, a worthless, absconding Englishman who is forced to flee France and the star's decision to travel with him as a boy in the belief the pair will attract less attention. They join Cary Grant, a cheap crook, and embark on a career of petty larceny until Miss Hepburn hits on the idea of organizing a theatrical company on a tour of the English countryside. There is nothing, meanwhile, to indicate any of the three had had experience or the talent to so perform.

Gwenn meets Dennie Moore, a servant girl, and marries her. Cross-conflict develops as he thinks his young wife unfaithful and results in Gwenn's suicide. In the meantime Miss Hepburn runs across Brian Aherne, a sterling actor singularly uninspired here, and falls in love. The love counterpoint is provided by Natalie Paley, who eventually runs off with Grant, leaving the road clear for the clinch between Miss Hepburn and Aherne.

The dialogue stresses the British accent. The comedy, including chases up and down stairs and drunk scenes, are in the same mood and amazingly unfunny. There are sequences, separated by long stretches of celluloid, which are charming and sincere. They, however, happen along too infrequently to relieve the general dullness of the production as it now stands.

Production Code Seal No. 1,697. Running time, 96 minutes. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Leavenworth Case"

(Republic)

Hollywood, Jan. 2.—A murder mystery, interpolated by comedy characterizations, and not anything resembling a prison story is the theme of this feature. Differently contrived so that the mystery motive is made evident in the first sequence, the yarn's dramatic suspense and romantic contrast are held together by menace of what the murderer may do next and how the smart detective and his comedy partner will trap him in the act.

Erin O'Brien-Moore, wife of Financial Tycoon Frank Sheridan, conspires with Doctor Donald Cook to kill her husband before he can change his will and cut her off with a meager inheritance. Cook has trained a monkey so that when he whistles "Old Black Joe" the monkey climbs up on a fixture and turns on the gas. Sheridan is killed in this manner and his death is made to appear accidental or suicidal.

Detective Norman Foster and his dumb, funny partner, Warren Hymer, assigned to investigate the case, sense something more vicious than suicide. Much of the ensuing action, following the everyone-a-suspect line, builds to where Miss O'Brien-Moore and Cook want to get rid of Aunt Maude Eburne, who, with Hymer, has carried the show's comedy content. She, suspicious of Cook and Miss O'Brien-Moore, confides her fears to Foster. A trap is set and Cook falls into it. On a promise of justice being done, Foster wins Jean Rouveral.

Of average entertainment value and providing little that is new, the picture is benefited by good names. Featured players, Cook, Rouveral, Foster, O'Brien-Moore, Sheridan, Eburne and Hymer turn in acceptable performances. Based on the novel by Anna Katherine Green, the screen play is by Albert Demond and Sidney Sutherland, directed by Lewis D. Collins.

Administration and members of Congress will have time free for the consideration of other matters—particularly of types which may be valuable aids in the coming campaign.

Control measures designed to carry on in a modified way the work of the defunct NRA are pending in Congress and are expected to be urged by President Roosevelt in one of the several messages which he will write during the session. These bills provide for the adoption of the 30-hour week by all industry and the acquisition of Federal licenses by all corporations engaged in interstate business. Concerns engaged solely in intrastate business will not be affected by this legislation, but a movement is on foot to compel them to comply with the 30-hour week measure and with any labor provisions which may be incorporated in the licensing bill by denying the use of the mails to those who do not conform.

Strong pressure will be brought to bear during the next few months for the consideration of one of the several bills pending which would prohibit block and blind booking and discrimination in favor of distributor-owned houses. An energetic effort also will be made to secure action on bills providing for the creation of a Federal motion picture commission which would, in effect, enjoy all the privileges of censorship despite the soft-pedaling which has been applied to that phase.

No New Taxes Loom

Little is to be expected in the way of tax legislation. The Administration is anxious to keep taxes out of the picture until after the presidential campaign. If re-elected, President Roosevelt is expected to slap a heavy tax bill on in the 1937 session.

Of the considerable number of picture bills pending, few other than those which have been referred to are expected to secure any consideration. Representative Sirovich of New York, too well known to the industry to need introduction, has a few bills which he will talk about, but aside from patent legislation, they will not be considered seriously. He is sponsoring, among his many other activities, an investigation of the "silent and sonant" picture industry and the establishment of a Department of Science, Art and Literature as part of the Federal establishment.

Bills pending in Congress affecting the industry are as follows:

H.R. 142, Representative Celler of New York: To prohibit block booking and discrimination in distribution.

H.R. 143, Representative Celler: To repeal the fight film ban.

H.J.Res. 220, Representative Sirovich of New York: To establish a Department of Science, Art and Literature.

H.Res. 339, Representative Sirovich: To investigate "business irregularities and illegal actions" in the motion and sound picture industry.

S. 2224, Senator Duffy of Wisconsin: To make it unlawful for jurors who have served in criminal trials to give public performances for profit involving the giving of information as to what transpired at such trial.

S. 2285, by Senator Barbour of New Jersey: To remove the ban on fight films.

H.R. 2999, by Representative Culkin of New York: To create a Federal Motion Picture Commission, to protect the industry against unfair trade practices and monopoly, to provide just settlement of complaints of unfair dealings, and to provide for the production of wholesome pictures.

S. 3012, Senator Neely of West Virginia: To prohibit block and blind booking.

H.R. 4523, Representative Sirovich: Providing for recording of patent pooling agreements with the Commissioner of Patents.

H.R. 4757, Representative Culkin: Prohibiting block and blind booking and making the Clayton Act applicable to film license agreements and leases.

H.R. 6472, Representative Pettengill of Indiana: To prohibit block and blind booking.

H.R. 6507, Representative Quinn of Pennsylvania: To remove the ban on fight films.

H.R. 6536, Representative Quinn: Removing fight film ban.

H.R. 8877, Representative Celler: Prohibiting block and blind booking and discrimination.

Batcheller's Hope Is for Indie Support

Sees Independent Films' Quality Improving

BY GEORGE R. BATCHELLER
President, Chesterfield

The New Year has in store for us only as much as we put into the New Year.

There is no factor in the industry deserving of more encouragement and support than independent production and distribution.

We, who have been striving for proper recognition in the independent field, are most gratified with the reception that we are receiving from exhibitors throughout the entire world.

There is no question that pictures released by independents are constantly improving in quality and that independents are constantly striving to create pictures with the box-office as their objective.

"Two Cities" Hits $71,000, Capitol

Plans for reinstating vaudeville with "Riffraff" have been dropped for the time being. The Roxy on nine days with "If You Could Only Cook" and Paul Ash on the stage ended with $62,000.

The Music Hall, with "The Littlest Rebel," got $60,000 in the last four

RKO Claims Cut Nearly 22 Million

Additional Reductions by Court Expected

Creditors' claims which were filed against RKO in the company's reorganization proceedings have been reduced by approximately $21,750,000, it was disclosed in a computation completed yesterday.

The total claims against the company amounted to $55,104,721. Thus, this amount has been reduced now to less than $34,000,000 and additional reductions in large amounts are more or less certain to be effected. The largest reductions made up to date resulted from the amending of claims filed. Reductions of this kind totaled $15,720,125. Claims amounting to $4,641,386 were withdrawn and stipulations on 17 claims totaling $3,212,283 were recently made, effecting a reduction of approximately $600,000 on that amount. Other reductions have been made through payments toward the retirement of the RKO six per cent

Census Amusement Canvass Is Begun

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Canvassers of the U. S. Census Bureau yesterday began their task of surveying theatres and other places of amusement throughout the country for the 1935 census of business, initial reports on which are expected to be made available sometime next summer.

Mindful of the inadequacies of a similar census taken two years ago, officials of the bureau are making every effort to assure complete coverage of the amusement industries.

The survey will show the number of theatres in each state by types of

IATSE Pact

Hollywood, Jan. 3.—Optimism reigned among film crafts here today following the successful negotiation by George Browne of the IATSE five-year agreement. Bert Offord of wardrobe men's group claimed close to 100% representation in all companies with only M-G-M still to be heard from before the Saturday midnight deadline. Mr. Browne will meet with cinematographers on Sunday.

Omaha Views Outlook with Cheerful Air

Second instalment of a field survey on the outlook for 1936.

OMAHA, Jan. 3.—New Year prophecies here vary from extreme conservatism to frank assertions that new records are in prospect. They all have one thing in common, however—an absence of the pessimism that has been apparent for three years or more.

Omaha is a trade center for three states. It is a barometer for a far-flung territory. Roger Babson has already made the assertion that it has been only a little behind the rest of the country in rate of recovery.

The city is the center of 10 rail lines, it is the world's greatest butter producer and a trucking center. Big things in 1936 were predicted generally by business leaders when interviewed by the local press.

Some statistics made public at that time indicated that the 1935 improvement in new car sales had been 116

Strike in Mexico Seen Ending Soon

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 3.—A settlement of the strike of employees against eight major American distributors, which has lasted since last September, is expected shortly by the Federal Labor Department, following the resumption of conversations between employers and employees.

Some department officials have indicated that the strike may be settled next week, which would mean the immediate release of the major company films, withheld from this market since the strike began.

No Tax Stand Of President Held Keynote

Expect Congress to Bar Thorny Problems

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—President Roosevelt's statement to Congress tonight that he does not consider new taxes "necessary or desirable" at this time is held by observers to be a keynote for this session.

With a Presidential campaign in prospect and his party in control of both branches, it is believed that as many controversial subjects as possible, including films, will be avoided.

The President's decision to deliver his address in the evening, when, incidentally, more people were at home to listen to it over the radio, set a peace-time precedent. The only previous night delivery that can be recalled was President Wilson's call for war with Germany in 1917.

Legislation dealing with the film industry is not expected to be brought up for several weeks, until after Congress has settled down and more

New Midwest Buying Group Picks a Name

OMAHA, Jan. 3.—Plans for the buying combine in this territory have progressed to the point where a name for the new group—NIDEA—Nebraska, Iowa and Dakota Exhibitors' Ass'n., has been selected and officers have been named.

A contract form is to be drawn up for presentation to distributors, but its details are being withheld until the executive board gets its policies set.

Charles E. Williams, who also is president of the M. P. T. O. unit, is business manager of the new organization. He says this fact does not mean that NIDEA has any connection with the M. P. T. O. His selection, he says, is due to the fact that he happens to be located in the trade center of the territory.

H. S. Tammen, Yankton, S. D., exhibitor, is chairman of the executive board, which also includes Dale Goldie, Cherokee, Ia.; Jennie Wickman, Tekamah, Neb.; R. F. Kehrberg, Sheldon, Ia.; H. F. Kennedy, Broken Bow, Neb.; Mone Thompson, St. Paul, Neb., and O. C. Johnson, Falls City, Neb.

At present there are 22 members in the organization. All new members come in only on a three-fourths vote of the total membership.

days of an 11-day run. The first seven days were good for $86,000. "Magnificent Obsession," which succeeded Shirley Temple, chalked up a gross of $62,000 in the first four days, the opening day getting $13,000. "The Perfect Gentleman" at the Center was mild at $6,000 and the first week of "Ah Wilderness" brought jubilant smiles to the management with $32,000.

"The Bride Comes Home" and Glenn Gray and the Casa Loma Orchestra at the Paramount tallied $50,000 for the first week. "Fang and Claw" at the Rialto for the first week took in around $12,000, while the Palace with "I Dream Too Much" and "Another Face" ended with about $8,000. The first week of "Captain Blood" at the Strand ended with approximately $40,000 and the initial seven days of "Dangerous" at the Rivoli tallied around $26,000.

All Broadway houses jumped admissions for New Year's Eve.

Roslyn House Loses In Equipment Case

A judgment for $4,537 was filed yesterday in the N. Y. Supreme Court in favor of General Talking Pictures Corp. against Emil T. Rinas, who formerly operated the Tower in Roslyn, L. I. The judgment was for rental of equipment.

The defendant set forth that the theatre was destroyed by fire on March 18, 1931. The plaintiff contended that the apparatus was undamaged and offered to install the same apparatus in another theatre so that Rinas could continue the contract. The court refused to absolve Rinas from the contract, since the apparatus remained intact and said there was no provision in the contract as to possible destruction of the theatre by fire. Rinas was held to the terms of the agreement.

per cent in Nebraska over 1933. Electricity consumption had increased five million kilowatts; dividends of over $1,000,000 were paid by seven building and loan associations; Omaha newspapers reported a gain of 1,000,000 lines; construction of homes nearly doubled during 1935; the population of 214,006 was nearly 10,000 above the 1930 census figure.

Charles E. Williams, president of the M.P.T.O. of Nebraska and Western Iowa, is one of the conservatives among the prophets.

"I can see nothing at all that will prevent 1936 from being as good as 1935," Williams said. "At the present moment, exhibitors are confronted with changing weather conditions—always a bane to showmen in the prairie states."

or less mapped out a program. Insiders declare that the threat of adverse legislation is very faint. They base their belief on the fact that this is election year and the services of the industry will be sought by the Administration.

In discussing taxes the President said: "Restoration of national income, which shows continuing gains for the third successive year supports the normal and logical policies under which agriculture and industry are returning to full activity. Under these policies we approach a balance of the national budget. National income increases; tax receipts, based on that income, increase without the levying of new taxes. That is why I am able to say to this, the second session of the 74th Congress, that based on existing laws it is my belief that no new taxes, over and above the present taxes, are advisable or necessary."

Devoting himself chiefly to a discussion of war thoughts abroad and to a challenge to those whom he declared would undo all that has been accomplished by the Administration in the past three years, the President divulged little of his plans for legislation.

Looking 'Em Over

"Rose of the Rancho"

(Paramount)

"Rose of the Rancho" is unique—it is the first western with a Metropolitan Opera star and the first one to have thieving outlaws of the Gold Rush days stop their raiding long enough to sing in chorus formations, with the beer spigots opened in time to the music, the glasses raised with flourishes and the gunmen embroidering beer mugs on the wall with their six-shooters.

Miss Swarthout calls her vigilantes with songs and they answer in massed choruses. John Boles strides up to the bar of a frontier saloon whistling and the faro and roulette players join in melodiously. Even Charles Bickford joins in a full-throated duet with Boles after inviting him to join his gang of night-raiders. This may explain why cowboys wear high heels and fancy handkerchiefs—just a charming old Spanish custom.

Between raids there is a fiesta, during which Miss Swarthout sings and dances and just before the final big raid on Don Pascual Castro's ranch there is another party with music. It's full of music.

The story is based on David Belasco's play and is set in the days after the Mexican War when the Spanish landholders were the victims of American adventurers, who were stealing their lands because the proud Spaniards refused to register them. Bickford is the leader of the American adventurers, Miss Swarthout is Rosita Castro, daughter of Don Pascual Castro (H. B. Warner) in the day time and Don Carlos, leader of the vigilantes, at night. Boles is a G-Man of the 1852 vintage. He foils the bandits and wins the girl in a final duet.

Willie Howard, as a Jewish-Mexican caballero, and Herb Williams as the first insurance agent on the coast, furnish all of the laughs.

Don Alvarado, Harry Woods, Grace Bradley, Charlotte Granville, Minor Watson, Pedro de Cordoba, Russell Powell and others are in the cast. It is a strong assemblage of talent—strong enough, in fact, to support a good story if there were one.

The photography is excellent, the direction by Marion Gering is better than in most westerns, and the cutter did a good job in preventing the action from interfering with the music.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Man Hunt"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3.—A comedy, this satirizes G-Men and big shot newspaper reporters, and evidently was produced for the small town, giving that patronage opportunity to laugh at the "wise" city folks. It has been smartly conceived and intelligently directed and acted. Romance, drama and suspense are given a hokum twist, with action.

Marguerite Churchill, teacher, is in love with William Gargan, small town reporter. She admires the bad men of history, with "Chic" Sale, old gunfighter, amusingly aiding that admiration. Ricardo Cortez, gangster, breaks jail, and is pursued by a trainload of G-Men and star reporters. Miss Churchill, succumbing to his sentimental pleas, hides him. Gargan is made to appear a fool to the pursuers, but overhears Cortez and his gang plan the robbery of a local bank. Unable to convince Russell Simpson, sheriff, or G-Man chief Addison Richards, Gargan and Miss Churchill start a run on the bank. The gang finds it empty, and the law arrives for the capture after Sale blows their tires with his quick shooting. Gargan, with his big scoop, is offered big city jobs but decides to stay home with Miss Churchill.

The two leading players are capable, with Sale and Maude Eburne supplying lively comedy. Cortez is good as the gangster. William Clemons' direction portrays the small towner as smarter than the city man. Roy Chanslor's screen play from Earl Baldwin's story is clever. The folks who are heroized in it should like the film.

The secured debt of RKO is $13,968,500 and approximately $19,500,000 of other claims probably will be ultimately allowed by the court subject to further reduction. Many of the claims in the latter classification can be offset by provisions for their allowance at reduced amounts in a plan of reorganization. Among the most important of such claims is that of Rockefeller Center, amounting to $8,207,000. Provisions for this claim could be made in a plan of reorganization which would reduce it by from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000. From this unofficial estimates are made that RKO could reorganize with a capitalization of approximately $27,500,000.

The capitalization of Paramount outstanding upon the consummation of the company's reorganization was $61,441,806 and 1,610,452 shares of common stock, by comparison.

Philadelphia Agrees 1936 Outlook Good

Steady Pickup, Gain in Employment Cited

Third instalment of a survey on the outlook in the field for 1936.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—Encouraged by the revival of attendance in 1935 and the Sunday show vote, exhibitors here are almost unanimous in predicting that 1936 will be the brightest year since 1930.

"New year forecasts," one exhibitor put it, "are usually 90 per cent wishfulfillment and plain optimism, but right now we have more than airy promise to go on. The year just ended showed a steady pickup and the outburst of holiday trade in the department stores, which averaged 10 to 20 per cent better than 1934, plus the most extravagant New Year's Eve celebration in the theatres and night clubs that Philadelphia has seen since pre-prohibition days, are sure indications that there is more money to be spent by the amusement loving portion of the public."

Hutchinson Cheerful On the 1936 Outlook

Walter J. Hutchinson, recently appointed general foreign manager of Twentieth Century-Fox, reflects optimism for the new year. He sees this in store:

"The general business recovery which started in 1934 should continue throughout the world in 1936; in this general world recovery the motion picture business should get its share.

"Pictures of truly international appeal will reap the greatest benefit. America, of course, has the international pictures and the machinery for turning them out."

Coast Guilds In Drive for Closed Shop

Reported Move Aftermath Of IATSE Deal

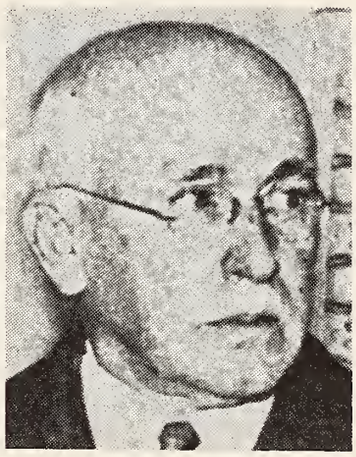
HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.—The Screen Actors' and Writers' Guilds here are said to be setting the stage for a concerted drive for the closed shop, which would replace the present Academy-producer pacts, if successful, following the feverish drive of all film crafts to gain producer recognition and establish 100 per cent closed shop in the studios, as the result of the I. A. T. S. E. five-year agreement with studios.

Bert Offord of the wardrobe men's group said the basic closed shop agreement does not affect wages. Wage problems probably will be adjusted at a series of meetings scheduled by unrecognized groups during February in New York. This is the first time the wardrobe group has ever approached a closed shop agreement in the studios.

It is understood the assistant directors have revived their A. F. of L. affiliation in a step toward the closed shop. Painters, makeup artists and laborers are taking action similar to that of the guilds. It is understood George Browne, I. A. president, has closed the doors of his organization to first cameramen, who are all A. S. C. members. It is reported, however, that the cameramen are bending every effort to obtain I. A. cards.

Wisconsin Has 399 Open, Report Shows

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 5.—There are 399 theatres open in the Wisconsin territory, representing a total seating capacity of 242,471, according to the 1936 annual guide for Wisconsin and Upper Michigan issued from the local Film Board of Trade. This figure was the same at the start of 1935.



The guide shows 62 affiliated houses in the territory and 444 independent, of which 399 are in Wisconsin.

Schaefer About Set On New Connection

George J. Schaefer, who recently resigned as vice-president in charge of sales at Paramount, is expected to announce his new affiliation during the week.

Schaefer, it is understood, has not been subpoenaed for the St. Louis equity action which starts today before Federal Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux.

On the Bench

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5.—Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux, who will preside at the equity hearing here on a preliminary injunction against Warner, RKO and Paramount for alleged refusal to sell film to F. & M. houses, is from Minneapolis. Born at Bellevue, Ky., Dec. 12, 1862, he studied at Miami University, Oxford, O., and graduated from the University of Cincinnati law school in 1882. He started practicing in Minneapolis in 1884. 957,000,000 Total British Attendance

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Attendance at the 4,305 theatres in Great Britain during 1935 reached 957,000,000, an average of 18,500,000 weekly, the total admission expenditure for the year reaching £40,950,000 (approximately $200,000,000), according to the report of an industry survey given by Simon Rowson before the Royal Statistical Society here.

Nearly £7,000,000 went to the Government as entertainment tax. The average number of seats per theatre is 900, according to the report. In London there is one seat for every 14 of population. Rowson declared the danger of overseating is serious,

Dismissal Motions Come Before Judge Today

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5.—Preliminary to hearing the Government's application for a temporary injunction against Warners, RKO and Paramount for assertedly refusing to sell their product to F. & M., Federal Judge Joseph West Molyneaux of Minneapolis on Monday will hear arguments by counsel for the three distributors to dismiss the equity proceedings. Countering these pleas will be argument by Russell Hardy, representing the Government.

Attorneys for Warners, Paramount and RKO will contend, as they did in separate petitions filed within the last two weeks in Federal Court here, that the phases covered in the civil action were disposed of on Nov. 11 when a jury unanimously acquitted Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell

No Change Planned For Camera Awards

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.—There will be no changes in the rules for nomination for the cinematography award this year, according to John Arnold, chairman of the photographic section of the Academy Technicians' Branch.

The rules provide that each cameraman in the industry will be invited to submit for consideration the names of his two best productions during the year. From this list a committee consisting of laboratory and camera department heads will choose the three productions to be nominated for the award. In choosing the three nominees, the committee will probably project the top 25 or 30 productions, without sound, to give complete concentration on photographic values, as was done last year.

Nomination ballots will be distributed within the next week.

WARNER BROS. SMASH THRU WITH "CEILING ZERO"

Thank heaven it didn't quite leave 'Film Daily' speechless!

THE Film DAILY

A BIG PICTURE LOADED WITH SUSPENSE, ACTION AND EMOTION, WITH CAGNEY AT HIS BEST, WILL CLICK AT ANY BOX OFFICE.

Every once in a while a picture comes along that just grips and holds you; "Ceiling Zero" does that. It is one of those big pictures that lingers with you, one that you make it a point to see. When good pictures are considered, this one deserves plenty of consideration. From the motion picture palaces down to the shooting galleries it's box-office. Loaded with suspense, intense drama, sentiment, comedy, and a story that really carries a punch, it can't miss. Even though Cagney plays one of the wise guy types, his role is toned down to a more regular state. Instead there is a more serious feeling, and instead of the appeal being limited to the action houses and dates, this one can play anywhere. "Ceiling Zero" reminds one of some of the big war pictures except that the foe is weather obstacles. Cagney and O'Brien play the leading roles with a sincerity that makes for reality. Stuart Erwin carries most of the comedy. Frank Wead wrote the stage success of the same title and he also did the screenplay. The picture speaks for his work. Howard Hawks deserves the highest of praise for producing and directing a piece of work that grips one as this picture does.

The jury trial on indictment charges took six and a half weeks during which many witnesses spent considerable time in the court room without being called.

Thomas on Hand

In the criminal trial, the period covered was three years to Jan. 11, the date the indictments were handed down. The equity case extends this time to the present and, therefore, gives the Government additional latitude for introduction of new evidence and exhibits.

Although the three respondent companies have not increased their legal staffs to any extent, the Government has assigned Walter Rice, who opposed Frederick H. Wood on the Jacob Schechter-NRA poultry case, and two other Washington staff men to assist Hardy. District Attorney Harry C. Blanton, Harold Schilz and John S. Claggett will also work with Hardy. Abel Cary Thomas, general counsel for Warners, arrived the other day from South America to assist Ex-Senator James Reed, Wood, Robert W. Perkins, Jeffries and I. Levinson. RKO and Paramount have not added to their legal talent.

Harry Arthur, chief witness for the Government in the criminal proceedings, will be the first witness to be called by Hardy. Whether Dysart will follow as in the previous case had not been determined today.

Most of the out-of-town witnesses arrived this afternoon and evening.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Anything Goes"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.—Hit tunes, plenty of gags and Bing Crosby's drawing power make this a potential box-office winner. It is good musical comedy with a transatlantic shipboard background. The film affords Crosby his best role to date. However, judicious cutting would speed up the action in spots.

Adapted from the well known musical comedy by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, with lyrics by Cole Porter, the thread of story is the usual hokum on which are strung the plentiful laughs and vocal ensembles. Crosby, as a young broker, trails Ida Lupino aboard ship instead of continuing his work for Robert McWade, his employer, who is taking the same trip. A light triangle plot is injected by Ethel Merman, who winds up by trying to fix things with Miss Lupino for Crosby. Aboard the ship and minus money for his passage, Crosby falls in with Charles Ruggles, public enemy No. 13, who is posing as a pious clergyman. Crosby sings his way out of one mess into another, with Ruggles and Arthur Treacher providing laughs aplenty. Mixed identities are involved in the windup with Crosby winning the girl in a Paramount news truck for a novelty fadeout.

Lewis Milestone directed skillfully with tongue-in-cheek humor balanced by expert timing. The direction is the picture's high spot. Miss Merman's personality is infectious. The photography of Karl Struss is top-notch. This one should please all customers.

St. Louis Price War Is Denied by Arthur

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5.—Rumblings of a price war as a result of his moving up the matinee change hour at the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central from 6 P.M. to 7:30 P.M. are denied by Harry C. Arthur, who arrived today from New York to attend the equity hearings in Federal Court.

Arthur contends that last fall independent exhibitors agreed to hike admissions if the three theatres would change matinee prices at 6 P.M. The agreement was never kept, Arthur states, and hence he has returned to the old schedule of admissions.

Vaudeville Back in RKO Boston Theatre

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—Vaudeville has returned to the RKO Boston, and double features have been scrapped. This puts stage shows back into two of the first run houses. The Metropolitan is the other. Smaller houses are, in some instances, using vaudeville one night a week.

of the Fox joined in expressing cheerful hopes for the new year, basing their findings on the growth in business during the latter half of 1935. "Unquestionably more people are working than were a year ago and they are spending more money for amusement."

They both issued the warning, however, that audiences are becoming more discriminating and that 1936 would mark a new high in their selectivity.

Another exhibitor followed along the "discrimination" theory by issuing the warning that while top-rank production was increasing in worth and box-office appeal, "audiences will not pay to see a double-feature picture unless it's on a double-feature bill."

Independent exhibitors are torn in several directions regarding the new year in view of the so far fruitless attempts to weld together a 100 per cent independent organization. Elements of the I.E.P.A. and the M.P.T.O. joined in December in the Independent Motion Picture Theatre Owners, but the original M.P.T.O., headed by its president, Lewen Pizor, declared that the old organization will continue in existence. "Call me the 'Forgotten Exhibitor'," said one canny local film man, "and you can quote me as predicting about six indie organizations during 1936."

Sunday Shows a Factor

Nineteen thirty-six will be the test of the Sunday business, in the opinion of many exhibitors. That the downtown first runs will get the cream of the Sunday trade, drawing on outside territories which defeated the measure, is the general admission. Exhibitors in some neighborhood centers are less sanguine and if deals with opposition can be made, some of the smaller theatres may go back to the six-day week.

The prosperity trumpets are blowing, however, and the consensus of opinion is toward some high box-office marks in 1936. Steady recovery in many manufacturing lines, the obvious housing shortage in Philadelphia, which will have to be remedied by building operations during the year, and increased reemployment are all indices for a happy future.

Stacy B. Lloyd, president of the Philadelphia Savings Fund Society, has called attention to 1935's vast increase in bank deposits over 1934 as a sure indication of economic progress, while the Philadelphia Stock Exchange has revealed that Dec., 1935, brought a total sale of 439,137 shares as compared to the Dec., 1934, turnover of 270,956 shares.

Law Changes Behind Drive On Theatres

Byrnes MacDonald, director of the Juvenile Aid Bureau of the Police Department, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday that the serving of summonses on 115 employes of 59 film houses in the city for admitting children under 16 unaccompanied by adults, was designed primarily to bring about a change in the existing law.

"The best way I know to effect a change in an unpopular law is by strictly enforcing it," MacDonald said. The bureau director declared that he had no objection whatever to pictures for children, but on the contrary, thought them a splendid means of keeping the children off the streets. However, he said, "The children must be protected." MacDonald said he had no intention of specifying what type of pictures are suitable for children. "I do not feel myself qualified to act as a censor of pictures," he said.

He expressed himself as "heartily in favor" of the bill, sponsored by Mayor LaGuardia, which would permit unescorted children under 16 to attend film houses under proper super-

Berry Calls Session Of Industry Group

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's coordinator for industrial cooperation, today called into executive session the representatives of industry and labor who will constitute his "industrial council" to provide a substitute for the NRA.

Big business was conspicuously absent from the meeting, considerable surprise being occasioned by the attendance of Felix Jenkins of New York, counsel for Twentieth Century-Fox.

The major subjects of discussion were the maximum working week, minimum wage and child labor. With respect to the work week, all hopes of a 30-hour limit were dashed by the AAA decision and the discussions, of labor particularly, turned toward a compromise at 38 or 40 hours. Little was accomplished at today's meeting other than the appointment of committees to make further studies and submit their reports at another conference to be called by Berry at some future date.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—A. P. Hill of Erpi has not yet completely recovered from his recent illness, necessitating another postponement of classes in the fundamentals of sound recording, which is being sponsored by the Research Council of the Academy. Hill is to conduct the classes.

Melvin Albert of Weisman, Quinn, Allen and Spett, attorneys for the Tremont, said that the sentence would be appealed to the appellate division.

The Winthrop, Brooklyn, which was convicted earlier of a violation of the lottery laws, has an appeal set for hearing in the appellate division next Monday.

Harry Kalmine, the circuit's head here, made the appointment.

As a result, Lew Fordan comes on from Tarentum to succeed Jacobs at the McKeesport house and William Powelson transfers from the Belmar in Homewood to Fordan's post. For the Belmar job, Charles Shannon, twice winner of the Quigley Plaque for exploitation, has been named, being promoted from the assistant managership of the South Hills.

Funeral services were held yesterday for Dr. Hugo Lieber, president of the Sonotone Corp., who died Friday after an illness of two months.

Born in Germany 68 years ago, Dr. Lieber came here in 1891 and started a chemical firm. A close association with the gaslight industry led him to establish a trade paper, "Light," in 1901. He founded a scientific research laboratory and was treasurer of the Radium Institute. During the war he spent two years in his native Germany aiding the starving populace. In 1922 he became interested in hearing aids for the deaf which led to his inventing the sonotone, his most important invention, which was made public in 1932, two years after he had founded the Sonotone Corp.

Dr. Lieber is survived by his widow and a sister, Matilda.

Cut in Film Is Urged fo South Americ

The American distribution co panies' practice of releasing their e tire output indiscriminately in Sou American countries is seen by Beni del Villar, managing director of Par mount Films, S. A., who also is leading Chilean exhibitor, as invitin the competition of other foreign pr ducers in that market.

Speaking primarily of his own te ritory—Chile—yet holding it to characteristic of all South Americ countries, del Villar said that forei product, especially German, Briti and French, has been receiving i creasing playing time in South Ame ican theatres during the past tv years. He attributes this to the Eur pean producer-distributors' care in s lecting perhaps 20 per cent of a pr duction schedule as suited for t South American market. By contra he said, the American distributor u loads everything he has on hand wit out regard for its suitability to t market. The result is, del Villar sai that South American theatres no lon ger are an exclusively Hollywo market, but they could be made again by proper regard in the selecti of production material.

Demand Good Music

South Americans, he said, dema pictures with good music, a minimu of dialogue or sub-titles, plenty action and international story value If pictures sent to South America Hollywood were made only from th recipe the American producer woul have no competition there, del Vill said. It is his opinion that supe imposed titles in any picture destine for South American release should n number more than 200. He observe however, that Hollywood frequentl sends them pictures with as many 1,800 sub-titles.

He was informed at this point b Albert Deane, publicist for Paramou International, that the forthcomin "Desire" would compare with these.

Del Villar operates the 1,700-se Real in Santiago, said to be one the most modern theatres in Sout America, and recently opened t newly built Santiago, a 2,000-seater the same city. He also has in co struction at Valparaiso a new theatr to replace his Real there. He is he on a month's visit to the Paramou home offices, his first New York tri in four years.

Large Appropriation for AAA

The decision rendered today by the preme Court was held in some arters to be so far-reaching as to ake practically impossible the enact- ent of substitute legislation, but the ll effect could not be calculated nding a thorough study of the inion.

Hartford Eyes Giveaways

HARTFORD, Jan. 6.—Trouble is brewing in city hall for theatres using Bank Night and similar stunts. No action has been taken against the Cameo and Princess for running Bank Nights, but the corporation counsel says he is studying the law to determine on what grounds the plan might be banned.

Trouble due to overcrowding and blocking traffic has been experienced.

Legal Lottery Move in Mass.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—The Massachusetts Council for Legalizing Lotteries has been chartered. Film men generally oppose the aims, asserting that they are suffering sufficiently at present from such legal gambling as horse and dog racing and Beano. Mrs. Oren Cheney Sanborn, socialite, heads a group of Back Bay women in the project.

In a statement to Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, who issued a charter to the organization, Mrs. Sanborn said, in part, that the council would "encourage the passage of legislation to legalize lotteries." Similar legislation was defeated last year only after a battle.

of the contempt citation by submitting to oral examination by attorneys for Capital either at Toronto where Fox is said to be under the care of physicians, or at some other mutually agreeable location. Fox immediately sought leave for the Circuit Court to appeal from the ruling.

The Capital Co., lessee of the Fox, San Francisco, holds an unsatisfied judgment of $280,000 against Fox for alleged personal liability on a defaulted lease on the West Coast house. Attorneys for the company have been endeavoring to examine Fox on his financial status to determine his ability or inability to satisfy the judgment.

tion the authenticity of certain documents to be introduced by the Government under its current plan.

Neil F. Agnew, vice-president and general sales manager of Paramount, is also among the excused following a request from his company's counsel which was granted by the Government. This was arranged on the understanding that documentary evidence which the Government proposes introducing will be identified by other Paramount witnesses, thereby presumably making Agnew's presence here unnecessary.

Indicating a new line of attack on the part of the Government, subponaes have been served on George W. Trendle, Paramount's theatre partner in Detroit; Y. Frank Freeman, theatre operating head of Paramount, with headquarters in New York, and Mike Marco of F. & M., who heads the coast activities of the original complaining company.

Spitz and Kohn to be Served

Leo Spitz, president of RKO, and Ralph Kohn, currently partner in production with B. P. Schulberg, have not yet been served, but efforts to do so are under way. Others in the list of those subpoenaed follow: Spyros Skouras, E. L. Alperson, Sam Dembow, Jules Levy, Clarence M. Turley, Austin C. Keough, Thomas N. Dysart, David Levinson, Frederick Kreismann, Jacob Chassnoff, Joseph Grand, John S. Leahy, J. M. Ulmer, B. D. Gordon, Harry C. and Milton B. Arthur, Cresson E. Brulatour, Jr., with May Jules Brulatour, Jr., son of Jules Brulatour, Eastman Kodak distributor, has joined Mitchell May, Jr., Co., Inc., insurance firm handling considerable film business, as vice-president. Brulatour attended Georgetown Prep and Catholic University and then spent considerable time in the banking business, having been with the Chelsea Exchange Bank, Mercantile Bank and Trust, and McDonnell Co., investment house.

vision. The proposed bill, which the Mayor said he would press at Albany despite unsuccessful efforts in 1934 and 1935, would permit children at theatres "which have been certified as meeting all requirements for proper showing for children."

The requirements, according to the Mayor, include setting aside of a part of the theatre for children, with one or more qualified matrons to care for them, and the showing of pictures suitable for children, during non-school hours, presumably between 3 and 6 P.M. Mayor LaGuardia, who termed the serving of summonses merely the enforcement of an existing law, declared the passage of the bill he is advocating would solve the child attendance problem "in a constructive fashion."

"The films, properly controlled, are a proper and popular form of entertainment for the youngsters," said the Mayor, "and there is no reason why they shouldn't be able to avail themselves of such pleasures, even if their parents aren't always able to accompany them." The Mayor stressed the need for protection of the children, however, and cited the practice of some children of standing in front of a theatre and asking an adult to take them in. The Mayor characterized this practice as a moral hazard to which the children must not be exposed.

No New Summonses

MacDonald said yesterday that no new summonses had been issued by his organization up to yesterday afternoon, but that there was no intention to stop with those already issued. His agents will continue to watch theatres for infractions of the law, he indicated.

Most of the summonses were given to cashiers, ticket takers and all others who took part in selling to or receiving tickets from children. All summonses were returnable yesterday in local magistrates' courts.

In the cases in court yesterday, the managers of the Cannon, Bridge and Star in Manhattan, cashier of the Tremont in the Bronx and the manager of the Miller, Brooklyn, were held for Special Sessions. The managers of the Harlem Grand in Manhattan and the Tremont were dismissed. The rest of the cases were postponed to various dates.

Judge Hears Defense Plea For Dismissal

dismissal of the injunction application on the ground that an acquittal in a criminal proceeding barred the possibility of re-trying civilly the same parties on the same issues.

Walter B. Rice, new recruit in the Government's ranks, led the rebuttal and centered his arguments on the legal theory that a jury verdict was not a bar in a court of equity. In the recent criminal case, he asserted, the Government had a "higher burden" of proving "beyond a reasonable doubt" that the defendants had been guilty. In this action, he continued, the issues were different and promised the proof would be preponderant and different as well. The Government, he continued, had been limited in the defeated criminal proceedings but now had extended the period of alleged conspiracy on the part of the defendants an additional 12 months or the calendar period from January 11, 1935, when the indictments had been handed down by the Federal grand jury here until the present time.

Wood Absent

Frederick H. Wood, one of the pivotal figures in the defense lineup during the misdemeanor trial, was absent today. He is fighting a siege of grippe in New York and is expected here later in the week. Taking a lone stand for Warners, Reed early in the morning session asked for a delay until Thursday or early next week pending Wood's arrival. Russell Hardy, Government counsel, opposed on the ground the case had suffered many delays, that the defense was well fortified with attorneys and that F. & M. were suffering losses "in the thousands each week."

He asserted any postponement would cost the Government about $3,000 to return its 30-odd witnesses here and commented, "Reed, no doubt, can defend them single-handed."

The court, evidencing a desire to get the proceedings under way, determined to hear several motions earlier mentioned by Reed. One he outlined as the right to amend the original petition as it concerned the product deal between RKO and Warners in conformity with developments since the indictments had been handed down. That deal, he told the court, had been altered on RKO's part providing for the sale of its product on a month-to-month basis.

Seeks to Shift Onus

The second step was the move for a plea in bar which ran the course of the entire day and was marked by spirited argument between various attorneys for the defense and the efforts on the part of the Government to disprove the legal precedents which the defense sought to establish.

The third step comprised an effort on Reed's part to shift the onus of conspiracy from Warners, Paramount and RKO to Fanchon and Marco and associates who, he charged, had organized a combination for monopolizing and completely controlling the first run theatre situation in St. Louis. He said they demanded five of the six first runs, the one outside theatre being Loew's. Because of Judge Molyneaux's unfamiliarity with the celluloid lexicon, Reed at this point went into a dissertation on first and subsequent runs and what constituted each.

Reed built considerable argument around his statement that the Sherman Act, under which conspiracy is now civilly charged against the defendants, deals solely with criminal acts. That which is sought to be enjoined must have been a crime, he argued, but there had been no crime since the indictments had been thrown out and the defendants acquitted. He added in support of his contention that what the Government was currently endeavoring to do was to try the acquitted parties again on the same issues.

To bulwark his argument he cited principally the case of Coffey vs. United States. This involved ten barrels of apple brandy, distillery machinery and an effort to avoid payment to the Government of revenue taxes. The case had been tried criminally and dismissed. Thereafter, according to Reed's interpretation, which was sharply disputed by Rice, effort to institute a civil action on the same charges was ruled out by the United States Supreme Court. In other words, Reed contended, the conspiracy so involved in that case had been limited to the indictment and could not be extended to embrace general allegations.

Other cases cited by Reed included: United States vs. Swift, Stone vs. United States, Murphy vs. United States, Waterloo Distilling Corp. vs. United States, Local 167 vs. United States. Leisure covered virtually the same ground with a couple of additions including Hopkins vs. Lee, Gelston vs. Hoyt and Lewis vs. Frick, all of which eventually reached the highest tribunal for adjudication.

Aside from contesting point by point the test cases cited by the defense, Rice played heavily on the Local 167 case which had to do with the poultry racket in New York City and in which the Government attorney had been one of the counsel. In that case, he said, 68 of the 90 indicted men were convicted while the remaining 22 had been acquitted by the court on motions and two by a jury. There followed, he asserted, an equity action filed by the Government in which not only were the 68 convicted defendants named but 33 others, including some of those acquitted in the criminal suit.

In the equity action, Rice asserted, the Government had duplicated the first 23 paragraphs of the indictment charge. The Government contended then as it does now that there was a continuation of the conspiracy, he said in effect.

Leisure, in rebuttal, replied the Government brief in the equity proceedings charges no new conspiracy, and added Fanchon and Marco have the right to relief from the courts on their own and without aid of the Government.

Reed again took up the cudgels for the defense and repeatedly drove home his argument that the respondents could not continue a conspiracy which did not exist and that there could be no basis for a civil action in the absence of a crime.

Lashly Quotes Hardy

An interesting point was registered by Lashly who made repeated efforts during the afternoon session to have Judge Molyneaux listen to evidence in connection with an application to file a supplementary answer on behalf of RKO for the granting of the plea in bar. He quoted Hardy from the minutes of Nov. 12 when the Government attorney offered to submit the testimony of the criminal trial as testimony in the civil proceedings. Lashly's purpose was designed to strengthen the argument of his associate defense counsel, Reed and Leisure, that the issues in both instances were identical and recognized as such by the Government.

Judge Molyneaux refused to admit Lashly's proffered evidence, but pointed out that he would take full judicial notice of the previous proceedings.

Rice, at one point, charged the defense, as in the criminal trial, would attempt to cloud the proceedings with "fictitious issues." Reed and Leisure obviously resented the inference and had no hesitancy in so declaring themselves.

The hearing resumes Tuesday morning.

On the Lighter Side

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Jan. 6.—Lawyers, briefs and legal tomes turned out en masse for the preliminary hearing on a temporary injunction in the Government's equity action today. Judge Joseph West Molyneaux, a pleasant, white haired man, short of stature, is representing the power and dignity of the Federal Government, dressed in the black and official robes of his office, in sharp contrast to Judge George H. Moore, who heard the criminal case in mufti.

The courtroom attendance is rather heavy. The legal battery for Warners is headed by ex-Senator James A. Reed, with Robert W. Perkins of the company's own staff, as constant advisor, assisted by I. Levinson, New York, and Samuel B. Jeffries. For Paramount are Austin C. Keough, an attentive listener; Louis Phillips, pinch hitting for Frederick H. Wood, ill in New York, but expected Thursday or Friday; William R. Gentry, St. Louis, and Irving Cohen, Phillips' assistant. George S. Leisure and his assistants, Russell Dore and John Hollard, all of New York, head RKO's battery, which is bulwarked by Jacob M. Lashly, St. Louis, and Ralston E. Irvine, Washington. Russell Hardy again is Government prosecutor, assisted by Walter Rice, John Herberg, Harold Schilz, William R. Benham and John S. Claggett. Aside from Rice and Herberg, Hardy's crew is virtually the same as that which unsuccessfully pressed the criminal indictments against Harry Warner, Gradwell Sears, Herman Starr, George Schaefer, Ned Depinet and their companies.

In the courtroom as an extremely interested spectator again is Sears' mother, while noted in the row nearest the exist, with ears cocked, was Abel Cary Thomas, secretary and general counsel of Warners.

It is understood all local exchange managers have been subpoenaed in the case. If they were not, they showed up anyway to watch the proceedings. The group included: Maurice Schweitzer, Paramount; Ben Reingold, Twentieth Century-Fox; Clayton Lynch, M-G-M; Clarence Hill, Columbia; Joseph Garrison, Universal; William Feldstein, United Artists; Hall Walsh, Warners.

Ned Depinet and Spyros Skouras arrived late last night by plane from New York. They were preceded by 24 hours by Sam Dembow and E. L. Alperson. Cresson E. Smith, western and southern sales manager for RKO, pulled in by train Sunday and earned for himself the distinction of being the only national sales executive at the opening session.

Fred Wehrenberg, president of the Eastern Missouri M.P.T.O., again is on deck, alternating between listening to the points of law established and shaking hands in the corridors with visiting and subpoenaed film men. Dinty Moore, city manager for Warner Theatres here, is another spectator and acting as an escort for Mrs. Sears.

Also glimpsed were Charles Kurtzman, manager of the Ambassador; Bob Hicks, manager of the Orpheum; Frederick Kreissman, former mayor of St. Louis and now subpoenaed by the Government; Arthur Simpson, partner of Jeffries, Warner counsel; Miles Alben of the Warner home office legal staff; Charles and A. D. Cella, owners of the Orpheum and Shubert, now under lease to Warners.

Bruce Bromley, special Warner counsel, is here, but working out of the suite at the Park Plaza. He found the air service out of New York pretty bad and would have done just as well by train.

So far on the sidelines but bending an attentive ear, is Federal District Attorney Harry C. Blanton. He received numerous visitors after the morning session, not socially but for the purpose of checking subpoenas with his clerks.

Only One Appeal

St. Louis, Jan. 6.—Walter Rice, Government champion at the opening of the equity proceedings here today, pointed out that, in the event the defendants lose in St. Louis, this type of case finds appeal only before the United States Supreme Court. This hurdles the circuit court of appeals.

GB Heads Entertain

Cleveland, Jan. 6.—George Weeks and Arthur Lee of G.B., here on a tour of the territory, were hosts today at a luncheon given to leading local exhibitors at the Hotel Statler.

Weisman Says 130 Theatres Are Lined Up

this nature will occupy the next few weeks. Originally it was proposed that theatre owners participating would receive stock in the new circuit in accordance with average earnings of their theatres over given periods of time and would subscribe allocated amounts for initial working capital.

Weisman returned yesterday from Hollywood where he was a guest of Joseph M. Schenck for several weeks. It had been reported in his absence that he had gone to the coast to confer with Schenck, who is head of Metropolitan Theatres, the new Fox Met company, on various significant phases which would be injected into the local circuit situation by the formation of another circuit comparable to Metropolitan, Loew's and K-A-O. Weisman, however, denied yesterday that his coast trip had anything to do with the projected Independent Circuit.

Weisman also denied reports that Harry Brandt would retire as president of the I.T.O.A. to make way for some such conspicuous public figure as James J. Walker or George Z. Medalie.

"I talked with Brandt today," Weisman said, "and you may quote me as saying he is not leaving the I.T.O.A."

Hilles and Eugene W. Leake" as trustees of Paramount. Charles E. Richardson, the third of the trustees, all of whom were appointed by the Federal court in 1933, resigned about a year ago and is now a member of the Paramount board.

Provision was made in the Paramount reorganization plan for the continuance in office of the trustees to wind up final affairs of Paramount Publix, the old company, and to retain the causes of action embraced in suits instituted by the trustees in 1934 against former officers and directors of Paramount. Remaining details of the reorganization no longer require the attention of two trustees, it was said in explanation of Leake's resignation. Leake, an attorney, was formerly head of Film Securities Corp., the company established by Federal court decree to take over and dispose of the one-time Fox Film Corp.'s controlling stock interest in Loew's, Inc. He is now a member of the law firm of Beekman, Bogue, Leake, Stephens & Black, which was counsel to the Paramount bank creditors in the company's reorganization.

Otterson to Coast For Product Talks

Paramount and RKO studios, in which the Atlas-Lehman companies have large interests.

Odlum, according to local reports, has also been in conference with Leo Spitz, RKO president, on the coast in connection with management and new financial arrangements for RKO. It is expected they will return east with Otterson in about two weeks. The latter is expected to stop over at St. Louis en route west to be formally excused by the court from attending the equity trial there, for which he was subpoenaed.

John D. Hertz, Paramount director and partner in Lehman Bros., who has been on the coast with Odlum for the past week, left there by plane for New York yesterday. It is reported that while in Los Angeles he conferred with Odlum and Spitz on reorganization plans for RKO and other matters preliminary to the planned exercise of the Atlas-Lehman option on the remaining half of RCA's holdings in RKO. Odlum spent the week end at Palm Springs concluding final arrangements for the acquisition of T. W. A. by Atlas-Lehman.

agreement of both parties concerned pending efforts to work out a settlement of the huge claim. The settlement, if agreed to, probably would be made a part of a plan of reorganization for RKO. One of the most likely means of satisfying the claim, it is held in responsible quarters, would involve the making of new leases on either the Music Hall or Center or both by RKO.

Appeals Permitted On Paramount Fees

Those who were granted the right to appeal to the higher court yesterday are Kuhn, Loeb & Co., whose application for $114,287 was disallowed by Judge Coxe; Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, whose application for $150,812 was disallowed; the Paramount stockholders' committee, whose application for a $70,000 fee was disallowed and whose application for $170,875 expenses was reduced to $110,533; Adolph Feldblum, whose application for $3,020 was disallowed; Samuel Zirn, whose application for $76,207 was disallowed; Archibald Palmer, whose application for $15,000 was disallowed; Jacob J. Lesser, whose application for $37,512 was disallowed, and A. J. Schanfarber, A. M. Frumberg, Edgar J. Schoen and Samuel Zirn, jointly, whose application for $82,868 was disallowed.

Previously, the Circuit Court had granted leave to Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine and Cook, Nathan & Lehman to appeal from Judge Coxe's order reducing their applications by $500,000 and $135,500, respectively. The appeals will all be placed on the high court's calendar for hearing when reached.

Short Subjects

"Hot Paprika"
(Columbia)

That old plot element, the one about man having an allotted time to live, is in this case twisted about to suit Andy Clyde's talents. Clyde has a bad case of hiccups. The doctor says he has three months to live. Clyde puts up around his office and leaves on a world cruise. He is next seen in the land of Paprika where he gets involved in a revolution and by accident puts it over. The offering definitely follows a formula vein and will be hard put to provoke amusement. Production Code Seal, No. 1,657. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Patch Mah Britches"
(Columbia)

Some fine Technicolor work is the sole redeeming feature of this cartoon. Somewhat inconsistently the plot has Barney Google inviting his backwoods friends and companions of the comic page to a dinner. He is disturbed by their manners and attempts to demonstrate with them. He gets a pie thrown in his face repeatedly for his pains. Somewhat exaggerated, the characters go through their paces. Lacking invention and innovation, this effort has little merit. Production Code Seal, No. 1,758. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Voice of Experience No. 6"
(Columbia)

A case history, this issue deals with the plight of a girl whose father goes on trial as an embezzler on the eve of her engagement. Her fiance is the prosecuting attorney. She is in a spot and appeals to the Voice for aid and advice. He urges that she see her future husband and explain the trouble to him. Doing so, she helps lessen her father's penalty and for her courage in facing the situation squarely is forgiven by her fiance's family. Production Code Seal, No. 0703. Running time, 10½ mins. "G."

(Columbia)

A young girl is gossiped about as an unwed mother. When she comes back from the hospital where her child was born she and her mother are ostracized by the neighbors. In the form of a critical letter the Voice relates the story turning the table on the critic. He reveals that the complaining party's son is the child's father. All is retribution and forgiveness in the end as reputations are cleared and happiness reigns. Not in very good taste. Production Code Seal, No. 0723. Running time, 10½ mins. "A."

"Kannibal Kapers"
(Columbia)

Krazy Kat starts off in the middle of the ocean and is flung by a fish into a palm tree on a tropical isle. He tries to entertain the cannibal chief and enrages the regular entertainers. They throw him all over the place and with little novelty he is back in the sea again. An ordinary cartoon offering. Production Code Seal, No. 1,759. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Oregon Trail"
(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—An outdoor action adventure picture, tinged with a light romance and told against pioneer history background, this satisfies as average entertainment. Its particular appeal is to western fans and youngsters. Following the established formula, bringing in the standard thrill-action-dramatic-romantic-comedy and suspense values common to this type of picture, the show is well acted and directed.

In the story John Wayne, a cavalry officer, joins a wagon train. The customary raids and ambuscades are all played for the maximum excitement and thrills. Building to a climax, a renegade gang led by Ben Hendricks and Jack Rutherford leads an attack on a Mexican army post. Their depredations, which the Mexicans believe are the U. S. Army's inspired activities, almost precipitate war. In the finale, Wayne, against great odds and with much heroism personally accounts for the bandits, saves the wagon train against the threat of a raid, rescues Ann Rutherford and blazes a new, safer Oregon trail.

The picture makes good use of exceptional location shots. Wayne's performance should win new admirers. As the heroine, Ann Rutherford has little to do other than share the romantic interest. Villainy is convincingly portrayed by Hendricks and Rutherford. Comedy contrast is in the hands of Yakima Canutt, Frank Rice and Fern Emmett. The scoring of the theme song adds to the punch of the dramatic and romantic sequences. The story is by Lindsley Parsons and Robert Emmett, who collaborated on the screen play with Jack Natteford. Scott Pembroke directed.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Exclusive Story"
(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—There is plenty of excitement in this tale of a reporter's campaign to wipe out a ring of racket operators, enough good acting to satisfy all comers and lots of tense action.

Stuart Erwin plays a funny but believable reporter who goes into a rage when his paper makes him retract an exclusive story about a paving racket on the advice of Franchot Tone, playboy attorney. Madge Evans, daughter of J. Farrell MacDonald, a small grocer who is terrorized by a number of racket gangsters, appeals to Erwin for help and shames Tone into accepting a special prosecutor's job to wipe out the rackets. Investigation carries Tone by plane over a burning ship, into the sea in a parachute and ends after rapid action with Tone and Miss Evans going into the marriage racket together.

Joseph Calleia does brilliant work as a small time racketeer who is forced by the "big boys" into murderous extremes and each of his scenes remain in the memory as the highlights of the film. Erwin is splendid in a cleverly written part and so is Margaret Irving as his understanding wife. Tone is engaging in a smaller part than usual. Excellent support is contributed by Robert Barrat, Louise Henry, Wade Boteler, Charles Trowbridge, William Henry, Raymond Hatton and J. Carrol Naish. Michael Fessier did the screen play from a story by Martin Mooney. George B. Seitz directed and Lucien Hubbard produced.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Move to Curb Highest Court Held Possible

President Affirms His Stand in Message

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Curbing of the U. S. Supreme Court as the first step in a move to reimpose Federal control of industry and agriculture was seen possible today in a statement from the White House that President Roosevelt expected Congress to carry out the recommendation made in his annual message that it "protect its prerogatives" and require protection for the laws it enacts until final adjudication.

Other comment on yesterday's AAA decision was refused.

The President's recommendation is understood to contemplate the withdrawal of the right now accorded

West Studies Effect Of Ruling on AAA

OMAHA, Jan. 7.—Invalidation of the AAA by the Supreme Court was a sensation in film circles in this territory. Theatre men joined with farmers in lamenting the upheaval because of the general conviction throughout the west that the AAA has raised farm prices and has been responsible for much of the pickup.

Speculation is rife as to what substitute will be provided, if any, before the present term of Congress expires. Corn and hog checks to farmers have been factors in the spending in this territory.

The 27 Tri-States and 41 Central States Theatres controlled by A. H. Blank all draw patronage from the corn, wheat and cow belt.

Fox units, Finkelstein & Rubin and other circuits are studying the outlook.

Receipts will be watched closely in the immediate future, especially in the small towns, and Congressional moves will be the objects of scrutiny.

Jersey Allied Talks Suit To Halt New York Sales Tax

The possibility that Allied of New Jersey will institute an action for an injunction to restrain New York exchanges from adding the two per cent sales tax to film rentals of out of town theatres was indicated yesterday following a meeting of the organization at its Lincoln Hotel headquarters.

The passing on of the sales tax by local exchanges to their theatre accounts as of Jan. 1 last, was the principal subject of discussion at the meeting. A committee consisting of Lee Newberry, president of Allied of New Jersey; Louis Gold and Norman Samuelson, attorney for the organization, was appointed to investigate the situation and report back next Tuesday at the Lincoln. The attitude of the organization's members, whose theatres are located outside the state, is that the New York tax when applied to their rentals is unjust, as they cannot obtain their film supply elsewhere and would be placed in the position of passing on to their New Jersey patrons a tax designed for the relief of New York City residents.

Meanwhile, a new hearing on objections of the local exchanges to the application of the tax to film rentals derived from theatres outside New York has been postponed to Jan. 20. The hearing was originally scheduled for Friday before a board representing the city finance department, but the postponement was made neces-

All Cincy Men Agree Outlook More Cheerful

CINCINNATI, Jan. 7.—A survey among theatre executives, both major and independent, exchangemen and exhibitors in the Cincinnati trade territory, reveals a general feeling of optimism for 1936.

Spontaneous predictions, ranging from mildly conservative to highly enthusiastic, are the same in effect—that the 12 months ahead will show a very decided improvement for conditions in general and the picture industry in particular.

The consensus of favorable opinion is predicated on recent performances of better product, which, almost without exception, has kept the turnstiles clicking constantly, whereas the more mediocre pictures have left a trail of crimson across the box-office ledgers.

Although improvement in the quali-

Production in Hungary Leaps As Takes Drop

By ENDRE HEVESI

BUDAPEST, Dec. 28. — Nineteen thirty-five has been a record year for Hungarian films. Sixteen in the Hungarian language and four in German were completed in the Hunnia and Magyar Filmiroda Studios, an increase of 100 per cent over the two previous years.

From a business standpoint, however, they broke no records. Two of the most successful features shown during the year were made during the end of 1934. "Meseauto" ("Dream Car") was a record-breaker both for the distributor and exhibitors. The other, which did fairly well, was "Igloi Diakok" ("Students of Iglo").

Among the 16 Hungarian films completed from January to Dec. 10 and released, none was outstanding

Court Denies Dismissal of Equity Case

Recess St. Louis Action Until Tomorrow

By RED KANN

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 7.—Federal Judge Joseph West Molyneaux this morning denied the plea of Warners, Paramount and RKO for dismissal of the equity proceedings. He ruled the theory of res adjudicata on which the defense had built an elaborate argument Monday did not apply, leaning upon the language in decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court in the cases of Stone vs. U. S. and Lewis vs. Frick. In general terms the theory of res adjudicata in law maintains that the issues and the parties tried on a charge in criminal proceedings cannot again be tried in a subsequent civil action.

The court also refused to permit Warners to amend their answer to include in this action consideration of an alleged local monopoly by Fanchon & Marco and associates. The respondent contended at length through ex-Senator James A. Reed that the existence of such a monopoly had brought about the leasing of the Orpheum and Shubert-Rialto as an outlet for its own

OTTAWA, Jan. 7.—The diplomatic corps of the Canadian capital turned out in all its brilliance for a command performance of "39 Steps" at the Rideau which was attended by Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir, and official staff from Rideau Hall, the vice-regal residence. Prior to becoming Lord Tweedsmuir, the governor-general was John Buchan, author of the picturized story.

Final Review Denied In Deery Bank Case

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—John A. Deery, head of the Salem Realty Co., must serve a year and a day in Plymouth County Jail, according to the U. S. District Attorney's office, as a result of the refusal of the U. S. Supreme Court to review the conviction of Daniel C. Maloney, former president of the closed Federal National Bank of Boston.

Deery was charged with aiding and abetting Maloney in the misapplication of $130,000 of the bank's funds. Theatre loans were principally involved.

Deery has already served a term in connection with the defunct Salem Trust Co., of which he was president. He had been granted a stay of mandate until Maloney's last appeal had been ruled upon.

Contends Patent Invalid

Sonotone's action in Federal court in Wilmington is a petition for a declaratory judgment that an earphone patent obtained in 1927 by Delbert A. Reynolds is invalid on the basis of prior art. In the MOTION PICTURE DAILY of Dec. 31 the headline incorrectly stated that it was a patent infringement suit.

Court Denies Dismissal of Equity Case

first runs. Warners were alone on this phase of the day's developments.

George S. Leisure, special counsel for RKO, was on his feet immediately to inform the court that insofar as any entry into the first run situation was concerned by acquisition or leasing of theatres, the company he represented was not involved. He pointed out RKO had exercised its right to free judgment in the choice of customers with F. & M. as one possibility and Warners as the second. He declared it had been RKO's decision to sell Warners.

The second day's session ran less than two hours and terminated with a recess until 10 o'clock Thursday morning, at which time the Warner legal battery is hopeful Frederick H. Wood, now ill in New York, will be on deck and actively in the fray for the defense.

Hardy Replies to Reed

However, it was an interesting two hours. Russell Hardy, chief of the Government staff, entered the argument substantially for the first time. It was he who undertook to reply to Senator Reed's lengthy plea for the court to recognize the existence of the alleged monopoly exercised by the F. & M. interests. He turned to what he viewed as precedents in law and cited rulings of the U. S. Supreme Court to drive home his point.

Reed had argued that if the court issued the injunction sought by the Government it would thereby make complete and absolute the monopoly allegedly practiced by F. & M. by compelling Paramount and RKO to sell their product to them. He also had held that if the court took such action it would inflict a greater injury than the conspiracy which the Government claims is now being exercised by the defendants. He expressed the opinion that the court would not take such action.

Hardy, in rebuttal, sought to demonstrate by citing leaseholds and corporate structures of the companies now operating the Ambassador, Missouri, New Grand Central, St. Louis and Fox that no monopoly existed.

Claims F & M No Monopoly

"It is interesting to be confronted with such a slovenly case of pleading," he said in a direct attack on Reed's presentation. The Government counsel asserted the defense at no point had proved the F. & M. group to be an illegal monopoly or a monopoly at all. If there is existing a monopoly, he continued, the defense has a remedy, declaring Reed's charges had no place in this court and, "The prosecuting officials are functioning in Missouri."

Hardy further described this case as only one instance in the efforts of the Federal Government to stop "these practices all over the United States." In effect, he also charged, Warners were assuming the stand that the F. & M. activities constituted an illegal combination and that they, meaning the Warners, therefore were privileged to commit illegal acts to combat them.

The Government has the right to remove any restraint of trade and this is not a private affair, he added. Hardy also made the blunt charge that, as in the preceding criminal case, the defense was deliberately endeavoring to set up extraneous issues in order to exclude the real.

Waxing sarcastic and at the same time doubling back to his opening address in the misdemeanor trial, Hardy scoffed at the counter-monopoly argument with the statement that the combined assets of the defendant companies totaled $666,000,000, while those of F. & M. were "less than $500,000." The Shubert and Rialto jointly controlled 50 per cent of the feature output; the five F. & M. houses only 25 per cent, he asserted. "Fifty per cent of all the feature output, Mr. Hardy?" inquired Robert W. Perkins, asociate Warner counsel. He was ignored by Hardy, who continued his rebuttal as if the query had never been made.

Amendment Granted

In denying the Warner motion for an amendment to include alleged monopolistic practices on the part of F. & M., Judge Molyneaux declared the court would have to confine the case to the airing of facts and evidence bearing on the relevancy of the Government's conspiracy charges against Warners, Paramount and RKO and consider no other issues. This immediately ruled out attempts by Reed to gain consideration for the Warner reason for not selling F. & M. in this city. However, the court said the Warner counsel may bring up this point during oral presentation of their case.

The Warner amendment covering the shift in its buying relations with RKO, by which the latter was declared to be selling on a month-to-month basis since the criminal trial was launched, was granted with no objection by the Government. At the request of the court, which pointed out it had no power to order it, the defense and the Government agreed upon mutual cooperation in submitting subpoenaed records.

"How about introducing the records of the criminal case and saving a lot of time?" asked Reed. It met with a laugh at large and a denial, of course, by Hardy.

A few minutes before the recess, Louis Phillips, Paramount counsel, inquired if the proceedings were for a permanent injunction. The court answered that if it issued an injunction at all, it would be permanent.

ty of product and the more dignified methods in selling it to the public are credited as underlying factors influencing the attendance upturn, increased operations, or return to normal production by various industries, especially those in the "heavy goods" classification, a still broader spread of employment through Federal projects, and bigger payrolls with sizable salary boosts, have been responsible for the greater flow of money into box-offices.

Prospects Bright for '36

"We have made mistakes in the past," said the spokesman of a prominent theatre group, "but we will profit by them in the future. I voice the sentiment of all concerned when I say we look to 1936 full of hope and optimism. The public, generally, is now inclined to spend more for luxuries, rather than confine itself to necessities. People are not only picture-minded, they are picture-hungry, but they are discriminating. Therefore, good pictures will get the play, and attendance will be in direct proportion to the quality of entertainment offered. The industry is on a higher plane than ever before, and the silver lining is becoming brighter every day."

Gains in the diversified manufacturing plants and department stores in this territory have been increasing steadily for several months. Freight car loading and new automobile registrations are approaching a new high.

Possibly the best index of improved conditions is found in the statement of local bank clearings for 1935, as compiled by the Cincinnati Clearing House. This shows a total of $2,466,-319,282, compared with $2,123,727,-180 in 1934, an increase of $342,592,-102. The 1933 figure was $1,814,000,-000, giving 1935 a gain of $652,319,282 over two years ago. The clearings in December of this year reached the highest level for any comparative month in recent years.

Columbus Is Optimistic

Columbus, Jan. 6.—Optimism and confidence for the current year are expressed without exception by leading factors in the industry here, all of whom feel that 1936 will be one of the best the picture business has had in a long time.

They point to better pictures, with the improvement continuing rather than diminishing. This, together with better business conditions in general, they say, will swing the pendulum in the right direction.

"The turning point is at hand," declared one leading exhibitor. "We are 'out of the woods.' A new era for the industry has arrived."

The city, although considerably overseated, especially in the first run division, is holding its own theatre-wise, with business for the better pictures keeping well in the upper brackets, and the reverse being true for the product of lesser merit.

Dual features continue to be the rule rather than the exception in the neighborhood, and suburban spots where, however, business is showing a healthy trend.

Short Subjects

"Grand Slam Opera"

A ribald and slapstick burlesque of amateur programs with Buster Keaton contributing some of his best comedy, this one has entertainment in every frame. Keaton is given a good riddance sendoff by his family on his way to New York to participate in a program. At first he is thwarted, but he finally gets his chance. He juggles over the radio with description. This leads to a stunt with a broom but he gets the gong. The orchestra starts and he accidentally hits the conductor with the broom and they give shot for shot in tune with "The Anvil Chorus" which is the best sequence.

Another good twist has Keaton near home. He pauses on a highway for a lift and an Indian squaw passes with a papoose on her back. He tries to thumb a ride. It is done with the usual Keaton pantomime. However, he wins the prize and speeding back to town he gets the award and takes his girl to dinner and a show. Nothing is missing in this one and it will most certainly go over. Production Code Seal, No. 1829. Running time, 18½ mins. "G."

"The Fire Alarm"
(Vitaphone)

In this cartoon, Beans is a fireman and his nephews, Ham and Ex, are left in his care. The pair get into all sorts of amusing mischief around the firehouse, one gets out the hose from a truck and entangles it, the other presses a rewind lever which rolls it up together with his brother. They end up by driving off with a hook and ladder tearing up the town, mowing down telegraph poles and finally get it back in the station again and are on the receiving end of a spanking. Average cartoon comedy fare. Production Code Seal, No. 1,684. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Sorority Blues"

Set in a girl's school, this ordinary comedy has Nell Kelly in bad with the dean because she has not done her exams. Consequently she cannot play on the morrow. What she plays is not divulged. In order to do her best she needs to be inspired by music and song which are supplied by her classmates. The Randall Sisters sing, the Foster Twins also sing and there is dancing by Verne, Ruth Brent and more singing by Jeanette McCully. An ordinary musical offering. Production Code Seal, No. 0729. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Seeing Nellie Home"

Played in a homey, rustic setting with some old fashioned choir singing by the Henderson Master Singers, this effort should be average short entertainment. There is a slight story vein involving Carol Deis. At a party where baskets are auctioned off to the highest bidder Miss Deis is in demand, for the buyer must take her home. Centered around this there is the usual male competition and subsequent twists to the plot. The singing is good. Production Code Seal, No. 0727. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Petrified Forest"
(Warners)

Hollywood, Jan. 7.—With a smooth blending of the elements of romance and melodrama this picture has power, prestige and strong entertainment value. The action takes place entirely within the confines of a gas station in the Arizona desert and at times reaches points of pronounced suspense. The unusual locale in which the picture is set forms a perfect background on which is displayed the psychological portraits of the characters.

Leslie Howard, an itinerant writer; Bette Davis, waitress, and Humphrey Bogart, notorious gangster, carry the brunt of the story. Howard and Miss Davis are kindred artistic souls thrown together in the desert. When Bogart and his gang descend on the gas station Howard determines to give his life in order that Bette may collect his insurance and achieve the artistic success which he has missed. While being held as prisoners by Bogart, the pair, together with Genevieve Tobin, Dick Foran, Charley Grapewin, Paul Harvey and others frankly discuss their innermost thoughts.

When the posses finally close in on the group Bogart and Howard carry out a pre-arranged pact, the bandit killing Howard.

Skillfully directed by Archie Mayo, the production captures in full the spirit of the original Sherwood play. Charles Kenyon and Delmer Daves, who did the script, lost nothing in transition to the screen. Production by Henry Blanke is class throughout.

Performances by the supporting cast are uniformly good, with Eddie Acuff, Adrian Morris, Joseph Sawyer and Porter Hall outstanding.

Production Code Seal No. 1,751. Running time, 76 minutes. "A."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Man from Guntown"
(Puritan)

Tim McCoy is the hero of the west in this picture, which follows the usual formula for this type of material. It should be found satisfactory as the lesser half of a dual program, or played, to the youngsters especially, on the week-end, when action fare is most acceptable.

The film has its expected quota of action, with McCoy supported by Billie Seward, Wheeler Oakman, Rex Lease and Robert McKenzie especially. McCoy saves the life of a cowboy he meets, but later when his friend is killed McCoy is accused. A letter from the man's sister indicates that an unscrupulous lawyer in a neighboring town is about to do her out of valuable land, left by her father. McCoy makes a bargain with the sheriff, that he will return with the real culprit, or come back himself and stand trial.

The romance enters when McCoy meets Miss Seward, the sister. From that point there is considerable action, as McCoy meets the gang on their own ground, and proves his innocence to the arriving sheriff, who assists in the conclusion. McCoy cleans out the gang, establishes the girl's rights to the property, and proceeds with the completion of an important dam which her father had started. Ford Beebe directed.

Canadian Men Shifted

Toronto, Jan. 7.—With the transfer of T. R. Tubman from Ottawa to Winnipeg to become Mid-West general manager of RKO theatres, Famous Players Canadian Corp., has appointed Howard Knevels to manage the RKO-Capitol at Ottawa. Knevels has been manager of the Toronto Imperial, Montreal Capitol and the Regent at Ottawa.

Ken Smith, once head usher of the Capitol at Ottawa, has been appointed manager of the Ottawa Regent, while Gilbert Sunderland, recently head usher at the Capitol, has been made assistant manager at the Regent. The appointments were made by Clarence Robson, eastern division manager.

FitzPatrick Sails

James A. FitzPatrick, Travel Talk producer for M-G-M, has sailed on the Franconia on a trip that will cover 40,000 miles and take him over most of the world. FitzPatrick declared his apparatus will record the highly distinctive sound effects of Africa and the Far East in a manner not possible in the past. With him is Benjamin D. Sharp, production manager, and a complete staff.

$2 Top for "Pasteur"

Warners' "The Story of Louis Pasteur," scheduled to open at the Hollywood early next month, will play on a two-a-day basis at a $2 top.

Present Demurrers In Lincoln Action

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 7.—Demurrers have been filed in Federal court here by major distributor and circuit defendants in the damage suit for $1,797,000 started some time ago by the State and Independent Theatres. The former is headed by G. L. Hooper of Topeka and George Monroe of Beatrice, Neb., and it owns 50 per cent of the stock of Independent. The other half is owned by Cal Bard.

The demurrers contend that the plaintiffs' petition is not sufficient ground for action. The plaintiffs declare they had half the houses here at one time but could get only 10 per cent of the product and were ruined as a result.

The defendants are: Robert Livingston, J. H. Cooper and six distributors—United Artists, Twentieth Century-Fox, M-G-M, RKO, Universal and Warners.

Waller to Demonstrate

Twentieth Century-Fox is going to try to settle that "swing" music controversy tomorrow afternoon in the ballroom of the Hotel Warwick by giving a demonstration.

It seems that "Fats" Waller has introduced the new technique in "The King of Burlesque," so the newspaper critics and some music authorities have been invited to hear Waller do his stuff.

E. V. Richards the Same

New Orleans, Jan. 7.—The condition of E. V. Richards of the Saenger Amusement Co. remains about the same as last week. Richards was stricken in his office in the Tudor Theatre building and later taken to the Baptist Hospital, then to his home.

either financially or artistically, and only one, "Edas Mostoka," is likely to return a profit. Some may earn their production cost, but others are not expected to do this. Some are still running, but Budapest is the only place that really matters insofar as profits are concerned. If they fail to hit here, their chances are slim elsewhere.

Among 10 Hungarian films shown here during the year four have been flops and the others were feeble. Some of them have done slightly better elsewhere, due to the fact that audiences know only the Hungarian language.

Films produced in 1935 cost about 120,000 to 140,000 pengos (about $36,000 to $42,000) each. They cannot earn their cost, even with foreign sales, but distributors can get higher prices for imported films if they can sell them with domestic product. The independent Hungarian distributor makes Hungarian language films in order to increase his business turnover.

Distribution Has Problem

The system of selling three or five imported European films along with one Hungarian film worked until eight Hungarian films were turned out annually. With 16 this year the situation is further changed. Smaller exhibitors cannot afford to buy three or five European films because this leaves them no time for American pictures, which the public insists upon seeing.

During 1935, owing to the increase in Hungarian films, exhibitors refused to buy European imports, and insisted upon taking the native product alone. This upset distributors' calculations.

The question arises: Where is the hitch? To begin with, it is impossible to produce films for 120,000 to 140,000 pengos which will satisfy the Budapest public. At least 180,000 to 200,000 pengos would be necessary, but this sum can not be earned in the 426 theatres in the country, and the product has little market in other countries.

Italy an Outlet

Italy is an outlet for pictures synchronized in Italian. A natural market lies in the parts of Rumania, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia taken from Hungary in 1919 by the peace treaty. About 4,000,000 Hungarians live in these territories. Germany does not admit Hungarian films, dubbed or in the original, because they do not meet the Aryan requirements. Rumania, Czeschoslovakia and Jugoslavia refuse them for political reasons.

This has had an effect on Hungarian producers. Toward the end of 1935 they became more reserved and less anxious to secure studios. Production will undoubtedly be cut down during 1936.

American companies — M - G - M, Paramount, Warners, Universal and Twentieth Century-Fox—have been forced to cut prices, due to the competition of Hungarian films during the year. Profits suffered as a result.

In the past German films have drawn the best box-office grosses because of the many persons who speak German, but the quality has declined to such an extent that public interest is turning toward the American product, except in country towns where Hungarian product has been offering competition.

From the American point of view, it seems desirable to import only the best of the United States output. Hungary will become a profitable market for American producers only when the present unhealthy boom in production quiets down.

Supreme Court Curb Now Held Possible

taxpayers to impound money paid "under protest" while seeking a decision on the validity of a law. In the case of the AAA approximately $150,000,000 was thus withheld from the Treasury.

Enactment of legislation along this line, it was predicted by observers, will be followed by other moves to curb the courts, the President's ideal being a Supreme Court without any voice as to the constitutionality of Congressional enactments. Should this be secured, industrial and agricultural control, probably along lines similar to those outlawed by the courts, would immediately be sought.

Unless some such method can be evolved, it was said, revival of the NRA, or anything like it, is impossible, the court in its decision, holding that the amendments to the original AAA adopted at the last session to meet objections which it was anticipated would be voiced by the high tribunal could not alter the situation.

Warners Give Stand On Ascap's Claims

when NBC and CBS renewed their memberships in the society last summer for another five years, Ascap claimed to have the continuing licensing right to Warner music, and also because the authors and composers who wrote the Warner music continued their membership in Ascap.

In their reply to the networks Warners, through Herman Starr, vice-president, said: "It is not true that the society claims, for any reason whatsoever, to have the right to license you to perform the works published or copyrighted by our companies. Under our respective agreements with the society, we had the right not only to withdraw from membership but also to withdraw our compositions from the society's repertory, and the society has given notice of our withdrawal from its membership and also the withdrawal of our works from its repertory."

In reply to requests of both networks for a list of the music to which it claims copyright ownership, Warners, in the correspondence made public, refers the broadcasting organizations to the Copyright Office at Washington.

Alden Beach arranged a program of music which was played in true old fashioned nickelodeon style by a pianist who played in the silent days.

sary by the absence from the city of one of the finance department officials. A hearing has already been held on the opposition of the exchanges in the United Artists test case to the application of the sales tax to any film rentals, but no decision has been made by the city since the hearing. In the meantime, however, the finance department applied its test assessment to all film rentals of the exchange, regardless of the location of the theatre from which they were derived and the new hearing was sought to present arguments against this procedure. An adverse decision by the city will be appealed by the exchanges to the appellate division.

As the tax, if sustained, would be retroactive to Dec., 1934, the exchanges were incurring a potential liability of $16,000 weekly to the city and decided to pass along the tax to theatres as of Jan. 1, last, as a precautionary measure. If they are successful in opposing the tax the moneys collected will be refunded.

Exhibitors throughout the metropolitan area have been protesting the added levy vigorously since the Jan. 1 notices went out. Exchanges contend that the exhibitor should join with them in opposing the tax at its source, the city finance department, rather than directing their protests to the distributor.

Novel, Poem Totter

Indianapolis, Jan. 7.—"The novel and the poem may become extinct in 200 years, 100 years, or in much less time, due to the radio, pictures and television," Booth Tarkington says.

"Radio and talking pictures already have displaced books in many homes, and television—near the threshold now—will further injure the popularity of books.

"The average reader reads for entertainment, and with a television box in the home, he will be able to get his entertainment cheaper. Television, in fact, might eventually displace the theatre."

End Argument In Wiseman's Fight on Suit

Fate of Para. Trustees' Suit Hangs on Ruling

Arguments were concluded yesterday in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals on the action of Sir William Wiseman, partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and a former Paramount director, contesting the right of the Paramount Publix trustee to examine him in connection with two recovery suits brought against former officers and directors of Paramount by the company's bankruptcy administration. The court reserved decision on the action.

Prosecution of the two suits against the former Paramount officials hinges on the outcome of Wiseman's action. The suits were filed by the bankruptcy trustees in 1934 and seek the recovery of millions of dollars from the defendants for alleged liability for the cost to Paramount of the agreements under which theatres were acquired by Paramount from 1928 to 1932 through the

ITOA Will Deposit Funds on Sales Tax

Members of the I. T. O. A. will deposit with local exchanges sums sufficient to cover the two per cent city sales tax which is being added to film rentals from Jan. 1 on, it was decided yesterday following a meeting of the organization at which the sales tax was the principal subject of discussion.

The meeting voted to abide by the advice of its counsel, Milton C. Weisman, in the matter. Weisman, after conferring with Louis Nizer, head of the local Film Board, recommended that the two per cent tax now being added to the rentals should be deposited with the exchanges as billed until such time as the legality of the city's levy is determined. The exhibitors were assured that their deposits would be refunded if the exchanges are successful in their efforts to show that the tax should not be applied to film rentals.

Circuit operators yesterday said they planned no action, for the present at least, looking toward the elimination of cash giveaways in their Bronx theatres as a result of conferences held on Tuesday with District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx. Foley was reported to have warned circuit representatives that arrests would follow the continuance of cash awards on the basis of lucky numbers, regardless of the name under which the theatre game was played.

Loew's, RKO, Skouras and the I. T. O. A. were said to have been warned by Foley. Officials of each denied any knowledge of plans of their companies to discontinue the games at this time. Loew's, as usual, staged its weekly cash giveaway last night, as the circuit does every Wednesday night.

Sanctions Are Helping Italy On Production

By VITTORIO MALPATUSSI

ROME, Dec. 31. — Imposition of League of Nations sanctions against Italy has proven a big stimulus to Italian films. Since September, the start of the 1935-36 season, these films have been out-grossing imported films here in Rome, and this is true of cities in other parts of the country. Newspapers are helping to stimulate interest in the home product.

Government efforts are directed at fostering home production, as French and English films are barred here at present and about four-fifths of the market is open to American films. Some of the recent Italian successes have been "Casta Diva," "Scarpe al Sole," "Aria del Continente" and "Passaporto Rosso."

Best of the recent American films has been "The Merry Widow," which grossed $34,113 at the Barberini. Next

Indianapolis Jury Hits at Bank Night

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 8.—Bank Night is described as a lottery in a report of the Marion County Grand Jury, and the passage of laws is recommended to prevent its further operation.

The drawings reached the inquest after a riot at the Rivoli during which it was charged that the drawing box had been stuffed.

The jurors described Bank Night as "an unfair method of merchandising calculated to lure people to the theatre for the purpose of giving them a chance on a cash prize in exchange for their presence in the theatre."

Motor Plants Hum; Detroit Outlook Rosy

DETROIT, Jan. 8.—With the automotive industry humming—which always means prosperity to Detroit and Michigan, and with business in general, including exhibition, far ahead of 1934, theatre and exchange men here are highly optimistic over the prospects for 1936.

Asked for his opinion of the prospects for this year, George W. Trendle, president of United Detroit Theatres Corp., operating the Publix first-run theatres here, as well as a large number of subsequent run houses, issued the following statement:

"The destiny of all branches of the picture industry for 1936 can be told, or read, only from week to week. It is a great serial story, available only one chapter at a time.

"The producers are its authors. The prosperity we enjoy, or miss, in 1936, depends on the entertainment

Skouras to Be First Witness At St. Louis

Opening Talks to Start Today's Session

By RED KANN

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 8.—Spyros Skouras, operating head of National Theatres Co. and at one time a vital factor in the local exhibition field, will be the Government's first major witness in the equity proceedings involving Warner, Paramount and RKO which resume Thursday morning. This, it is understood, is the Government's current plan, although admittedly a change in the prosecution's program is likely.

There is no definite assurance, however, that he will be reached at tomorrow's session. Thursday may be devoted to a full session of opening statements by both the prosecution and the defense.

Russell Hardy, chief Government counsel, is scheduled to be first in the presentation and most likely will be followed by Frederick H. Wood of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine and Wood, prominent New York law firm, and special counsel for Warners. He

"Copperfield" Leads Voting for 10 Best

"David Copperfield" heads the list of 10 best films released during the year ending Oct. 31 in the annual poll of Film Daily. A total of 491 critics, a record number, participated.

Nominations totalled 166, compared with 173 the previous year.

The 10 best are:

An honor roll included 49 features, headed by "Alice Adams" (Radio). Last year this list had 42 pictures.

The voting was so scattered that only one feature, "David Copperfield," received more than 300 votes. "Anna Karenina," the last of the 10 best, received 129, and the rest of the selections ran from 115 for "Alice Adams" down to 10 for "The Whole Town's Talking."

'Fang and Claw' Teems With Thrills

"FANG AND CLAW," a Radio Picture produced by Frank Buck; filmed by Nicholas Cavaliere and Harry E. Squire; musical score by Winston Sharples; presented at the Rialto Theatre.

Frank Buck doesn't wander the wilderness to play charades—his pictures teem with exciting life and action—and none more than that now sending quivers along the spines of Rialto audiences. Buck went to camera-capture thrills and once again he brings 'em back alive. Slithering pythons lash and thresh in deadly fury, struggling with cold hatred to encircle hapless victims in their terrible crushing coils; fierce, snarling cats, with death in every fang and claw, charge with gaping jaws into the very face of the camera with human prey one scant leap ahead; those jungle jesters, the monkeys and the bears, supply the comic touch in an atmosphere of ever-thre[illegible] ing tragedy; unblink[illegible] diles yawn under the sweating sun to come to sudden perilous life in clinches with their captors; indeed, the whole big parade of the jungle tears across the screen, only the Rialto's safety robbing each scene of terror. Every sequence is topped by the one that follows; suspense and drama build with each succeeding scene, and the interludes between shots of heart-stopping adventure are filled with welcome respites of laughter at the antics of the simpering simians and blustering bruins. The film fulfills its every promise.

Much footage must have been photographed from which to cull such reels of concentrated thrill, and the task of editing is so capably accomplished that it must be mentioned. The photography itself is alwa[illegible]cellent, and the directi[illegible]e term may be ap[illegible]irable. Mr. [illegible]one of th[illegible] highlights [illegible]icture abounds. "General business is vastly improved. More people have more money to spend.

"Distributors will do all they can to get the maximum from exhibitors, and theatre owners will strive to the utmost to attract the maximum of entertainment money to the box-office.

"Neither distributors nor exhibitors can make the industry prosperous without product the public wants to see. Any prediction now for 1936 can be no more than instinctively optimistic."

David M. Idzal, managing director of the Fox, has this to say:

"There was a marked improvement in 1935 over 1934 in general theatre attendance. There likewise was a marked improvement in the product which the studios sent us. Undoubtedly the latter was responsible for the former.

Sees Great Year

"All that I hope for is that 1936 will be a year that will permit me to say the same when it draws to a close.

"General indications, as far as screen product is concerned, are that the studios are going to advance consistently in the type of pictures.

"Personally I look for a great theatre year in Detroit."

Other exhibitors agree that business improved vastly in 1935 and were of the opinion that the advance would continue.

Exchange heads, while refraining from issuing "quotes" or giving figures, reported almost as a whole that their business had shown large increases. This was particularly true of the independent exchanges, which, the records show, played more than four times the number of first runs this year than they did last year, with a larger number of subsequent runs too.

It is reported that the Republic exchange had the greatest increase of the year, more than doubling its sales record for 1934.

issuance of stock which was later redeemed at a guaranteed price, although the market price of the stock was considerably lower than the guaranteed price at the time of the redemption. Still another action involved is one filed by the trustees to recover from officers and directors alleged profits accruing from their participation in a so-called Paramount employes' stock purchase plan. It is alleged that through their participation in this plan the defendants profited wrongfully by acquiring Paramount stock at less than market price and disposed of it later in the market.

Court Order Cited

Wiseman, as a defendant in the actions, contested the right of the trustees to examine him before trial of the suits on the grounds that the Paramount bankruptcy was concluded with the reorganization of the company last June and the trustees' authority, including the authority to prosecute the actions, expired at that time. Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, attorneys for the trustees, cited a provision in the plan of reorganization for continuing the authority of the trustees in certain matters and preserving to them the causes of action in the untried suits. The law firm also cited an order signed by Federal Judge Coxe on June 17 which specifically directed the trustees to continue the prosecution of the suits. As a result, the Federal district court some time ago upheld the trustees' right to proceed with the examination of Wiseman and the prosecution of the suits. Wiseman then took an appeal to the Circuit Court. If his contention is upheld by the higher court, the June 17 order would be nullified and the trustees would be without authority to bring their two recovery actions to trial.

is here for the resumed hearings. The Warner presentation is expected to be followed by Louis Phillips, counsel representing Paramount here, who is doubling in brass due to the illness of Samuel W. Fordyce, associate counsel recovering from pneumonia. RKO will be represented by George S. Leisure of the New York law firm of Donovan, Leisure, Newton and Lombard.

To Call Local Managers

Routine testimony concerning the establishment of motion pictures as a commodity in interstate commerce will be sought by Hardy in his first line of witnesses. To do this, he will call to the witness box virtually the entire array of local exchange managers. Definitely scheduled to testify are these:

Clayton D. Lynch, M-G-M; Richard Taylor, RKO; Joseph Garrison, Universal; Hall Walsh, Warners; Ben Reingold, Twentieth Century-Fox; Maurice Schweitzer, Paramount, and Clarence D. Hill, Columbia.

None of the individual defendants in the recent criminal trial has been subpoenaed by the Government, although the possibility is strong that this group, which included Harry M. Warner, Gradwell L. Sears and Herman Starr of Warners and Ned E. Depinet of RKO will be called to testify for their companies. George J. Schaefer, former vice-president and general sales manager of Paramount, may take the stand for that company as well.

Estimate Is Two Weeks

Reports, presumably of the "inside" variety, that the bondholders' protective committee of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central would seek court permission to intervene on behalf of the Government thus far have failed to materialize.

One of the Government attorneys prominent in the case hazarded a guess today that the hearing, now expected to move with greater speed with elimination of routine details, would not continue beyond two weeks.

Lobby gossip around the Park Plaza where most of the New York contingent is ensconced, divides its forecast between two and four.

Indicating that the proceedings will move with dispatch, Federal Judge Joseph West Molyneaux on Tuesday morning refused to accept a brief offered by RKO in connection with that company's application to file a supplementary answer declaring he had already made up his mind on the legal points involved.

Further indicating his desire to expedite matters, the judge requested various counsel to cooperate in turning over subpoenaed records to the Government during the Tuesday noon to Thursday morning recess. His was solely a request, since he made it clear that he was not empowered to order it. Counsel for the defense acquiesced.

The first two days found only the surface scratched. Fine points of law, in particular the application of the theory of res ajudicata were aired at length. Laymen, here either as spectators or witnesses, have found the going difficult. The technicalities and the interpretations placed upon U. S. Supreme Court language have even found the lawyers themselves disagreeing.

The film fraternity, well versed in percentage deals and overages, hasn't had much of a chance.

Bruce Bromley, Austin Keough and Gordon Youngman, RKO attorney, have returned to New York. Starr is expected here tomorrow. Sears is in Chicago, but is due here shortly.

Austin Keough, Lou Phillips, Eddie Alperson, Sam Dembow and Cresson Smith captured the spirit of St. Louis in the Crystal Room of the Park Plaza at one minute past midnight Monday morning. That's when the bars open in this town after the Sabbath lull.

Jim Reed is maintaining a high batting average and a direct line to the spitoon by his side in the courtroom. Harry Warner's hat isn't there this time, as in the criminal case, because Warner isn't here.

The new courtroom, by the way, is quite impressive. It is oak-paneled with modernistic lighting and trimmings.

Judge Molyneaux sits very quietly in his high-backed leather chair, gently swinging from side to side from time to time. He speaks in low tones. All ears bend attentively in his direction when he has something to say. Those words are extremely important.

The local branch managers scrammed in a hurry when the first hour of the first day made it easily apparent no witnesses would be reached.

Alperson and Dembow are sharing quarters on the 15th floor. Eddie's bathroom is in cerise and purple.

Bob Perkins is constantly by Reed's side, whispering this and that to him, shoving over this brief and that notation. Slightly bent by age now—the ex-senator is 74—Reed continues a fine figure of a man with his tall frame and his shock of snow-white hair.

Reed took a crack at the New Deal the other day. Walter Rice had cited a decision of the board of tax appeals in Washington. Reed pointed out any decision by any board in Washington might be made at 9 o'clock and kicked out by a ruling of the Supreme Court at 10 o'clock.

Sanctions Are Helping Italy On Production

best have been "No Greater Glory" and "After Office Hours," with other U. S. films trailing well behind.

Control of Italian production has rested with the Direzione Generale per la Cinematografia, supervised by Luigi Freddi.

Hopes for American producers or distributors lie in cooperation with Italian producers. The first American company to take advantage of this is M-G-M, which will distribute "Aldebaran," produced by Giulio Manenti, with Alessandro Blasetti as director.

A part of the profits of world distribution will go to the Italian producer.

A new governmental agency has been created for distribution of Italian film. It is called Ente Nazionale Industrie Cinematgrafiche — E.N.I.C.— and will be controlled by the Institute Nazionale—L.U.C.E. In fact, the president of E.N.I.C. is Marquis Paulucci de Calboli Barone, who also is president of L.U.C.E.

E.N.I.C. controls a circuit of 26 houses, the most important of which are Supercinema, Volturno and Cola di Rienzo in Rome, the Ambrosio and Vittoria in Turin, Corso in Milan, Nazionale and Fenice in Trieste, the Modernissimo and Rossini in Venice, Medica in Bologna, Excelsior Savoia and Modernissimo in Florence, Augusteo and Modernissimo in Naples.

About 50 Italian films will be produced during 1935-36. Among these are: "Non e' Una Cosa Seria," from Pirandello's play; "Musica in Piazza," "Arma Bianca," "L'Ambasciatore" and "Fanny Ballerinia."

Short Subjects

"The Mayflower"

In this cartoon there is some good invention which will put it over. The plot concerns a load of Pilgrims somewhat snappier than popularly supposed. With modern twists, it lands the Pilgrims on a prepared Plymouth Rock and one character gets a hilarious greeting by Indians with neckties and hot-dogs to sell while another is hunting a turkey and getting involved with a gang of fierce redskins. He escapes them, however. A good one in the cartoon line. Production Code Seal, No. 0797. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Dumb-Bell Letters No. 21"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

If the others in this series have provoked laughs from audiences, this should do likewise. As usual, it is made up of some of the best of Miss Lowell's collection of items from the morning post. Perhaps the best of the lot is one in which a woman writes to the Voice of Experience. She has two children and wants a third, but she has been informed that every third child born is Chinese. Production Code Seal No. 0338. Running time 7 mins. "G"

"Winter Magic"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

With winter as its theme, this short in the Magic Carpet series takes the audience on a tour of places where winter cloaks the country to the camera's advantage. There is at times some excellent photography and the mood is well handled. Metropolitan and rustic scenes are compared and seasonal sports are shown. Production Code Seal, No. 0779. Running time, 8½ mins. "G."

"Screen Snapshots No. 5"

(Columbia)

This issue, in the familiar manner, looks in on screen stars at their exercise and diversions. Warren William works his farm, Gene Raymond plays tennis, Elissa Landi rides, Mary Brian tap dances and Eddie Cantor juggles three balls. The piece closes with views of a typical Hollywood premiere. This series has fallen into a rut and more novelty from a production standpoint is needed. Production Code Seal No. 1,833. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Filming the Feminine Headliners"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Fine editing on the part of Lew Lehr of old material makes this a complete and entertaining offering. Practically all the outstanding women athletes in their lines of sporting endeavor are shown as they performed before the newsreel cameras and as the sequences pass in view they get better and better. It closes with shots of a bathing beauty contest in Atlantic City. This should please. Production Code Seal, No. 0780. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Private Life of Louis XIV"

(General Foreign Sales)

With story and direction by Carl Froelich, this German importation pictures, against a spectacular royal court background, something of the intrigue and pomp surrounding the activity of the King of France in the 17th Century, and the unfortunate plight of a young German Princess, married to Louis's brother in a political move which goes wrong.

The film has been well executed and the performances are good. Numerous sub-titles in English make for easy understanding of the story by those unfamiliar with the German language of the picture. Renate Muller, Dorothea Wieck, Michael Bohnen and Hans Sruwe play the princess, a favorite of the king, the king and his brother, respectively. Miss Muller and Miss Wieck are probably known in this country, and the film should have definite appeal in those communities where there are German people.

There is, of course, the obvious underlying intent, in this German production, to paint the activity of the French king and his war minister in the light of unscrupulous ravagers of the then separate German states. As a dramatic film, however, it offers a measure of entertainment. The German princess, after bearing as long as she can the unwelcome attention of Louis, and the lack of respect of her husband, is about to flee to her home in Heidelberg, when her husband, suddenly aware of the love his wife has for him, persuades her to return to the court, she realizing that she can best help her native people by remaining near the king, and with her husband's help.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"Captain" Big Hub Grosser; Gets $20,500

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—"Captain Blood" piled up profits in two spots, the Fenway and the Paramount. At the former it was nearly 100 per cent over normal on a gross of $8,000, and at the latter the $12,500 take was $5,500 to the good. The feature was held over in both houses. Ordinarily these spots run duals.

Grosses generally were like the good old pre-depression days. "Ah, Wilderness" and "If You Could Only Cook," dualed at Loew's Orpheum and Loew's State, took $14,000 at the former and $13,000 at the latter. "Collegiate," with a stage show, ran the Metropolitan up to a heavy $28,000.

"Rebel" a $13,000 Smash in Montreal

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—There is nothing that French-Canadians like better as an occasion for celebrating than New Year's, and Montreal theatres shared in the benefit. The leader was the Palace with a take of $13,000 on "The Littlest Rebel," but Loew's was practically as strong at $12,500 with a combination bill topped by "Three Kids and a Queen."

The Capitol registered $10,500 with "Collegiate" and "Scrooge." The Princess broke up the week to start "If You Could Only Cook" on New Year's Day and made $5,500 for the first four days. These statistics do not include holiday midnight shows where special attractions were presented.

Chief opposition to theatres this week were the night clubs which did a roaring trade. Three hockey games also competed with the cinemas.

Minneapolis' Best "Bride," Burns & Allen

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 8.—With moderating weather and holiday spirit, business picked up here, and the Minnesota, with a combination of "The Bride Comes Home" and Burns and Allen, took $12,000. This was up by $2,000.

Other Minneapolis houses failed to demonstrate anything better than par, but St. Paul had a fine $6,500 gross on "A Night at the Opera" at the Paramount, and was $1,000 up with a take of $5,000 on "I Dream Too Much" at the Orpheum.

Total first run business in Minneapolis was $28,000. Average is $24,500. Total first run business in St. Paul was $18,200. Average is $16,000.

"Cities" Tops Pittsburgh's Holiday Spurt

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 8.—Grosses all over town went soaring for New Year's week, with the midnight shows selling out everywhere and the holiday take the best here in several seasons.

Way out in front were the Penn, Stanley and the Fulton. The Penn had "A Tale of Two Cities" and piled up $17,000, while the Fulton, reopening after a shutdown of two weeks, sailed along to $7,500 with "The Littlest Rebel." The picture was held for a second week and may remain a third. At the Stanley, a stage show including Fifi Dorsay, Ed Lowry and Stepin Fetchit was given as much credit as "Whipsaw" for the excellent $28,000.

While other houses weren't so fortunate, they managed to show a fair profit. On four days with "Navy Wife" and Ray Perkins' amateurs, the Alvin claimed $7,000 while the Davis got $3,720 with "Pursuit" and "Frisco Waterfront" and the Warner around $5,300 with "Mary Burns, Fugitive" and "Stars Over Broadway."

Total first run grosses were $68,520. Average is $48,500.

Reisman Sees Increase in World Films

Conditions Abroad Show A Marked Upturn

By PHIL REISMAN
V.-P., RKO Export Corp.

One of the most hopeful omens for 1936 has been the gradual internationalization of American production executives. Cold figures have convinced them that pictures of the walk and talk variety, pictures with overabundant dialogue, pictures of a highly sophisticated type are very definitely failures at overseas box-offices. Cold figures have also convinced them that pictures which tell their story principally through visual appeal, pictures with a mini-

Fox Theatres Claims Cut to $2,949,103

10 Disallowed Entirely, Report Discloses

Of 50 claims against Fox Theatres Corp. aggregating $24,285,033 on which hearings have been held to date, 10 were disallowed in their entirety and the remainder were reduced to $2,949,103, it was disclosed in a report filed with the Federal court here yesterday by Milton C. Weisman, Fox Theatres receiver.

In addition to the claims already heard, there are 14 claims aggregating $9,379,474 which have yet to be heard and reported on. Claims which accounted for the principal reductions were those of Union Guardian Trust Co. for $10,663,346, which was reduced to $1,111,641; St. Louis Union Trust Co. for $7,819,283, reduced to $764,845; Ridgewood Operating Co., Inc., for $550,000, reduced to $11,568; Franklin Operating Co., Inc., for $816,666, reduced to $25,399, and Philadelphia Co. for Guaranteeing Mortgages, for $389,436, reduced to $30,134. These five claimants have been the only ones in the group of 50 to file exceptions with the court in connection with the reductions made on their claims.

Other large reductions in the claims

Northwest Has Hope for Gain Close to '29

SEATTLE, Jan. 9.—The best business since 1929! That is the prediction for the industry in Seattle and the Pacific northwest for 1936, based on present indices and surveys of the prospects for the immediate future.

Show business will improve primarily because general conditions are improving in this territory, according to leaders in the theatre field. However, exhibitors are predicting gains in greater proportion, perhaps, than general business increases.

Hamrick-Evergreen, operating in larger northwest centers and smaller inland cities, has already begun to feel the effects of better grosses. John Hamrick and Frank L. Newman, Sr., both predict a good year. Product will contribute to better business.

Jensen-VonHerberg, operating both first run and neighborhood houses, expect 1936 to reach new high levels, according to General Manager Leroy V. Johnson. Their Liberty, key first run house, has shown greatly increased patronage during recent weeks, even at slightly advanced admissions for better attractions. Engagements of HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9.—The possibility of Trem Carr transferring his activities to England is seen in his statement to MOTION PICTURE DAILY today. He has received offers from two English firms. He said his future plans were still uncertain, but that he was most interested in going to Europe for a vacation. He had planned to sail earlier but decided to remain here to clear up old business.

It is possible he may accept one of several offers here before leaving. Mrs. Carr is awaiting him in New York.

Hardy Opens Case for U.S. At St. Louis

Reed and Phillips Reply For Warners, Para.

By RED KANN

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 9.—If today's developments in the equity proceedings by the Government against Warners, Paramount and RKO indicate the rate of speed at which this action is to be tried it looks like a long, hard winter in St. Louis for an array of film men who, by personal and business preference, elect to be elsewhere.

For today was the day on which opening statements of opposing counsel were to be cleared away and early witnesses for the Government placed on the stand. The plan, if not the hope, was to have the full array of local exchange managers testify to the interstate commerce angle in the sale and distribution of motion pictures. The managers were on hand, as instructed, but were dismissed shortly after the third day of the proceedings had started when it became apparent there would be no call for their testimony.

The session today divided into three parts. The entire morning was turned

Ampa Resumes with Many Entertainers

Ampa members, rested after the holiday period, resumed their weekly lunches yesterday at Jack Dempsey's with an all-entertainment program, and the show was so good most of the members on the employed list forgot they had jobs and failed to walk out.

Seek Examination In Columbia Suit

Papers asking for examination of Jo Swerling and Al Rogell, both of Los Angeles, were filed in Federal court yesterday on behalf of Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia Pictures Corp., in connection with a plagiarism suit brought by Jack Allman, short story writer, against Columbia. The complaint alleges that prior to Sept. 26, 1931, Allman wrote an original story, "The Salvage of the Sagomar," which appeared in the Argosy Magazine, and was copyrighted by Frank Munsey Co. and that in February, 1934, the copyright was assigned to the plaintiff, who alleges that in April, 1933, Columbia produced "Below the Sea," which plagiarised his story. He asks an accounting and damages.

The defendant denies all material allegations and contends that Allman was not the original author of "The Salvage of the Sagomar." Cohn's affidavit states that the author of the story of the defendant's picture was Swerling, now in the employ of Columbia, and that Rogell was the director. The affidavit says, "We seek to prove that there was no access to the plaintiff's story at any time and that Swerling and Rogell never saw or read his story."

Cullman Urges Films Drop Art "Humbug"

Art consciousness in films is self-consciousness in producers, and usually stands in the way of the making of a good picture, Howard S. Cullman, receiver of the Roxy, told students of the School of Education, N. Y. U., last night.

"Personally, I would like very much to see the films divested of their esthetic humbug," Cullman said. "Nowhere does the pretentiousness of the films assume more absurd and ruinous proportions than in the columns of some of our motion picture critics. The fault," he said, "lies with the producers, who, because their wares are expensive, insist that they be regarded as something important. Thus, they invite criticism on a highbrow basis for products which actually do not rate more than the cursory attentions of a reporter.

"With rare exceptions," Cullman said, "the film industry produces its more admirable results, not in its moods of esthetic aspiration, but in its moments of unaffected and straightforward showmanship."

Critics Hear Waller

Critics of the New York dailies and the trade press and representatives of a number of musical magazines listened to "swing" music at the Warwick yesterday afternoon as demonstrated by "Fats" Waller.

It seems that "swing" music is quite the rage in Europe and is making headway here, so Twentieth Century-Fox has him featured in "King of Burlesque."

About 100 guests seemed to like Waller's playing and singing.

Plan to Turn Closed Banks Into Theatres

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Plans now under way here call for the remodeling of many of Chicago's 70-odd bank buildings, which closed during the depression, into modern theatres. These bank buildings, most of which were erected in recent years and are modern, have ideal locations. They can generally be converted into theatres seating 500 to 1,000.

Charles Sedell, theatre real estate promoter, is planning to turn a number of these into theatres and other concerns are interested. Companies in charge of the receivership of these banks are understood to be willing to lease the buildings on a 20-year basis. If the plans take definite shape, some of the new theatres will replace those now in operation.

Great States is planning to open the majority of the 13 houses it owns which are now dark. More than $200,000 will be spent to refurnish and remodel them during the year. A sharp increase in business is the reason for the plan, which marks the circuit's first activity of this sort in many years.

over to Russell Hardy for the Government and the afternoon to ex-Senator James A. Reed for Warners, and Louis Phillips for Paramount.

Hardy took two hours to re-hash allegations contained in his opening in the criminal proceedings. Those who sat through the first case found it generally identical with his earlier presentation with an occasional deletion as to names. Thus it was that, in firing conspiracy charges at Warners, he made specific mention of Herman Starr, Gradwell L. Sears and Abel Cary Thomas, all originally indicted, and subsequently acquitted, except Thomas, who had not stood trial because of illness, but no reference to Harry M. Warner, fourth indicted Warner official and also cleared of the misdemeanor charge with his associate executives.

"Attack by Wealth"

Keynoting his presentation was the statement by Hardy at one point that, "this case is an attack by great wealth on a relatively puny business," later describing Warners, Paramount and RKO as "large corporate clusters." By citation of assets and theatre holdings he endeavored to demonstrate his point. The statistics he marshalled included the statement that the average number of features produced in the last four years totaled 340; that during the fiscal year 1934 and 1935 Warners had produced 60 or 16.2 per cent, Paramount 65 or 17.5 per cent and RKO 50 or 15.1 per cent, making a grand total of 175 or 48.8 per cent of the entire number available. Allowing for Metro and United Artists at Loew's here, Hardy's proffered conclusion was that Warners, with only two theatres, had available virtually 50 per cent of the first run product, while Fanchon & Marco with its five houses had to be content with approximately 25 per cent.

In the afternoon and during his presentation, Phillips hit back at Hardy's charges by computing the total feature output as between 600 and 700, produced by 20 or more companies of which eight were majors. Of this annual output he asserted the three defendant companies produced between 140 and 150.

Reed Speaks 90 Minutes

Reed spoke for 90 minutes, emphasizing highlights as he saw them with pointed finger. In considerable detail he outlined Warners' experience in the local theatre field and took the position that the company's entry into the first run field by leaseholds on the Orpheum and Shubert-Rialto were necessitated by the alleged monopoly created by the F. & M. interests. He contended Warners had to deal with this group or remain out of the city and asserted it had been the decision not to sell the plaintiff because of the continued "enmity" of Harry Koplar over a long period of years.

He described as another purpose of the present action an effort to compel Paramount and RKO to cancel their film deals with Warners in this city, thereby compelling a sale with F. & M. or "abandon the city." This and many other points were not new, having already been covered in the first case.

Large segments of Phillips' opening, as in the case of both Hardy and Reed, had been gone over in the indictment proceedings by William R. Gentry, special local counsel for Paramount. It was Phillips' first appearance in any court in about a year and the general consensus of opinion among film men present was that he did a thoroughly representative job.

Says Para. Within Rights

He argued Paramount was entirely within its rights in having canceled its franchise with Skouras Super Theatre Corp. on the ground the latter company had failed to pay its bills and had ultimately gone into receivership. This was by way of explaining how Paramount figured it had been entirely within its rights in subsequently selling its pictures to the landlords of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central and to Tom K. Smith, receiver for these properties. The Government allegation is that this franchise was one of the chief assets of the theatres. Paramount counsel asserted F. & M. were not "parties or privies to the franchise agreements" and that Skouras Super Theatres had had no power to assign the franchise elsewhere.

RKO Statement Next

Phillips constantly maintained Paramount had never attended any of the various bondholders' meetings at which reorganization plans for the three theatres had been discussed; that Paramount had never purchased any of the bonds nor had it made any threats or negotiated for theatres in St. Louis and that therefore it could not have been a party to any alleged conspiracy. He charged Paramount had been indicted on perjured testimony of Harry C. Arthur. Arthur, Marco Wolff and Jack Partington for the second time did not attend the sessions until a few minutes before court adjourned. Herman Starr arrived from New York today and appeared in the afternoon, as did Gradwell L. Sears, who came in from Chicago. Spyros Skouras, who will be the first important Government witness unless Hardy switches his strategy, reached here from New York but repaired to the Park Plaza, not the Federal Building. Another arrival was Gordon E. Youngman, New York staff lawyer for RKO, with a Florida tan. Ernest L. Wilkinson, F. & M. attorney from Washington, checked in for the first time, during the last half-hour.

The opening statement for RKO is yet to be heard. This is to be the first order of business on Friday. Following that will come arguments by counsel for the Ambassador and Missouri, who is seeking to quash subpoenaes calling for records sought by the Warners. Reed solicited a Saturday adjournment for personal reasons. Federal Judge Joseph West Molyneaux denied it, stating quickly he was for the elimination of as many delays as possible. Jacob M. Lashly, special RKO counsel, sought a recess next Wednesday, when another case in Springfield, Mo., will require his presence. This also was denied.

New York film men found some solace in this, but not much. There is considerable resentment making the rounds over the enforced stay here while arguments over legal points delay the testimony of witnesses. The general opinion is that Government counsel must have known of the improbability of calling witnesses for the first four or five days.

In the meantime, the ranks show every evidence of swelling in number. Harry M. Warner will testify again, according to Reed. George J. Schaefer and Neil F. Agnew likewise will return; not under subpoena but as Paramount witnesses.

Starr flew back to New York tonight, when he found he was not needed to testify at once. Frederick W. Wood was confined to his bed and is not expected in court tomorrow.

Some Jump!

St. Louis, Jan. 9.—"The scene now shifts from St. Louis to New York," intoned Russell Hardy in the middle of his opening statement for the Government here today.

Federal Judge Joseph West Molyneaux called a five-minute recess.

"It takes more time than that for that kind of a jump," remarked one observer.

Louisiana Women to Probe Bank Nights

Minnesota at $31,326

Through error it was stated that the gross at the Minnesota, Minneapolis, for the week ending Jan. 3 was $12,000. It should have been $31,326. The screen attraction was "The Bride Comes Home" and the stage show was headed by Burns and Allen.

Seek Adjustment of Matinee Time Fight

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 9.—Fred Wehrenberg, president of the M. P. T. O. of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, today was seeking a conference with Harry Arthur of F. & M. to solve the problem resulting from the extension of the matinee at the F. & M. Ambassador, Missouri and Fox from 6 to 7:30 P. M. Some exhibition contracts provide that matinee time and prices end at 6 P.M. and certain second and subsequent runs are considering refusing to play films where the matinee time has not been observed by first runs.

Arthur was invited to an exhibitor conference on the matter yesterday, attended by distributor representatives, but could not attend. Arthur shifted the time when outlying houses failed to eliminate exhibition practices to which he objected, claiming his original return to the 6 P. M. time was contingent on the elimination of the practices. Wehrenberg said Arthur did not give the exhibitors sufficient time to adjust the matter.

Spoor Set to Make 3-Dimension Films roles in a career going back nearly 20 years was in "Apostle of Vengeance" for Ince in 1917. He played in "Heart of the Hills" for First National in 1919 and in "The Count of Monte Cristo" for Fox in 1922. From there he went to M-G-M, where he appeared in a long series of films, both silent and talking.

Among the outstanding pictures were: "He Who Gets Slapped," "The Merry Widow" and "The Big Parade," in 1925; and later in "His Glorious Night," "The Hollywood Revue," "Redemption" and "The Big Parade" in sound, "Fast Workers" and "Queen Christina," in 1934. Last year he appeared in "The Captain Hates the Sea" for Columbia. In recent months he has been inactive. He had been married to Leatrice Joy, Ina Claire and Virginia Bruce, each marriage ending in divorce.

R. G. Canti Dead

LONDON, Jan. 9. — Dr. Ronald George Canti, a pioneer in making films for scientific research, notably on cancer, is dead here at the age of 52. He was one of the first to apply the film technique to microscopy for demonstrating changes in the bacteria in living tissues. He himself made the machines for this work, and showed his films before the Royal Society here and similar organizations in other countries. In 1929 and 1930 one of his films was shown before medical audiences in the United States.

Lambs Appeal Tax To Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Lambs Club in New York has appealed to the Supreme Court for a review of a decision of the Court of Claims, which last November held against the club in the assessment of a tax of $101,121. The brief, submitted by Harvey L. Rabbitt, local attorney, contends the Lambs is not a social, athletic or sporting organization within the meaning of the Internal Revenue laws, but serves as an actors' exchange or clearing house. It is, says the brief, "equivalent to an employment agency, a place where members meet producers and managers and sell their plays and procure employment."

Brandt Closing Deal On Italian Pictures

Arrangements by which Joe Brandt will handle a selected list of Italian productions for distribution here will be completed within the next few days, Brandt said yesterday. Preliminary arrangements were made during Brandt's recent trip to Italy.

Brandt, who returned from Hollywood Wednesday, said that he would arrange financing for one picture to be made by E. B. Derr and Charles Sullivan if an acceptable story could be acquired.

Reisman Predicts International Films

mum of dialogue and a maximum of action which lend themselves readily to superimposing and dubbing, musical pictures, operatic and popular, are very definitely box-office successes. As such pictures have proven equally successful locally, a greater percentage of suitable world product should come out of Hollywood this year than at any time in the past.

Conditions generally throughout foreign countries continue to show a definite upturn. If this progress continues, and we have every reason to believe that it will unless a major catastrophe occurs in Europe or Asia to upset present gains, more money will be available for entertainment. This in turn will result in increased theatre patronage but only for product in harmony with the ideology and tastes of our foreign audiences.

There will be competition from improved foreign product and from pictures produced to meet existing quota requirements in particular countries. We shall probably suffer from obstructive legislation in other quarters. Despite these handicaps, the world public has been educated to demand the artistic and technical perfection found primarily in Hollywood-produced pictures, and American pictures will, for this reason, continue to dominate the world market in 1936 provided our producers continue to stress the international angle in their forthcoming product.

Houses Will Drop Games If Lottery

furthermore, only one summons will be issued against the operator of each type of giveaway so that a speedy test of the legality of all cash games now in use may be had. Any game then held by the courts to be a lottery will be abandoned by the member theatres in the Bronx, it was said.

An appeal of a $250 fine imposed on the Tremont recently is pending for the operation of Dough Nite and this game will not necessarily be banned by I. T. O. A. houses until the appeal is decided. Foley met with representatives of I. T. O. A. and major metropolitan circuits on Tuesday and warned against continuance of the cash giveaways in Bronx theatres.

F. & M. Shows Gain In Chicago Houses

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Fanchon & Marco units will be headlined in three local theatres here the week of Feb. 14. Al Pearce and his gang will be at the Palace, Olsen & Johnson at the Uptown and Jackie Coogan and Betty Grable in their "Hollywood Secrets" show at the Oriental.

F. & M. is now supplying 100 per cent of the stage talent for all RKO theatres in Chicago in connection with the RKO first run films. F. & M. talent is also featured in many of the B. & K. situations and will shortly supply all talent for that circuit, according to John A. Schultz of the F. & M. office here.

Northwest Has Hope for Gain Close to '29

two weeks and more for certain films are common, and will become more general during the coming season, Johnson predicts.

Another satisfactory picture is presented by John Danz and Roy Cooper, general manager of the Danz circuit. These houses, under the name of Sterling Chain Theatres, Inc., operate on a second run basis in the downtown area and also in the neighborhood districts of Seattle. Their 1935 business was the best in the company's history, they report, and they predict that 1936 will surpass the year just ended by at least 15 per cent.

Exhibitors in smaller towns are feeling the effects of better conditions, according to exchange managers. These men, report a much better feeling among exhibitors as a result of improved general conditions.

Wide Business Progress

Here are a few facts pertaining to the territory, particularly Seattle and the state of Washington, that indicate a steady improvement in 1936:

Washington farmers in 1935 increased their total revenues by more than $7,000,000.

Salmon packers ended the year with substantial price increases that will continue into 1936.

Seattle real estate values made a sharp rebound from former low levels and real estate bonds are now making recoveries.

The lumber industry is entering 1936 with a rush of orders, with shingle manufacturers expecting the biggest volume since the post-war building boom.

Volume of goods moving over Seattle docks in 1935 was greater by 500,000 tons than the previous year. A similar increase is expected in 1936.

Bank earnings showed substantial recoveries in 1935, and leading bankers of the territory predict an increase of 10 to 15 per cent in transactions during 1936.

Retail sales volumes are expected to reach 1929 levels during the present year, according to leading store executives.

Northwest car loadings continue to increase, and it is predicted that the percentage of gain during the first quarter of 1936 over the comparable quarter of 1935 will exceed that of any other section of the nation.

With these facts in mind and with many films better than ever before, it is felt locally that the hopes and expectations for 1936 are based on a foundation of fact.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Rose Marie"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9.—Hunt Stromberg's production and W. S. Van Dyke's direction have turned this popular operetta into a picture of smash hit calibre. The story is ideally suited for the talents of Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald and unfolds on the screen as a gripping romance with the musical interludes spotted for their maximum entertainment advantage. Though the screen play differs from the stage version, Frances Goodrich, Albert Hackett and Alice Duer Miller, the adapters, have used the wider scope of the medium to concentrate on the main theme and paint their characterizations with swift, sure strokes.

The plot concerns the efforts of Miss MacDonald, an operatic diva, to reach the side of her brother, James Stewart, who is a fugitive from justice hunted by Eddy, a Northwest mountie. Summoned at the close of a "Romeo and Juliet" performance, she leaves for the woods guided by George Regas. Deserted by Regas, she is saved from drowning by Eddy, who knows her identity and errand. Eddy, placing duty above everything, arrests Stewart, which separates the lovers, who are not reunited until Miss MacDonald has collapsed during a performance of "Tosca" and has returned to the woods to recuperate. Embellishing this outline, bits of "Romeo and Juliet," "Tosca" and an Indian dance ceremony are logically introduced as well as a north woods cabaret sequence in which Gilda Grey does a specialty. Two new numbers by Herbert Stothart and Gus Kahn augment the original Friml-Hammerstein score, but "The Indian Love Call" remains as the outstanding number and is introduced several times to aid the plot development.

Supporting performances are capably given by Reginald Owen, Una O'Connor, Alan Mowbray, and Allan Jones, whose appearance as Miss MacDonald's operatic leading man, seems all too brief.

With definite appeal for all, the picture should draw even those who are not confirmed movie-goers.

Production Code Seal No. 1,871. Running time, 108 minutes. "G."

"Sylvia Scarlett," which opened at the Radio City Music Hall yesterday morning, was reviewed on Jan. 3.

"Riffraff," which was previewed by wire from Hollywood on Dec. 20, opens this morning at the Capitol.

"The Ghost Goes West," last night's preview at the Rivoli, was reviewed by cable from London on Dec. 18.

"Rose of the Rancho," now current at the Paramount, was reviewed on Jan. 4.

"The Crime of Dr. Crespi," this morning's opener at the Rialto, was reviewed on Sept. 24.

Ohio License Forms Encounter Setback

COLUMBUS, Jan. 9.—Despite the fact that the new admission tax law, which became effective Dec. 20, requires the licensing of all places of amusement where the three per cent impost is assessable, the Ohio Tax Commission will not have the licenses ready before the end of January.

Three forms of license will be issued. The itinerary forms will be for traveling shows; the temporary forms for single entertainments, or single series not extending longer than 10 days, and the permanent forms for regularly established theatres, dance halls, amusement parks, golf courses and swimming pools.

The fee for each type of license will be $1.

Charlotte Club Resumes

CHARLOTTE, Jan. 9.—The Jesters Club has resumed its winter meetings with a luncheon. Entertainment was provided by Helen Poole's dancing studio, John M. McAllister (Philco Phil) and Clarence Etters. City Traffic Manager D. E. Skinner spoke. The club was active during the holidays in aiding the poor families in the city.

Ontario Ticket Tax Reaches $1,743,420

TORONTO, Jan. 9.—The Ontario government profited nicely from the amusements tax, launched last June, despite several concessions subsequently granted when exhibitors raised a prolonged outcry.

A year-end report showed that for the nine months ending Dec. 31, the collections were $1,743,420 as compared with only $555,460 for the same nine months of 1934.

The fiscal year does not terminate until March 31 and the budget estimate on the amusement levy for the whole 12 months was $937,000, thus the "expectancy" has been almost doubled with three more months to go. The fiscal year of 1934-5 saw an amusements tax take of $750,000.

Birmingham Shows Stop

BIRMINGHAM, Jan. 9. — Birmingham's roadshow season has come to an abrupt stop.

"Life Begins at 8:40" and "The Student Prince" have stopped. It is understood the companies of Katharine Cornell and Eva LaGallienne will not come here.

Only one show has been profitable.

Short Subjects

"Somewhere in Dreamland"

(Paramount)

There are some new departures in handling color in this cartoon. Using the ordinary method of photographing drawings, this effort goes on to the construction and blending of sets, which, richly colored and imaginatively presented, lend a novel note.

The story has a poor boy and girl enduring the hardships of poverty until they are asleep. Slumber takes them to a land of child's delight where there are all the sweets and entertainment they could desire. They awake back in their poor home, but kind tradespeople have greatly improved it. This is a delightful short that will please children and grownups alike. Production Code Seal, No. 0587. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"The Game of Jai-Alai"

Portraying the fast action of the Mexican game from its inception to the modern way it is played, this is an interesting exhibition of something that is new to most audiences. It begins with a comic take-off and covering technique, and the development of the bat used in play, it winds up with a professional game in Mexico City. Production Code Seal, No. 0818. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

Arthur Quinn Advanced

NORFOLK DOWNS, Mass., Jan. 9.—Arthur Quinn has been named manager of the Regent here which has become subsequent run to the Wollaston, another M. P. house, in Wollaston. Quinn was formerly assistant manager at the Strand in Dorchester.

H. L. Clarke Heard By Sabath Probers

Harley L. Clarke, former head of Fox Film Corp., was questioned yesterday by counsel for the Sabath Congressional Committee for the investigation of real estate reorganizations in connection with the recent reorganization of General Theatres Equipment Co. The examination of Clarke will be resumed Monday in a continuation of the closed hearings which have been conducted by the committee for the past month.

Murray W. Garsson, counsel for the committee, said that no arrangements had been made yet for the resumption of open hearings due to the attendance of members of the committee at sessions of Congress.

Jack L. Warner Is Married to Ann Page

It is understood the couple will spend a short honeymoon in Palm Beach, and then will go to the Warner home at Beverly Hills.

Rev. Dr. Leonard Schwartz officiated. Regina Crewe was matron of honor and her husband, Herbert Knight Cruikshank, was best man. The couple attended a reception at the Cruikshank home.

Mystery Trip of Arthur, Wolff, Partington Stirs Speculation

St. Louis, Jan. 10.—A mysterious trip to New York and return of Harry C. Arthur, Jack Partington and Marco Wolff is stirring speculation among some of those attending the equity proceedings here against Warners, Paramount and RKO.

It is reported a sudden telephone call hurried them east by air Monday night only a handful of hours after they arrived under subpoena as witnesses for the Government. Arthur and Wolff returned on Thursday as the resumed session on that day was drawing to a close. Partington may have come with them, but if so it was not in evidence around the Federal Court building.

During recesses today two additional interesting incidents took place in the corridor. One was a short but intense conversation between Arthur and Spyros Skouras, followed shortly thereafter by another engrossing talk between Arthur and William T. Powers, attorney for Skouras.

While Russell Hardy is keeping other film men cooling their heels and restlessly awaiting call to the witness box, Arthur, Partington and Wolff either had no trouble or sufficient reason for getting temporary releases from the Government attorney.

Dysart Takes Stand First At St. Louis

Hardy Gains Exclusion Of Witnesses

By RED KANN

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 10.—After three days of arguments over preliminary motions and the opening statements of various counsel, the Government late this afternoon got going on its equity proceedings against Warners, Paramount and RKO, when Thomas N. Dysart, president of the Chamber of Commerce, took the stand as the first witness. The defendant companies are combatting a conspiracy in a restraint of trade charge.

As the day started Russell Hardy, Government attorney, moved for the exclusion of witnesses during the taking of testimony on the ground that some of the leading Government witnesses in the criminal trial had been accused of lack of veracity and perjury. In view of this he argued against witnesses at large remaining in the courtroom while others were either testifying or under cross-examination.

Ex-Senator James A. Reed for Warners, and George S. Leisure for RKO immediately objected. It seemed they had the convenience of the wit-

The theatre and Broadway will be represented by George Jessel, Mark Hellinger, Ed Sullivan and Harry Hershfield.

Circuit Moves Are Marked in West, Midwest clude Herbert Ellisburg, James Booth, Edward Nikodem, Thomas Hungerford, Ralph Smith and Charles Shapiro.

The Northcenter has been moved up a week and will play pictures on "C" time. This puts the house in the same rating with the Devon. Since Essaness has first booking of U. A. product on the Chicago North Side many of the circuit's houses have been advanced to higher admissions and rating in the clearance schedules. B. & K. did not buy any U. A. product for this season, except in non-competitive spots.

Another shift in the Chicago territory is the reopening of the Grove, Elgin, Ill., by Jules J. Rubens for Great States. The house had been dark for seven years.

St. Louis Territory Active

Changes also have been numerous of late in the St. Louis territory. Remodeling and reopening has included the Kirkwood, Kirkwood, Mo.; Lyric, Casey, Ill.; Ritz, Ironton, Mo.; Avenue, East St. Louis, Ill.; Princess, Meredosis, Ill.; Gem, Winfield, Mo. Transfers in this territory include: Artcraft, Ashland, Ill., from Hall & Hart to D. E. Wilson; Echo, Des Plaines, Ill., from Ben Conney to H. Balaban; Wilmington, Wilmington, Ill., to F. W. Anderson; Rialto, Smithville, Mo., from Edna Hartman to H. N. Slater, and Gem, New London, Mo., from I. J. Gardner to C. A. Greenles, Jr.

In the Kansas City territory new sound and projection equipment have been installed at the Family, Kirksville, Mo., by Frank Anderson; the De Soto, De Soto, Kan., by W. W. Weldon, and new seats have been put in by Harry Musgrave at Minneapolis, Kan. George Nescher is building a new house at Valley Falls, Kan. Sam Sosna and Louis Sosna have leased the Empress at Moberly, Mo. Elmer Bills, whose Lyric at Salisbury, Mo., was burned recently, is putting on shows temporarily at the Opera House. He will rebuild.

Many Reopenings Slated

At Cook, Neb., John L. Zoz is soon to reopen the re-equipped Cook. At Plattsmouth, Neb., N. F. Westerlund has taken over the Opera House and has reopened it as the Cass after renovations and re-equipment. In Omaha the A. L. Snider circuit has reopened the Victoria after repairing fire damage in the booth.

Managerial shifts in the Intermountain Division of F. W. C. have been numerous. Otto Brown, resigned, has been replaced at the Fox, McCook, Neb., by John Taylor. Edward Voorhies has been shifted from the Coronado, Las Vegas, N. M., to the Strand, Denver. Ben Benda gets the Coronado. Si Sanders has been moved from the Strand, Rawlins, Col., to the Denver poster department. Harold Jones goes to Nampa, Idaho, from the Babcock, Billings, Mont., to manage the Majestic and Adelaide, which have been leased by Fox Intermountain.

nesses in mind. Judge Joseph West Molyneaux, following his practice in previous instances, however, granted the Government's request.

Exceptions sought by defense counsel followed. Reed obtained exemptions for Abel Cary Thomas, who will testify for Warners later; Sam B. Jeffries, special local counsel, who will likewise take the stand as the case progresses and Miles Albean, member of the Warner home office legal staff. Leisure was granted the same courtesy on behalf of Gordon E. Youngman of RKO's New York legal battery and an assistant in this case. He is another slated to take the stand for his company. Louis Phillips, Paramount home office counsel, obtained the identical privilege for Austin C. Keough, who is expected to return some time next week.

Exempt Trade Press

Freedom of the trade press was temporarily jeopardized. Having made no distinctions in his sweeping request, three trade paper men found themselves embraced in the court's ruling on Hardy's move. One was William Ornstein of MOTION PICTURE DAILY; the second was DAVID F. BARRETT of St. Louis and the third this correspondent. Ornstein petitioned Reed to intervene on behalf of the group.

Upon bringing the circumstance to the attention of the court, Judge Molyneaux instantly exempted the three. Later the court observed it would have been unfair to have barred them.

A motion argued at length by Ernest L. Wilkinson, attorney for the Eden Theatre Co., which operates the Fox, and William O'Hara, representing the St. Louis Ambassador Theatre Co., Inc., and St. Louis Missouri Theatre Co., to quash subpoenaes for various corporate records and leases sought by Warners was denied by the court, which declared it an expediency to have available all documents which may have a bearing on the admissibility of evidence.

Wood Wins Point

Frederick H. Wood, still suffering from his attack of the grippe, entered the proceedings for the first time in arguing for the production of these records. He won the point for his clients, Warners.

Today's session was the longest. It started as usual at 10 o'clock, resuming at two and terminating at 5:10 P. M. Jacob M. Lashly, RKO special counsel, and the only one representing the defendants who did not get an opportunity to make his opening statement on Thursday, today took eighty minutes to do that very thing. In essentials, his opening followed along the general lines of Paramount's.

Dysart, chairman of the bondholders' committee for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, testified for about two hours. He was quizzed, and explained various leasing proposals and reorganization plans submitted to him at various times by Allen L. Snyder, Lawrence Stern & Co. of Chicago, acting for the Skouras Brothers, and Clarence M. Turley and Warner, who submitted schemes for reorganization on three different occasions.

Hardy shifted his program in calling Dysart first. The anticipation had been that Spyros Skouras would be the initial important witness for the Government after local exchange managers had testified about the interstate commerce aspects of distribution. Even the branch managers have not been called, although dutifully they again appeared on deck today.

With the exclusion of most witnesses this afternoon and the introduction in testimony of proposed plans for the three theatres, attendance fell to a new low. The gallery dwindled steadily.

As the end of the session neared a tally disclosed seven spectators, four of whom were non-participating lawyers. Legal talent on the active side of the rail totaled 16.

Reed, as on Thursday, again sought a recess tomorrow. Judge Molyneaux, reiterating his desire to speed the hearing, determined to hold court until noon Saturday, when Dysart resumes.

On the Lighter Side

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 10.—NED E. DEPINET, expected sooner, has not arrived, but is due here early next week. Ditto for Colonel "BILL" MALLARD, head of RKO's home office legal staff.

Although Wednesday was marked by a recess, it was no holiday for the defense counsel. They were kept on the go turning over subpoenaed records to the Government and preparing at large for future developments.

FREDERICK H. WOOD'S arrival Wednesday eliminated the necessity for pinch hitting on anyone's part, including LOUIS PHILLIPS who continues to maintain his 100 per cent batting average for Paramount.

AUSTIN C. KEOUGH has gone east, but is expected to return.

DWIGHT L. SAVAGE, one of the Government counsel in the unsuccessful criminal trial, passed through en route to Tyler, Tex., on Federal business not related to the film industry. He dropped in on RUSSELL HARDY and his staff between trains.

RALPH C. LIBEAU, Paramount district manager in this area, was here for a two-day conference with MAURICE SCHWEITZER, the company's local manager, but had no time to visit the courtroom as he did in the misdemeanor trial.

GEORGE S. LEISURE, RALSTON IRVINE, RUSSELL DOOR and JOHN HOLLAND, who comprise the RKO legal fraternity here, have moved from the Chase to the adjacent Park Plaza where the New York contingent is stopping. IRVINE is a member of LEISURE'S Washington office and DOOR and HOLLAND of his New York office.

CRESSON E. SMITH'S mail from New York was virtually the only batch to get through, what with fog and rain here. "Merely RKO efficiency," he remarked.

ERNEST WILKINSON, Washington lawyer who represented F. & M. in the criminal trial, is not here for the civil proceedings.

SAM DEMBOW, effete Easterner, has solved the food problem. RENE, the Cuban head waiter in The Merry-Go-Round of the Park Plaza, has been taken into camp with gastronomical results de luxe.

Diligent research has unearthed the existence here of a subsidiary of the Yost Amusement Co. of New Orleans. This confirms the reported expansion of this circuit north.

An Anniversary

St. Louis, Jan. 10.—Saturday will mark the first anniversary of the handing down of the criminal indictments which subsequently led into the trial of Warners, Paramount, RKO and various of their executives, including Harry M. Warner, Abel Cary Thomas, Herman Starr, Gradwell L. Sears, Ned E. Depinet and George J. Schaefer. Acquitted on this charge, the three companies are still in St. Louis, this time fighting civil proceedings, predicated on the same charge.

Browne, Nick to Miami

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10. — George Browne and John P. Nick, I. A. T. S. E. executives, leave here for Miami tomorrow, to attend the I. A. meet. Browne's attitude toward first cameramen joining the I. A. continutes pessimistic, although cameramen are reported anxious to join. Browne's stand in closing the doors to them is reported due to the group's opposition to the I. A. during the union's fight for studio jurisdiction.

U. A. Dickering for European Pictures

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Continuing the policy so successfully followed in U. K., United Artists is on the point of completing contracts with producers in the chief Continental countries which will give them native product to distribute in all these markets.

In Paris Murray Silverstone has made a deal with Bernard Natan and another with new interests backed by the Havas news agency. Similar contracts will give U. A. product in Spain, Czechoslovakia, Italy and Belgium. These subjects will be for native release.

Executives of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n met editors of the newsreels here to discuss means of controlling the transmission of news items by television. No statement was issued, but it is believed agreement was reached on the basis that no cooperation will be given to the British Broadcasting Corp. for the transmission of newsreel items until a given period after release. Experimental television broadcasts will begin in a short time.

Birmingham Looks For 15-20% Gains

BIRMINGHAM, Jan. 10.—The best estimates of local exhibitors is that business here will be 15 to 20 per cent better in 1936 than for last year. They base this partly on the comeback of the durable goods industries increasing the demand for steel and iron which the Birmingham district produces. Having been harder hit than many cities for several years, Birmingham is now due for a season of prosperity, it is agreed.

Admissions which dropped to a new low are now on the upswing, according to N. H. Waters of the N. H. Waters Enterprises. He says that prices in some cases had already been increased 25 per cent and that this naturally has helped. However, he pointed out that exhibitors are having to pay more for films. He said unusually cold weather has hurt business for the past month.

Frank Merritt, operating four theatres, wondered whether producers would be able to turn out pictures as fine as those of 1935 and he said this would affect business. His houses got the breaks on some of the top-notchers the past year.

All general trade indices point upward. Bank clearings are ahead of anything since 1929. Christmas retail sales were 18 per cent ahead of the preceding year. Automobile sales are 100 per cent ahead. The people have more money and the amusement world is sure to draw its share of every dollar spent.

Bay State Deposits Up

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—An increase of over $98,000,000 in deposits of 484 state banks in Massachusetts, not including credit unions, has been reported by Bank Commissioner Henry H. Pierce for the past year.

The total jumped in 1935 to $3,231,000,000. Savings bank deposits increased to $2,087,000,000. Credit unions accounted for another $12,000,000. Theatremen regard these figures as proof of improved conditions.

Schlesinger Expands

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10.—Leon Schlesinger has augmented his animating staff for "Loonie Toons" and "Merrie Melodies" with another unit of 25 animators. Fred Avery will supervise.

Schlesinger now has 100 animators turning out cartoons for Warner release.

Odlum Loses Appeal Against Questioning

The appellate division yesterday affirmed an order of the N. Y. Supreme Court directing Floyd B. Odlum and other officers and directors of the Atlas Corp. to submit to oral examination in advance of trial of a stockholder's suit which attacked the right of the company to participate in the underwriting of Paramount securities.

The action was brought by William F. Walsh, an attorney and a stockholder in Atlas. Walsh charged that the Paramount underwriting was "speculative" and not in line with the investment purposes for which Atlas was formed. Walsh's attorney said that the examination of the Atlas officials would be begun within the next few days unless the defendants exercised their right to take a further appeal on the Supreme Court's order to the Court of Appeals.

Seeks Injunction Against Bank Night

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—An application for an injunction against Bank Night in New England was filed in District Court here today by B. G. Film Co., headed by Meyer Gruber and Harry Bloomberg. This is the latest move in the infringement suit brought by Affiliated Distributors, Inc., against Parlay and Cash Night.

Hearing is set for Monday, when, according to Bloomberg, the defendant in the action that seeks to prohibit the operation of Cash Night and transfer the profits to Bank Night will attempt to stop Bank Night from publishing warnings that Cash Night is an infringement and its users liable to prosecution.

Trans-Lux Not Party To Suit, States SEC

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—A suit filed in N. Y. Federal Court against Torr & Co. and various individuals over transactions in Trans-Lux Daylight Screen Corp. stock by the Securities and Exchange Commission does not in any way involve the stock, a statement by the commission indicates.

The commission was prompted to issue a statement as a result of numerous inquiries from stockholders.

"The commission wishes to emphasize the fact that neither the Trans-Lux Daylight Pictures Screen Corp. nor its management is a defendant in this suit," the statement concludes.

Studios, Technical Men Act on Awards

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10.—Studio heads, technical department heads and equipment manufacturing companies have been requested to submit nominations for the scientific or technical award by the Academy.

Nominations must be for a device, method, formula, discovery or invention of outstanding value which has been actually employed in production during 1935.

Carl Dreher is chairman of the board of judges.

Martin Jones has purchased the Vanderbilt, 148 West 48th St., at a price said to be in excess of $300,000. Jones is producer of "Mulatto," now running at the Vanderbilt.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Strike Me Pink"

(Goldwyn-U. A.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10.—Eddie Cantor's latest effort combines horseplay, slapstick, straight comedy, beautiful girls, dancing and photography that provide smash entertainment.

Cantor is cast as a meek campus tailor who acuires courage from a correspondence school course and goes on to manage an amusement park. Complications are provided by the efforts of Brian Donlevy as head of a gambling ring, to install slot machines at the park. The story thread is used mostly to motivate an exciting chase which climaxes and ends the picture.

In this chase Cantor and Parkyakarkus are first pursued on a roller coaster and then in a captive balloon, with full comedy and dramatic suspense derived from the apparent danger of falling from great heights. Prior to the chase highlight comedy is provided in a sequence in which Clyde Hager does a bit as a barker and a sequence where Cantor and Sidney H. Fields play a ghostly poker game.

A slight love theme is carried on by Sally Eilers, who wins the comedian at the finish, and Ethel Merman, whom Cantor woos first. The musical numbers are well spotted and photographed with unusual beauty, making the dance routine seem new. Miss Merman's first number, "High and Low," is made particularly effective by unusual camera angles and Richard Day's art direction.

The screen play by Frank Butler, Walter De Leon and Francis Martin, from the Clarence Budington Kelland novel, occasionally crossed the border of strict good taste in dialogue and situation, but is a capable job for the most part. Supporting performances by Gordon Jones, William Frawley and Helen Lowell seemed best in the large cast.

The production is on a lavish scale and should click in all situations.

Looking 'em Over

"The Invisible Ray"

(Universal)

Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi in this picture delve into the mysteries of advanced science. Karloff's discovery of an invisible ray, which permits him to look far back into time, and find the source of a new all-powerful radium "X," is the motivating theme of the film. When the element takes its toll of his mentality, and he murderously pursues those who, he believes, wronged him, the film takes on its active phase. Blended is romance, action, murder, but without mystery for the audience, and the eventual sacrifice of her son by a mother, for the good of others, against a background which moves from an elaborate, ultra-scientific laboratory, to the wilds of Africa, then to Paris. On the whole the film is good entertainment, interest-holding and salable, and largely without the "horror" theme which has featured many of the films of Karloff and Lugosi.

Frances Drake plays Karloff's wife; Frank Lawton, a young explorer with whom she falls in love, and Walter Kingsford, Beulah Bondi, Violet Kemble Cooper and Nydia Westman are in chief supporting roles. Lambert Hillyer directed from a story by Howard Higgin and Douglas Hodges and the screen play by John Calton.

Karloff invites Lugosi, scientist, to see his ray. It shows the location in Africa of the new element. Karloff, leaving the expedition there, finds the element, is poisoned by it, his touch causing death. Lugosi prepares an antidote for him which Karloff must use constantly. When his wife leaves with Lawton and Lugosi uses the element in healing, Karloff, now mentally affected, plans revenge. He arranges his own "death," then kills three of the six he calls his enemies and then Lugosi. He is about to kill his wife when his mother appears, smashes his needed antidote, and causes his death.

St. Louis on Single Feature Basis Now

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 10.—This city, a stronghold of double features, is on a single feature basis this week, at least insofar as its downtown first runs are concerned. The change, a temporary one, probably will be continued next week. Reported as the reason is a current shortage of product.

Currently, Loew's is playing "A Tale of Two Cities"; the Fox, "Magnificent Obsession"; the Ambassador, "Paddy O'Day" with Henry Armetta heading the stage show; the Shubert, "The Bride Comes Home," and the Orpheum, "I Dream Too Much." The second run Missouri is playing "Thanks a Million" with six acts headed by Louise Beavers, colored player, who appeared in "Imitation of Life."

The Fox on Saturday inaugurates Bank Night and will hold it each succeeding Saturday thereafter.

Stage Shows Out of Most Fox Theatres

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 10.—Aside from two or three situations, stage shows are out of all Fox affiliated and controlled theatres with the switch of the Warfield, San Francisco, to straight sound, E. L. Alperson, eastern film buyer for National Theatres, declared today.

The shift in San Francisco went into effect early in the week.

Testimony of Dysart Ended At St. Louis

First Witness Stresses Reorganizing Plans

By RED KANN

St. Louis, Jan. 12.—The Government on Saturday completed the direct examination of Thomas N. Dysart, its first witness, and cross-examination by ex-Senator James A. Reed, co-counsel for Warners, began, in a two-hour session lacking in interest and devoid of new angles.

After one hour and 15 minutes, Russell Hardy, Government attorney, turned the witness over to the defense.

The cross-examination, conducted by Reed from his chair with the consent of Judge Joseph West Molyneaux,

Kay Francis received first honorable mention for her part in Warners' "I Found Stella Parrish" and Eddie Quillan got second mention for "Mutiny on the Bounty."

The Screen Writers' Guild voted "Mutiny on the Bounty" the best screen play of December. Talbot Jennings, Jules Furthman and Carey Wilson did the adaptation. "So Red the Rose" received first honorable mention with the honors going to Laurence Stallings, Maxwell Anderson and Edward Justus Mayer. Joel Sayre and John Twist received second mention for "Annie Oakley."

Sennwald, "Times" Film Critic, Dies

Andre David Sennwald, 28, film critic of the New York Times, died early Sunday of illuminating gas poisoning, shortly before the spark-ignited gas wrecked his penthouse apartment at 670 West End Ave.

Sennwald was educated at N. Y. U. and Columbia, joining the Times shortly after graduation in 1930. The funeral will be held at 11 A. M. tomorrow from Campbell's Funeral Church. Burial will be in Ferncliff Cemetary, Westchester. He is survived by his widow, his parents and three brothers.

Year's Start Tips Grosses To New High of $1,918,729

New Year's week was a tonic—in spots a sensational tonic that more than doubled the previous week's grosses—among all the 30 key spots reporting to Motion Picture Daily, except St. Paul. Bad weather there explained the lethargy.

The total take for the 30 cities was $1,918,729. For the Christmas week it was $1,228,199.

The New Year total is by far the highest for the current season which began in September. It tops the previous high mark of $1,766,910, set up the first week in December, by $151,819.

Some of the increases over Christmas week were remarkable. In New York the New Year's take was $423,000. For the previous week is was $186,200. Boston, Chicago, Denver, Lincoln, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh (where the new Sunday opening law was a help), Providence and Washington also showed striking gains.

Kentuckians Study Gains; Expect More

Louisville, Jan. 12.—The consensus of opinion among theatre and exchangemen in the Louisville and Kentucky territory is that 1936 will bring a definite rise in grosses. The public interest has quickened with increased payrolls and consequently has more money to spend for amusements, they agree.

Farmers are getting higher prices for tobacco and thousands in and around Louisville are employed in tobacco processing and cigarette manufacturing by local factories. During 1935, the report of the Louisville Industrial Foundation shows that 18 new manufactories were established, while 61 older plants improved and expanded their facilities.

Sixty-nine conventions with a potential drawing power of 31,000, are

Missouri Sales Tax Returns Show Gains

Kansas City, Jan. 12.—Fifty-five thousand Missouri retailers—including theatres—which is 3,873 more than in October, paid $915,300 under the one per cent sales tax during November, compared with $866,440 the preceding month. A third of it goes to the school fund, the remainder to general revenue. Sales tax returns are expected to exceed $1,000,000 for December.

The legislature appropriated $2,500,000 at the last session for old age pensions, part to come from the sales tax. A limit of $30 a month was placed on the amount going to pensioners. Recommendations in the state auditor's office range from $7 to $12 a month.

No Hope Seen For New Move On Regulation

Plans for voluntary advancement by the industry of any method of self-regulation are regarded in responsible exhibitor and distributor quarters as being definitely stalemated at this time and dependent for revival on either the establishment of legal precedents, the passage of enabling Federal legislation, recurrence of a trade emergency, or cooperation by distributors, in the opinion of these authorities.

Industry apathy on the subject in the face of a number of efforts made since the demise of the NRA to advance a plan of self-regulation has become self-evident enough in recent months to lead erstwhile champions of the move to question, even, whether a regulatory code is needed by the industry. Even the definite plan proposed by M.P.T.O.A. for local self-regulation through exhibitor and distributor representatives delegated with sufficient authority to settle disputes within their own territories has met with no response from distributors and only indifferent cooperation from exhibitors, it is pointed out.

Open Houses May Go Over 15,000 Mark

Big Increase Expected in Film Board Report

Indications that the total number of theatres in operation in the U. S. at the end of 1935 might pass the 15,000 mark are contained in the annual reports of the Film Boards of Trade which are now being compiled by the M.P.P.D.A., but will not be completed much before the end of the week.

The nearly complete reports now on hand definitely reveal that the total of 14,552 theatres which were open on Jan. 1, 1935, will be increased by more than 400 theatres which have been opened during the year.

The grand total of theatres a year ago, both open and closed, was 18,263. This number is not expected to reflect as great a change as that in the number of open theatres alone, as the increase in the latter was due largely to the remodeling and reopening of old theatres rather than to new construction. Seating capacity of the open theatres may pass the 10,000,000 mark, according to present indications of the incomplete Film Board reports.

Virtual extinction of the silent theatre is also expected to be revealed in the report. There were only 51 silent theatres open in the U. S. a year ago and this number will show a further decrease during 1935, it is anticipated.

Hearing Postponed On Madison Houses

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 12.—Hearing in the Beecroft Building Co. reorganization was postponed in Federal court this week when Judge Patrick T. Stone announced that the second bondholders' protective committee, appointed by the court, had not completed its recommendations.

Counsel representing the first voluntary bondholders' committee announced that negotiations are in progress for a new lease on the Orpheum, Strand and Parkway on terms which, it was declared, will be more advantageous than the present arrangement with the Ashley Theatres Co. Saxe Amusement Management, Inc., Milwaukee, has indicated that it is willing to operate the houses.

Check Matinee Time Change in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 12.—Following a conference with Harry C. Arthur, operator of the Ambassador, Missouri and Fox here, a committee representing the M. P. T. O. of Southern Illinois agreed to check up on independent theatres alleged to be moving up their matinee time in accordance with an agreement reached last fall. The committee consists of Fred Wehrenberg and the Mandell brothers. Following the survey they will again confer with Arthur in an effort to induce his return to the 6 o'clock matinee change replacing the 7:30 shift now in effect. At the moment Arthur is firm for the later hour change.

The Missouri and Fox have inaugurated Bank Night and the Ambassador begins the giveaway tomorrow.

Bank Night Termed As Legal in Racine

RACINE, Wis., Jan. 12.—Indications that attempts to ban Bank Night at several local houses here will be unsuccessful is seen in an opinion from the district attorney's office which declared that the plan is legal where all are afforded the same chance to participate in the cash award, irrespective of whether they purchase a ticket to the theatre.

Both the Rialto and Capitol here are featuring Bank Night weekly, while at least four other houses, including the Uptown, Granada, Crown and Mainstreet, are offering giveaways in the form of the gift ware. The latter two houses advertise free pop corn balls, candy and toys for the kiddies attending Sunday matinees.

Grants Examination In Master Art Suit

Justice Bernard L. Shientag in N. Y. Supreme Court has set Jan. 16-17 as the dates for examination before trial of Herman Robbins of National Screen Service and Charles L. Casanave of American Display Co., on petition of Master Art Products, as part of Master Art's suit for an injunction, alleging violation of an agreement that American Display would not engage in the lobby display business for five years from 1932.

The complaint says that National Screen has financed American Display in that business, the latter being in competition with Master Art. The court at the same time denied a defense request for examination of the books of Master Art.

scheduled here for 1936, it was announced by G. W. Huey, of the Louisville Convention and Publicity League. Plans have been under way for several months to make the second annual Derby Festival Week of national interest. Heretofore, Louisville's biggest moment has been the Kentucky Derby with visitors coming to the city from all points of the compass. Their stay was short, in most instances visitors arriving by train, automobile, boat, and airplane only a few hours before the big race and departing for home immediately after the winner was made known. Derby Festival Week is being designed to offer the visitor a full week of entertainment with each day crowded by special events. Theatres profit from the throng of visitors and are lending their co-operation to make Derby Festival Week a success.

Distillers Approach Peak

Kentucky's distilling industry has attained a production nearly equal to its peak of pre-prohibition days with 44 firms operating 48 distilling plants at the close of the year. Leaders of that industry plan a continuance of expansion during 1936, although some plans are being held in abeyance pending adoption by the legislature, which meets this month, of a new liquor control law as a result of the repeal of the state prohibition amendment at the November election. Actual employment in distilling plants alone is placed at 5,000 for Kentucky, not including allied industries.

Equipment Dealers Optimistic

New theatre construction in Louisville and Kentucky has been practically at a standstill and 1936 probably will not bring any change in this situation. While all downtown theatres are operating with but one exception, no plans for new enterprises have been announced. General improvement has been made in sound and projection equipment and equipment dealers report a 50 per cent increase in volume of business over 1934. They confidently predict that 1936 will also bring a substantial increase over 1935 and are expanding their quarters and staffs to take care of the increased trade.

From conversations with various theatre managers, it is gathered that 1936 is looked upon as a "boom" year for the exhibitor. They state as their opinion that more money is being put into circulation and that, since picturegoers are going to get their share, the exhibitor, in turn, will get his.

All exhibitors report a definite improvement in the quality of the product now coming out.

dealt with various meetings held in connection with Warner proposals of re-organization for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. Reed's line of questioning concentrated on the establishment of the assertion that on Sept. 18, 1933, Warners had come to a definite agreement with the bondholders' committee on a reorganization plan for these three theatre properties except for three points.

One of the three unsettled points was the length of time during which the new bonds were to be non-cumulative. Warners, Dysart testified, wanted a three-year term and the bondholders favored a shorter period. The second concerned control of the voting trust. The witness said Warners wanted four of seven and the bondholders likewise. The third point concerned the price Warners were to pay for 60 per cent of the stock in the new corporation which was to be organized, Dysart continued.

Dysart to Florida

Reed endeavored to bring out that the agreement with the bondholders' committee, when reduced to writing and submitted to the Warner home office in New York, was at variance with the terms first reached on Sept. 18. This brought to a close Dysart's testimony for the day. He was released for a Florida vacation by agreements, but will return next Saturday. At that time Paramount counsel will cross-query him on one or two angles. RKO is not interested in his testimony for Dysart has not even mentioned the company in either direct or cross-examination.

Hardy's objections to the introduction of testimony pertaining to theatres other than those in the complaint were denied by the court, thereby indicating a possible wider scope in which defense counsel might build its argument. This became evident when Reed, over Hardy's demurrer, succeeded in getting Dysart to answer a question relating to the operation of the St. Louis Theatre, one of the five houses controlled locally by F. & M., but not a party to this action.

Overrules Objection

The Government's objection to Reed's introduction of testimony relative to receivership suits filed by Harry Koplar against the St. Louis Amusement Co., controlled by Warners at the time, was likewise overruled. The Warner contention in the current action is that because of these two suits no early bid for reorganization of the Ambassador, Missouri, and, New Grand Central was possible. The contention further is that Koplar, by means of the receivership actions, took away the equity and control Warners had in the 20 neighborhood theatres which constitute St. Louis Amusement Co. It is for this proferred reason Warners have since refused to have any business dealings with Koplar or any of his associates.

By comparing the Allen L. Snyder bid with various Warner propositions for the three houses Dysart explained why the bondholders' committee, of which he is chairman, accepted the former bid. He said it provided for fixed rentals and weekly settlements of 15 per cent in contrast with no fixed rentals or percentage of the gross in the Warner proposals.

J. M. Ulmer and B. D. Gordan, Cleveland lawyers who will testify about a meeting in Herman Starr's New York office at which references to the St. Louis situation allegedly had been made, now are slated to be the Government's first witnesses on Monday.

Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warner Theatres, and Joseph Hawen, lawyer for Warners, arrived late Friday night.

heretofore have viewed a trade practice code as desirable, admittedly are beginning to lose interest either because of the absence of a spontaneous industry demand for such a code or because the means for obtaining one are not immediately apparent. Even the M.P.T.O.A. which has been most active in championing efforts to devise a trade practice code is finding its hopes for immediate action dimmed and, according to present plans, probably will hold no annual convention this year because of a lack "of urgent industry problems requiring discussion." Even a meeting of the organization's directors or executive committee is said to be problematical at this time.

Much of the continuing effort to obtain a trade practice code is now confined to those who see a possible regulation of the industry by legislation, some of which would be inimical to the industry, furthered if a self-regulation plan is not devised in the near future.

Distributor Cooperation Needed

Unrestricted distributor cooperation is held to be the most needed factor in the advancement of any move for self-regulation and there appears to be little chance of this being obtained unless enabling legislation is enacted by the Government or definite legal precedent develops which would define the extent to which distributors could participate in the development and enforcement of a trade practice code. Many industry leaders believe that the current conspiracy trial at St. Louis, regardless of its outcome, will be a guide in this respect. Meanwhile, widespread improvements in earnings definitely has dulled the demand for a plan of self-regulation and unless one or another of the above-mentioned factors develops, only another business emergency is regarded as being capable of reviving it.

Fitelson said that he was unable to disclose at this time the identity of the principals in the new company, which is now in the process of being organized.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Lady Consents"

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12.—This is dramatic romance with smart dialogue and intriguing situations, a story of a woman's sacrifice that true love might triumph. It is convincingly portrayed with Ann Harding appearing to better advantage than has been her lot for some time. Herbert Marshall and Margaret Lindsay contribute telling performances. Edward Ellis has a fine part.

In the story Miss Harding consents to a divorce when she realizes that Marshall is infatuated with Miss Lindsay. The parting is a tragedy to humorously cynical Ellis, Marshall's father. As it becomes apparent that Miss Lindsay has married only for social position and luxury, Marshall and Miss Harding find life an empty thing. Miss Harding spurns Walter Abel's marriage pleas.

Miss Harding and Marshall meet at the death bed of Ellis and realize their love is the most important thing in their lives. This starts a seemingly compromising situation. Miss Lindsay listens to the gossip of Ilka Chase and Miss Harding wins back her man.

The story, by P. J. Wolfson and Anthony Veiller, is sophisticated, but at the same time appealing, and the screenplay by Wolfson has smart dialogue. Edward Kaufman's direction expertly balances romance and comedy, with nicely spaced drama that has more than ordinary appeal to women. The settings are sumptuous and are embellished by J. Roy Hunt's photography. Production Code Seal, No. 1,896. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Circuit Managers to Meet in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 12.—Commonwealth Amusement Corp., which operates 22 theatres in Missouri, Kansas and Iowa, will hold a meeting of managers here Jan. 15 and 16. The principal business will be a discussion of a new drive, "1936 History Makers Contest."

C. A. Schultz, vice-president, said the circuit would use all the good ideas originated by individual managers in a campaign which closed Dec. 28, and what new ones could be evolved. Managers who originated ideas will answer questions on them and their use by all managers will be discussed. Schultz will be in charge of the meeting. About 30 are expected to attend.

WICHITA, Kan., Jan. 12.—O. K. Mason, secretary-treasurer of the Commonwealth Amusement Corp., who recently underwent two major operations at Mayo Brothers Clinic, Rochester, Minn., has returned here for two or three weeks. He is expected back in his office in Kansas City sometime in February.

Officers Are Installed

Budgets Are Discussed

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12.—Budgets were discussed at a meeting here of the board of the Producers' Ass'n., consisting of the heads of all major studios. No action will be taken on the setting of budgets until the arrival here of Will H. Hays, between Jan. 20 and 25.

Charlotte Agrees Outlook Is Bright

CHARLOTTE, Jan. 12.—The verdict for 1936 in this territory is unanimous—it's going to be better than 1935, and 1935 was a decided improvement over recent years.

In fact, J. H. Holloway of National Theatre Supply says 1935 was "most satisfactory." His company covers a territory with about 300 theatres in the two Carolinas. Operators coming in to buy supplies are in "fine humor," he says, and are talking of profits ahead. He regards the equipment business as a barometer of conditions.

Twentieth Century-Fox executives agree that business will be "much better" in 1936. They admit they were surprised by the gains of 1935, but are certain they will continue.

Affiliated Producers, Inc., agrees that the outlook is excellent.

North Carolina Theatres, Inc., is so cheerful over the prospects that expansion moves have been started. The two latest acquisitions are the Carolina and Granada at Lexington, and Herbert Kinsey, head of the circuit, says its older units are in a healthy condition.

Republic men are enthusiastic. They say all their contacts in the territory confirm their opinion that distributors and exhibitors hereabouts are in for a good year.

"Burlesque" $23,000 Hit, Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—The biggest New Year's Eve celebration since pre-prohibition days tilted grosses last week, though there was a marked decline in attendance after the holidays.

The best figure in town was "King of Burlesque" with $23,000 at the Fox. It was held a second week. "Riffraff," with $10,000 at the Stanton, also clicked big and was held.

"A Tale of Two Cities" continued strong through New Year's Eve and New Year's Day, but fell short of getting a three-week run. For its last nine days, it turned in $23,000, better than average business. "Captain Blood" ran 10 days instead of two weeks, and got $19,000 at the Stanley for the period.

Total first run business was $103,400. Average is $91,960.

McLucas Again Head Of Omaha Film Board

OMAHA, Jan. 12.—D. V. McLucas branch manager for United Artists, has been reelected president of the Omaha Film Board, and Clarence K. Olson, branch manager for Warners, has been renamed vice-president.

The board has voted to call for bids from contractors for rebuilding exchange vaults to take care of the new 2,000-foot reels. The matter has been turned over to Regina Molseed, secretary, to complete.

Chicago Men Take Up Long Reel Problems

CHICAGO, Jan. 12. — Distributors met today to discuss plans for installation of 2,000-foot reels. City ordinances and union requirements are causing difficulties. The unions want larger hubs on the spools and rear shutters on machines. At present a city ordinance prohibits more than 1,000-foot reels.

Distributors say these difficulties can be satisfactorily ironed out. Additional meetings are scheduled.

First Witness Stresses Reorganizing Plans

By RED KANN

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 12.—The Government on Saturday completed the direct examination of Thomas N. Dysart, its first witness, and cross-examination by ex-Senator James A. Reed, co-counsel for Warners, began, in a two-hour session lacking in interest and devoid of new angles.

After one hour and 15 minutes, Russell Hardy, Government attorney, turned the witness over to the defense.

The cross-examination, conducted by Reed from his chair with the consent of Judge Joseph West Molyneaux,

Laughton Winner in Actors' Guild Vote

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12.—The Screen Actors' Guild has selected Charles Laughton for the best performance of December in the monthly poll conducted by its members. Laughton received the honor for his role in "Mutiny on the Bounty" in a vote involving 18 players in 14 pictures.

Kay Francis received first honorable mention for her part in Warners' "I Found Stella Parrish" and Eddie Quillan got second mention for "Mutiny on the Bounty."

The Screen Writers' Guild voted "Mutiny on the Bounty" the best screen play of December. Talbot Jennings, Jules Furthman and Carey Wilson did the adaptation. "So Red the Rose" received first honorable mention with the honors going to Laurence Stallings, Maxwell Anderson and Edward Justus Mayer. Joel Sayre and John Twist received second mention for "Annie Oakley."

Kansas City Paper Drops Giveaway Ads

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 12.—On order of postal authorities, the Kansas City Star-Times, which carries the bulk of local theatre advertising and all the subsequent run advertising, has discontinued all references to cash giveaway schemes.

For some weeks Fox Midwest had been carrying an indirect reference to their Bank Night pool—"Extra Added Attraction Tonite," and since Christmas 14 independents have been calling attention to their Sweepstakes pool with "Associated Special Attraction 8:40."

Year's Start Tips Grosses To New High of $1,918,729

New Year's week was a tonic—in spots a sensational tonic that more than doubled the previous week's grosses—among all the 30 key spots reporting to MOTION PICTURE DAILY, except St. Paul. Bad weather there explained the lethargy.

The total take for the 30 cities was $1,918,729. For the Christmas week it was $1,228,199.

The New Year total is by far the highest for the current season which began in September. It tops the previous high mark of $1,766,910, set up the first week in December, by $151,819.

Some of the increases over Christmas week were remarkable. In New York the New Year's take was $423,000. For the previous week is was $186,200. Boston, Chicago, Denver, Lincoln, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh (where the new Sunday opening law was a help), Providence and Washington also showed striking gains.

Kentuckians Study Gains; Expect More

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 12.—The consensus of opinion among theatre and exchangemen in the Louisville and Kentucky territory is that 1936 will bring a definite rise in grosses. The public interest has quickened with increased payrolls and consequently has more money to spend for amusements, they agree.

Farmers are getting higher prices for tobacco and thousands in and around Louisville are employed in tobacco processing and cigarette manufacturing by local factories. During 1935, the report of the Louisville Industrial Foundation shows that 18 new manufactories were established, while 61 older plants improved and expanded their facilities.

Sixty-nine conventions with a potential drawing power of 31,000, are

Missouri Sales Tax Returns Show Gains

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 12.—Fifty-five thousand Missouri retailers—including theatres—which is 3,873 more than in October, paid $915,300 under the one per cent sales tax during November, compared with $866,440 the preceding month. A third of it goes to the school fund, the remainder to general revenue. Sales tax returns are expected to exceed $1,000,000 for December.

The legislature appropriated $2,500,000 at the last session for old age pensions, part to come from the sales tax. A limit of $30 a month was placed on the amount going to pensioners. Recommendations in the state auditor's office range from $7 to $12 a month.

No Hope Seen For New Move On Regulation

Plans for voluntary advancement by the industry of any method of self-regulation are regarded in responsible exhibitor and distributor quarters as being definitely stalemated at this time and dependent for revival on either the establishment of legal precedents, the passage of enabling Federal legislation, recurrence of a trade emergency, or cooperation by distributors, in the opinion of these authorities.

Industry apathy on the subject in the face of a number of efforts made since the demise of the NRA to advance a plan of self-regulation has become self-evident enough in recent months to lead erstwhile champions of the move to question, even, whether a regulatory code is needed by the industry. Even the definite plan proposed by M.P.T.O.A. for local self-regulation through exhibitor and distributor representatives delegated with sufficient authority to settle disputes within their own territories has met with no response from distributors and only indifferent cooperation from exhibitors, it is pointed out.

Open Houses May Go Over 15,000 Mark

Big Increase Expected in Film Board Report

Indications that the total number of theatres in operation in the U. S. at the end of 1935 might pass the 15,000 mark are contained in the annual reports of the Film Boards of Trade which are now being compiled by the M.P.P.D.A., but will not be completed much before the end of the week.

The nearly complete reports now on hand definitely reveal that the total of 14,552 theatres which were open on Jan. 1, 1935, will be increased by more than 400 theatres which have been opened during the year.

The grand total of theatres a year ago, both open and closed, was 18,263. This number is not expected to reflect as great a change as that in the number of open theatres alone, as the increase in the latter was due largely to the remodeling and reopening of old theatres rather than to new construction. Seating capacity of the open theatres may pass the 10,000,000 mark, according to present indications of the incomplete Film Board reports.

Virtual extinction of the silent theatre is also expected to be revealed in the report. There were only 51 silent theatres open in the U. S. a year ago and this number will show a further decrease during 1935, it is anticipated.

Check Matinee Time Change in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 12.—Following a conference with Harry C. Arthur, operator of the Ambassador, Missouri and Fox here, a committee representing the M. P. T. O. of Southern Illinois agreed to check up on independent theatres alleged to be moving up their matinee time in accordance with an agreement reached last fall. The committee consists of Fred Wehrenberg and the Mandell brothers. Following the survey they will again confer with Arthur in an effort to induce his return to the 6 o'clock matinee change replacing the 7:30 shift now in effect. At the moment Arthur is firm for the later hour change.

The Missouri and Fox have inaugurated Bank Night and the Ambassador begins the giveaway tomorrow.

Bank Night Termed As Legal in Racine

RACINE, Wis., Jan. 12.—Indications that attempts to ban Bank Night at several local houses here will be unsuccessful is seen in an opinion from the district attorney's office which declared that the plan is legal where all are afforded the same chance to participate in the cash award, irrespective of whether they purchase a ticket to the theatre.

Both the Rialto and Capitol here are featuring Bank Night weekly, while at least four other houses, including the Uptown, Granada, Crown and Mainstreet, are offering giveaways in the form of the gift ware. The latter two houses advertise free pop corn balls, candy and toys for the kiddies attending Sunday matinees.

Grants Examination In Master Art Suit

Justice Bernard L. Shientag in N. Y. Supreme Court has set Jan. 16-17 as the dates for examination before trial of Herman Robbins of National Screen Service and Charles L. Casanave of American Display Co., on petition of Master Art Products, as part of Master Art's suit for an injunction, alleging violation of an agreement that American Display would not engage in the lobby display business for five years from 1932.

The complaint says that National Screen has financed American Display in that business, the latter being in competition with Master Art. The court at the same time denied a defense request for examination of the books of Master Art.

scheduled here for 1936, it was announced by G. W. Huey, of the Louisville Convention and Publicity League. Plans have been under way for several months to make the second annual Derby Festival Week of national interest. Heretofore, Louisville's biggest moment has been the Kentucky Derby with visitors coming to the city from all points of the compass. Their stay was short, in most instances visitors arriving by train, automobile, boat, and airplane only a few hours before the big race and departing for home immediately after the winner was made known. Derby Festival Week is being designed to offer the visitor a full week of entertainment with each day crowded by special events. Theatres profit from the throng of visitors and are lending their co-operation to make Derby Festival Week a success.

Distillers Approach Peak

Kentucky's distilling industry has attained a production nearly equal to its peak of pre-prohibition days with 44 firms operating 48 distilling plants at the close of the year. Leaders of that industry plan a continuance of expansion during 1936, although some plans are being held in abeyance pending adoption by the legislature, which meets this month, of a new liquor control law as a result of the repeal of the state prohibition amendment at the November election. Actual employment in distilling plants alone is placed at 5,000 for Kentucky, not including allied industries.

Equipment Dealers Optimistic

New theatre construction in Louisville and Kentucky has been practically at a standstill and 1936 probably will not bring any change in this situation. While all downtown theatres are operating with but one exception, no plans for new enterprises have been announced. General improvement has been made in sound and projection equipment and equipment dealers report a 50 per cent increase in volume of business over 1934. They confidently predict that 1936 will also bring a substantial increase over 1935 and are expanding their quarters and staffs to take care of the increased trade.

From conversations with various theatre managers, it is gathered that 1936 is looked upon as a "boom" year for the exhibitor. They state as their opinion that more money is being put into circulation and that, since picturegoers are going to get their share, the exhibitor, in turn, will get his.

All exhibitors report a definite improvement in the quality of the product now coming out.

dealt with various meetings held in connection with Warner proposals of re-organization for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. Reed's line of questioning concentrated on the establishment of the assertion that on Sept. 18, 1933, Warners had come to a definite agreement with the bondholders' committee on a reorganization plan for these three theatre properties except for three points.

One of the three unsettled points was the length of time during which the new bonds were to be non-cumulative. Warners, Dysart testified, wanted a three-year term and the bondholders favored a shorter period. The second concerned control of the voting trust. The witness said Warners wanted four of seven and the bondholders likewise. The third point concerned the price Warners were to pay for 60 per cent of the stock in the new corporation which was to be organized, Dysart continued.

Dysart to Florida

Reed endeavored to bring out that the agreement with the bondholders' committee, when reduced to writing and submitted to the Warner home office in New York, was at variance with the terms first reached on Sept. 18. This brought to a close Dysart's testimony for the day. He was released for a Florida vacation by agreements, but will return next Saturday. At that time Paramount counsel will cross-query him on one or two angles. RKO is not interested in his testimony for Dysart has not even mentioned the company in either direct or cross-examination.

Hardy's objections to the introduction of testimony pertaining to theatres other than those in the complaint were denied by the court, thereby indicating a possible wider scope in which defense counsel might build its argument. This became evident when Reed, over Hardy's demurrer, succeeded in getting Dysart to answer a question relating to the operation of the St. Louis Theatre, one of the five houses controlled locally by F. & M., but not a party to this action.

Overrules Objection

The Government's objection to Reed's introduction of testimony relative to receivership suits filed by Harry Koplar against the St. Louis Amusement Co., controlled by Warners at the time, was likewise overruled. The Warner contention in the current action is that because of these two suits no early bid for reorganization of the Ambassador, Missouri, and, New Grand Central was possible. The contention further is that Koplar, by means of the receivership actions, took away the equity and control Warners had in the 20 neighborhood theatres which constitute St. Louis Amusement Co. It is for this proferred reason Warners have since refused to have any business dealings with Koplar or any of his associates.

By comparing the Allen L. Snyder bid with various Warner propositions for the three houses Dysart explained why the bondholders' committee, of which he is chairman, accepted the former bid. He said it provided for fixed rentals and weekly settlements of 15 per cent in contrast with no fixed rentals or percentage of the gross in the Warner proposals.

J. M. Ulmer and B. D. Gordan, Cleveland lawyers who will testify about a meeting in Herman Starr's New York office at which references to the St. Louis situation allegedly had been made, now are slated to be the Government's first witnesses on Monday.

Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warner Theatres, and Joseph Hawen, lawyer for Warners, arrived late Friday night.

No Hope Seen For New Move On Regulation

heretofore have viewed a trade practice code as desirable, admittedly are beginning to lose interest either because of the absence of a spontaneous industry demand for such a code or because the means for obtaining one are not immediately apparent. Even the M.P.T.O.A. which has been most active in championing efforts to devise a trade practice code is finding its hopes for immediate action dimmed and, according to present plans, probably will hold no annual convention this year because of a lack "of urgent industry problems requiring discussion." Even a meeting of the organization's directors or executive committee is said to be problematical at this time.

Much of the continuing effort to obtain a trade practice code is now confined to those who see a possible regulation of the industry by legislation, some of which would be inimical to the industry, furthered if a self-regulation plan is not devised in the near future.

Distributor Cooperation Needed

Unrestricted distributor cooperation is held to be the most needed factor in the advancement of any move for self-regulation and there appears to be little chance of this being obtained unless enabling legislation is enacted by the Government or definite legal precedent develops which would define the extent to which distributors could participate in the development and enforcement of a trade practice code. Many industry leaders believe that the current conspiracy trial at St. Louis, regardless of its outcome, will be a guide in this respect. Meanwhile, widespread improvements in earnings definitely has dulled the demand for a plan of self-regulation and unless one or another of the above-mentioned factors develops, only another business emergency is regarded as being capable of reviving it.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Lady Consents"

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12.—This is dramatic romance with smart dialogue and intriguing situations, a story of a woman's sacrifice that true love might triumph. It is convincingly portrayed with Ann Harding appearing to better advantage than has been her lot for some time. Herbert Marshall and Margaret Lindsay contribute telling performances. Edward Ellis has a fine part.

In the story Miss Harding consents to a divorce when she realizes that Marshall is infatuated with Miss Lindsay. The parting is a tragedy to humorously cynical Ellis, Marshall's father. As it becomes apparent that Miss Lindsay has married only for social position and luxury, Marshall and Miss Harding find life an empty thing. Miss Harding spurns Walter Abel's marriage pleas.

Miss Harding and Marshall meet at the death bed of Ellis and realize their love is the most important thing in their lives. This starts a seemingly compromising situation. Miss Lindsay listens to the gossip of Ilka Chase and Miss Harding wins back her man.

The story, by P. J. Wolfson and Anthony Veiller, is sophisticated, but at the same time appealing, and the screenplay by Wolfson has smart dialogue. Edward Kaufman's direction expertly balances romance and comedy, with nicely spaced drama that has more than ordinary appeal to women. The settings are sumptuous and are embellished by J. Roy Hunt's photography. Production Code Seal, No. 1,896. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Circuit Managers to Meet in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 12.—Commonwealth Amusement Corp., which operates 22 theatres in Missouri, Kansas and Iowa, will hold a meeting of managers here Jan. 15 and 16. The principal business will be a discussion of a new drive, "1936 History Makers Contest."

C. A. Schultz, vice-president, said the circuit would use all the good ideas originated by individual managers in a campaign which closed Dec. 28, and what new ones could be evolved. Managers who originated ideas will answer questions on them and their use by all managers will be discussed. Schultz will be in charge of the meeting. About 30 are expected to attend.

WICHITA, Kan., Jan. 12.—O. K. Mason, secretary-treasurer of the Commonwealth Amusement Corp., who recently underwent two major operations at Mayo Brothers Clinic, Rochester, Minn., has returned here for two or three weeks. He is expected back in his office in Kansas City sometime in February.

Officers Are Installed

Budgets Are Discussed

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12.—Budgets were discussed at a meeting here of the board of the Producers' Ass'n., consisting of the heads of all major studios. No action will be taken on the setting of budgets until the arrival here of Will H. Hays, between Jan. 20 and 25.

Charlotte Agrees Outlook Is Bright

CHARLOTTE, Jan. 12.—The verdict for 1936 in this territory is unanimous—it's going to be better than 1935, and 1935 was a decided improvement over recent years.

In fact, J. H. Holloway of National Theatre Supply says 1935 was "most satisfactory." His company covers a territory with about 300 theatres in the two Carolinas. Operators coming in to buy supplies are in "fine humor," he says, and are talking of profits ahead. He regards the equipment business as a barometer of conditions.

Twentieth Century-Fox executives agree that business will be "much better" in 1936. They admit they were surprised by the gains of 1935, but are certain they will continue.

Affiliated Producers, Inc., agrees that the outlook is excellent.

North Carolina Theatres, Inc., is so cheerful over the prospects that expansion moves have been started. The two latest acquisitions are the Carolina and Granada at Lexington, and Herbert Kinsey, head of the circuit, says its older units are in a healthy condition.

Republic men are enthusiastic. They say all their contacts in the territory confirm their opinion that distributors and exhibitors hereabouts are in for a good year.

Chicago Men Take Up Long Reel Problems

CHICAGO, Jan. 12. — Distributors met today to discuss plans for installation of 2,000-foot reels. City ordinances and union requirements are causing difficulties. The unions want larger hubs on the spools and rear shutters on machines. At present a city ordinance prohibits more than 1,000-foot reels.

Distributors say these difficulties can be satisfactorily ironed out. Additional meetings are scheduled.

Warners Gain Victories in St. Louis Case

Action Is Speeded; U. S. May Rest Saturday

By RED KANN

St. Louis, Jan. 13.—The first day of the second week of the equity proceedings brought by the Government on a conspiracy charge against Warners, Paramount and RKO marked up several victories for Warners.

Contrasting sharply with the lumberly gait of the opening week's session, today's developments took on a welcome speed. The change in tempo is indicated in the anticipation of the Government that it will now rest its case by Saturday, as against three weeks forecast by several of the defense counsel at the conclusion of the prosecution's opening statement last Thursday.

The first important ruling handed down by Judge Joseph West Molyneaux for Warners was the exclusion of the testimony of J. M. Ulmer, Cleveland lawyer and Government witness, who had been placed on the stand to relate what had transpired in the office of Herman Starr, Warner executive, on Aug. 14, 1933. Ulm-

Patterson Here for Post with Warners

Willard C. Patterson has arrived in New York from Palm Springs, Cal., where he has been vacationing since resigning as general manager of United Detroit Theatres, and will take over his new post as an assistant to Joseph W. Bernhard, head of Warner theatre operations, at the end of the month.

Patterson will work out of the home office, concentrating on Warner circuit operating policies. His post will be similar to those of Stuart McDonald, Mort Blumenstock and Clayton Bond, who are also assistants to Bernhard.

10% Increase In Grosses Is Seen in K. C.

Showmen Optimistic for Business in '36

Kansas City, Jan. 13.—A 10 per cent increase in grosses with an even greater increase if product continues to improve, and no change in admission prices, are predictions of independents, circuit operators, and exchangemen for 1936. One observer sees the possibility of an admission price decrease unless first runs raise admissions, particularly the Main-street and Midland on their 25 cent balconies.

However, at no time since the depression really got under way, have film men been so optimistic and have they had figures on general conditions and grosses to back them up.

Little likelihood is seen of the present fever of giveaways, cash and otherwise, abating for some months, although the vote that business would be better without them is practically unanimous.

"Prospects for the new year look good" to Emanuel Rolsky, president of the I.T.O. and operator of the St.

Postpones Decision On 17 RKO Claims

Federal Judge William Bondy reserved decision yesterday on an application by Irving Trust Co., as trustee in reorganization for RKO, for leave to allow 17 creditors' claims against RKO at stipulated amounts totaling $2,618,198. The claims as originally filed totaled $3,212,283.

Among the larger claims in this group proposed for allowance is that of the late S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel for alleged breach by RKO of a personal service contract. Roxy's claim was filed at $231,500, plus the value of 10,000 shares of RKO Class A stock, and is proposed for allowance at $179,271. Other large claims in the group include one filed by the Security First National Bank of Los Angeles at $1,915,800 plus interest, which is proposed for allowance at $1,857,425; one by the Harrison Theatre & Realty Corp., filed at $440,000 and proposed for allowance at $420,000, and one by the U. Roxy Dies in His Sleep of Heart Failure

Was 53; Radio City the Highlight of Career

Samuel Lionel Rothafel, "Roxy" to the world, who brought the spectacular to the showing of pictures, died yesterday morning of coronary thrombosis in his sleep at the Hotel Gotham. He was 53 years old.

Hope Williams, his secretary, found him when she entered his room at 9 A.M. for the day's work. Dr. Seymour Wanderman, his physician, who was called, said he had warned Rothafel a year ago, following a heart attack, that continued work might prove fatal. He quoted the showman as saying then: "I would rather die with my boots on and work until I drop. Death is just a big show in itself." Mrs. Rothafel was in an adjoining room when the death was discovered.

Samuel Spring, Roxy's attorney, said Rothafel had "grand plans ahead," with the idea of returning to the Roxy Theatre or going to another. His health had not been good for the past three years.

The high point of the career of

Fog Lifts and Variety Men Decide It Was a Big Party

Philadelphia, Jan. 13.—Some of the Variety Club members had sawdust in their ears today and were a bit foggy as to whether they favored dual bills and giveaways or single bills and no giveaways, but they all agreed about the first annual dinner of Tent 13.

It was a show. Also, it was a dinner. It was a mixture of laughs and seriousness, with the laughs predominating. George Jessel as toastmaster and Ken Murray as ringmaster in charge of the show were both in rare form.

Ask Exhibitors Aid Sales Levy Protest

Representatives of local exhibitor organizations will be asked by local exchangemen to join with them in presenting arguments to the city finance department against the levying of the city sales tax on film rentals, when the hearing on the distributors' objections is held, Jan. 20. The I. T. O. A., Allied of New Jersey and the T.O.C.C. will be asked to participate.

Local exchanges have been adding the two per cent tax to film rentals since Jan. 1, and widespread protests from exhibitors resulted. The exchanges have been urging the exhibitors to cooperate with them in opposing the assessment before the city officials. If, following the hearing, the city rules that its efforts to apply the tax to film rentals are in order, appeals will be taken by the local industry to the state courts.

Lloyd's Father Wins In Income Tax Case

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Efforts of the Federal Government to secure more than $100,000 in taxes from J. Darsie Lloyd, father of Harold Lloyd, were defeated today by a decision of the Board of Tax Appeals that the transfer by the elder Lloyd to his son of 2,499 shares of stock in the Harold Lloyd Corp. in 1930 was for a consideration which had no fair market value at the time.

The stock was transferred on an agreement by Lloyd to pay his father $100,000 a year throughout the remainder of the latter's life. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue held this to be an annuity, but the board held it was a sale and that the Government will have to content itself with the taxes paid by Lloyd, Sr., annually as he receives payment.

The stock cost the elder Lloyd $122,567 in 1932. The Commissioner held he would derive a profit of $813,824 from the transfer.

er is the attorney for the bondholders' committee of the Capital Theatre, Wheeling, W. Va., and had conferred with Starr in connection with Warners' lease of that property.

During that conference he alleged Starr had stated Wheeling was one of many similar situations then confronting Warners, including St. Louis; that Starr had remarked his company had a certain technique to force out bondholders and was abetting such technique by gaining complete control of major product. Frederick H. Wood, special counsel for Warners, argued to strike out such testimony by applying the theory of res gestae, which, in general, precludes binding the agent of a corporation or company to conversations dealing with a situation or situations foreign to the one directly under consideration.

Court Upholds Wood

In other words, while the Government was seeking to bring in references to St. Louis when Ulmer had been meeting Starr on Wheeling, Judge Molyneaux held that, while he regarded it as possible for Starr to have mentioned St. Louis, he did not believe any such comment could be binding on the corporation of which Starr is an officer. At the same time, the court permitted Ulmer's story to be told for inclusion in the record and only for purposes of appeal in the event the decision goes against Warners.

Warners scored another point when Wood objected to the line of questioning conducted by Walter Rice, Hardy's chief assistant, who was interrogating Ulmer at the time. Rice asked if Starr had said, "We are powerful and they (referring to the bondholders) would have to deal with us." Wood said use of the word "powerful" was leading and was upheld by the court. All through the day defense counsel, principally Warners, with occasional interjection by Louis Phillips for Paramount and Jacob M. Lashly for RKO, rose to their feet to protest the method of questioning by Government lawyers. In most instances they were upheld in their contention by the court, which, in one or two instances, instructed the Government to lay a foundation first and to lay off leading questions. Secondly, a third point, as viewed through the eyes of defense counsel, developed in what had been anticipated would be routine testimony concerning the interstate commerce phases in distribution and selling. Clarence D. Hill, local manager for Columbia, was on the stand.

Living Dictionary

For the enlightenment of the court and upon questioning, he turned out to be a living dictionary of commonplace trade terms. Features, exchanges, first, second and subsequent runs, availability, playdates, release schedules, screenings and clearance were defined. The Government trail went from definitions to selling seasons, punctuated by questioning on the number of Columbia releases in the last four seasons. The large percentage of his deals are made from March to October each year, Hill declared, adding that the April to August percentage runs from 40 to 45 while the percentage totals about 80 by the time January rolls around.

Seizing the advantage which obviously he saw thus opened to him, Wood by cross-examination drew from Hill the information that his company as early as now is conducting negotiations on 1936-37 product and that three deals had been launched in the last week. While Wood's purpose was not divulged, it is believed he will subsequently break down the Government's contention to be made later, as it did in the criminal trial, that it is a most unusual procedure to make a deal as early as March when the selling season presumably gets under way in the summer. In the first proceedings Hardy had contended, Paramount and RKO had sold their 1934-35 lineups to Warners for St. Louis months before the ordinary selling season had gotten under way.

It was when Clarence M. Turley, well known local realty operator and in association of the three Skouras brothers in an unsuccessful bid for the Ambassador, Missouri, and New Grand Central through Lawrence Stern and Co., Chicago bankers, was in the witness box that Hardy suffered two rebuffs at the hands of the court. One developed when cross-examination by the defense turned to the Central Properties Corp., which operated the three theatres which Turley said had lost over $80,000 from May 11, 1932 to July 20, 1933. Hardy objected on the ground this had no bearing on the issues being tried here. The court, however, held that since it was Hardy who had put Turley on the stand to relate conversations the defense had the right to get all the facts in their endeavor to dispute the charge of conspiracy.

Turley was quizzed on local price wars and set the blame directly on the doorstep of Fanchon & Marco. He said the move had been inaugurated by the St. Louis Theatre, which had dropped to a 40-cent top with double features and vaudeville, while the Fox countered with an identical policy at 20 and 35 cents. The war did not terminate, he continued, until January, 1934 and F. & M. took over operation of the Fox.

Touches on Price War

He added he believed the reference allegedly made by Starr at the Blackstone in Chicago that, "Warners had been mistreated, the bondholders (of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central) had been unwise in their tenant and everyone had been taken care of in St. Louis but Warners; someone had an idea they could drive Warners out of St. Louis and if necessary to stay we will show first runs at 10 cents," touched upon the price war reputedly raging at the time.

Starr, according to Turley, told Spyros Skouras at the Chicago meeting, "There would be a nasty fight and you will find yourself in the middle of it." Hardy sought to make capital of Starr's alleged remark when he again referred to the bidding for the three theatres. "Did you carry on a nasty fight to get the theatres?" he asked Turley.

Objection by Reed persuaded the court to remark, "I would leave those words out." Judge Molyneaux, somewhat curtly, some thought, took Hardy to task when the attorney charged Wood with "indulging in the procedure he used in the criminal trial." The court said he would advise counsel when the argument is ended and that he proposed according every man here the privilege of explaining the situation in St. Louis. "I do not think the criticism of Mr. Wood is justified at this time," the judge declared.

11 Witnesses Heard

Eleven witnesses in all took the stand today, Turley resuming Tuesday. Counsel agreed questioning of B. D. Gordon, Ulmer's law partner would parallel the testimony of latter and examination was waived. After five trips from Cleveland Gordon never got the chance to tell what he knew after all. Aside from the number of releases of each distributor in the last four years, a stipulation was reached that testimony of all exchange managers here would follow along the lines set by Hill. Since this had to do with perfunctory questions on interstate commerce, these men merely narrated their data on releases and stepped down in quick order. They were in order, Joseph Garrison, Universal, Ben Reingold, Twentieth Century-Fox, Clayton D. Lynch, M-G-M, William Feldstein, United Artists, I. H. Hall, Warners, Maurice Schweitzer, Paramount and Robert Taylor who said he was office manager of RKO.

Jacob Chassnoff, attorney for the general mortgage bondholders' committee of the three theatres, will follow Turley.

Joseph Grand, member of the bondholders' committee, follows Chassnoff, Skouras and Harry C. Arthur may be reached Tuesday. At least this was the anticipation as the session terminated.

The testimony generally pursued

On the Lighter Side

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Jan. 13.—Spyros Skouras and Bill Powers have gone ritzy during their trip here. Instead of checking in at the usual Coronado the duo are staying at the Missouri Athletic Club.

During his five-hour stay Thursday, Herman Starr shied clear of reporters. The scribes now have to make an appointment for interviews with the Warnerite.

Eugene Ford of Cravath, deGersdorf, Swaine & Wood is hoping for a quick disposition of the present proceedings. He has a Miami vacation awaiting him. Ditto for John Howley of Donovan, Leisure, Newton & Lombard.

Harry C. Arthur, who was attentively listening to arguments by counsel Friday on the motion for quashing records sought by Warners from the Eden Theatre Co., the St. Louis Ambassador Theatre Co. and the St. Louis Missouri Theatre Co., was served with a subpoena by Warners to continue his appearance around the courtroom.

Al Friedlander, who dropped into the court Friday, was accompanied by Andy Dietz of Superior Pictures, local franchise holder for First Division. It seems this is the only time Dietz shows up in the court.

Col. Bill Mallard, chief counsel for RKO-Radio, is missing from the RKO table in the court room. He's expected later, as is Major I. E. Lambert, who plans to sit in during the last few days of the hearing.

Spyros Skouras and Harry C. Arthur engaged in a spirited conversation Saturday morning just outside the court room. Neither was permitted inside to listen to the proceedings because of the decision of Judge Molyneaux to exclude witnesses.

Bill Powers accompanied Spyros Skouras to New York over the weekend. He was hoping Spyros would take him along and that's the way it happened.

Harry Koplar, whose name has been mentioned often during the first few days of the hearings, is being kept informed of the proceedings by his brother who is a regular visitor in court.

If Eddie Alperson takes the stand before Wednesday night, he will leave here for Milwaukee to confer with Harold J. Fitzgerald. If he has to hang around until after that, he will head for New York instead.

Judge Molyneaux, when asked the reason for the scarcity of his pictures, modestly replied:

"I'm kept so busy I don't get a chance to visit a photographer and smile."

When informed that Motion Picture Daily had run his facsimile, he was amazed.

Grad Sears staged a special preview for the New York boys Saturday night at the Shubert Rialto. It was one of those nights when the fog was as thick as the coal smoke and reminiscent of the evening "A Midsummer Night's Dream" opened at the same house.

What do you think he screened? "Ceiling Zero."

After planing in from New York with Joseph Bernhard, Joe Hazen of the Warner home office legal staff was up at 5 A.M. Saturday morning chinning with some of the important factors about.

Ernest Wilkinson, attorney for Harry C. Arthur, with headquarters in Washington, was with Hughes, Schurman & Dwight before going into business for himself.

Joseph Bernhard has left here for Chicago, Cleveland and New York. Ned Depinet arrived late Sunday night and appeared in court as a spectator this morning. Spyros Skouras delayed his return from New York one day. He will arrive here tomorrow.

Roxy Dies in His Sleep of Heart Failure

the famous showman, who might be termed the world's greatest, was the development of the two theatres in Rockefeller Center, the culmination of a series of steps upward in bringing the spectacular and the elaborate to the presentations woven about the films in theatre programs. Two years ago he left the Radio City theatres. His one theatre venture since then, the operation of the Warner Mastbaum in Philadelphia, ended in failure.

At the time of his death, he was awaiting action on his claim filed in connection with the reorganization of RKO. He claimed $231,500, plus 10,000 shares of Class A stock. He contended he had a contract with the corporation dating from Feb. 6, 1934, and that the company had failed to keep it. The RKO trustees have recommended the claim be allowed in the amount of $179,271.

Native of Minnesota

Rothafel was born in Stillwater, Minn., July 9, 1882, to Gustave and Cecilia Rothafel, and came to New York when he was 12. He worked as a cash boy in a department store and joined the Marines at 18, serving in China during the Boxer rebellion. In 1907 he left the service and became a book agent. He found a job in a tavern in Forest City, Pa., and there met the girl who was to become his wife. He had seen his first motion picture, and, with 250 chairs borrowed from the local undertaker, and an unused dance floor upstairs as his auditorium, he presented his first show.

His small success there led him to exhibition in Milwaukee, Minneapolis and other Midwest centers. In 1913 he came to New York and became director of the Regent, at 116th St. and Seventh Ave. A year later the Strand, largest film house in the world, opened, with Rothafel as managing director. Then followed similar posts at the Rialto, the Rivoli and the Capitol. At the Capitol he organized the famous "Roxy's Gang," a radio feature of outstanding popularity for several years. He became a national figure, known everywhere as Roxy, a nickname the Marines had given him.

Sought by Rockefeller

From the Capitol he turned his attention to the Roxy Theatre, which he called "the Cathedral of the Motion Picture." William Fox aided in the financing of the house. In 1931, his services were obtained by the Rockefeller interests for their gigantic amusement venture.

In November, 1932, the two Radio City theatres were completed. But complete success did not follow, and programs were realigned. Pictures were moved into the Music Hall and its prices cut. His health gave out, and rumors of his resignation were denied. He went away, rested, and returned in February, 1933. But there were differences with the executive management of the huge enterprise, and early in 1934, he resigned. Reasons were given on both sides, and they differed.

He still had plans for the future, one of them a new radio feature, to be called, "Roxy Comes a-Calling."

He is survived by Mrs. Rothafel, a daughter, Mrs. George Bijur, of New York, and a son, Arthur, in the advertising business in San Francisco.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 A.M. at the Central Synagogue, 85th St. and Lexington Ave. Rabbi Jonah B. Wise will officiate. Burial will be in the Linden Hill Cemetery, L. I. The body was taken yesterday to the Stephen Merritt Chapel at 104 W. 73rd St.

Rites Held for N. T. Moody

DETROIT, Jan. 13.—Funeral services were held Sunday for Nathanial T. Moody, 38, for the last eight years divisional superintendent here for Erpi, who died Friday in Highland General Hospital of pneumonia after an illness of only three days. Burial will be at Portland, Conn., the home of his father and mother. He is also survived by his widow. Before coming to Detroit, Moody was for several years with Erpi in St. Louis.

Harry E. Otey Passes

ROBINSON, Ill., Jan. 13.—Harry E. Otey, 79, until recently manager of the Grand Opera House, died at a local sanitarium following a lingering illness. He was born in Terre Haute, but came to this city in 1863. His business career began in 1882. At the time of his death he was engaged in business in Illinois and Florida.

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 13.—Margo Early, 18, whose real name was Margaret Ehrlich, M-G-M contract player, was killed, and her companion, Mary Grace, 18, under Warner contract, was seriously injured yesterday when their car crashed on the Roosevelt Highway here.

Protests Tax Raise

ROANOKE, Va., Jan. 13.—Charles M. Broun, representing National Theatres Corp., appeared before the city council here to protest the raising of the theatre tax under the new license tax code. The new law imposes a tax of $150 on houses of 450 seats or less and $200 for houses seating more than 450. An additional charge of five cents per seat is levied also.

Warners Gain Victories in St. Louis Case

the lines of the criminal case aside from that portion of Turley's which shed a new light on the association of Harry Koplar with F. & M. Statements designed to prove the length of that association included the witness's testimony that Koplar had represented F. & M. on clearance and zoning board under the code. Turley said he knew this because he was a member of the board. He also stated he understood Koplar had acted in a managerical capacity for F. & M. at the time.

Judge Molyneaux today signed the subpoenaes duces tecum commanding the production of F. & M. records sought by RKO.

Ned E. Depinet, who arrived from New York late Sunday night, appeared as a spectator today and was exempted from the order barring witnesses from the courtroom on request of Lashly.

Scott in for Conference

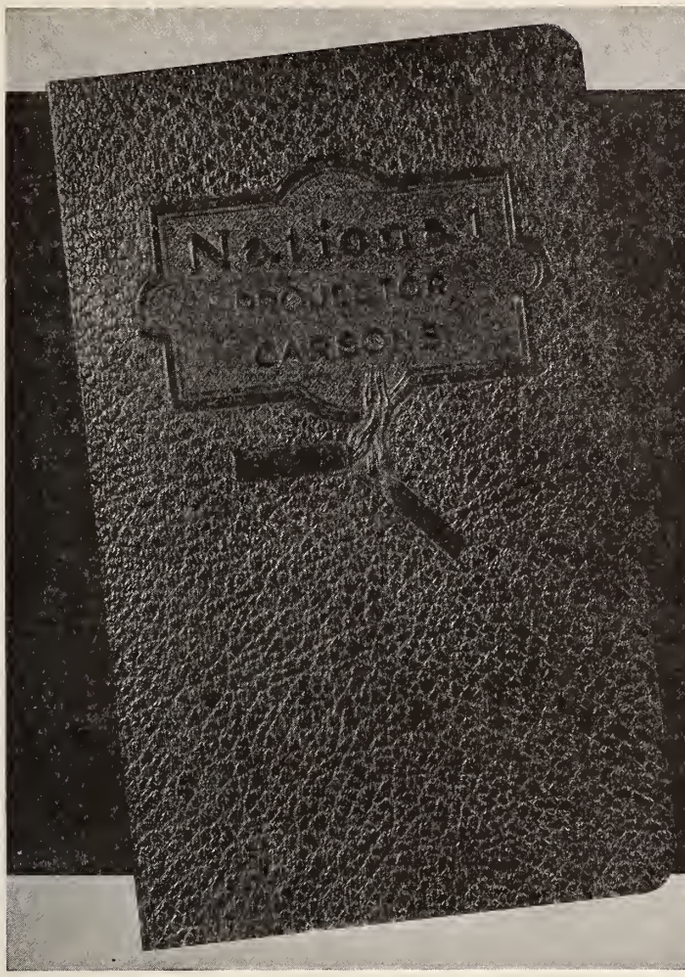
ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—Ward Scott, Twentieth Century-Fox district manager, was here Friday and Saturday conferring with Ben B. Reingold, local branch manager, who spent most of the two days in court on the Government's civil action against Warner, Paramount and RKO.

Harris P. Wolfberg, M-G-M district manager, was here Monday and Tuesday, as was Ralph C. LiBeau, Paramount district executive. Neither of these men came near the courthouse, despite the fact their local men were spending most of the time in the Federal court.

Roxy Death a Shock

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—The death of S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel came as a shock to New York film men here for the equity proceedings. Ned E. Depinet, Sam Dembow, Jr., Eddie Alperson and Cresson Smith voiced regret, and lauded Roxy's accomplishments in raising exhibition to a higher level.

Buckley in from Coast



Charles Buckley, attorney for Fox West Coast, is in New York on business. He is conferring with Fox home office officials in the absence of Spyros Skouras and E. L. Alperson who are now in St. Louis waiting to be called as Government witnesses in connection with the equity case under way there.

Lesser in and Out

Irving Lesser, managing director of the Roxy, returned from St. Louis over the weekend and is expected to fly to the Mound City tomorrow.

Grad Sears Returns

Gradwell L. Sears is back from St. Louis. Warner attorneys will put him on the stand as a witness on the company's behalf when the equity proceedings under way in that city get further along.

10% Increase In Grosses Is Seen in K. C.

John and National. But "they would look a whole lot better if exhibitors cut out completely the 'monkey business'—the bank nights, buck nights, good nights, sweepstakes, screeno, banko, beano, soupo—and get back in the show business. Exhibitors would then have a chance to make a few dollars."

Once or twice in the past several months independents have made an effort toward a 100 per cent cleanup, Rolsky said, but the disinclination of the Fox circuit to go along has balked such efforts.

With their own Sweepstakes pool now operating successfully, the independents, Rolsky believes, will be unwilling for some time even to consider a cleanup.

Fewer 10-Cent Houses

No chance for an increase in admission prices in Kansas City is seen by him for at least six months. He notes fewer houses showing for 10 cents than formerly, partly because distributors will sell fewer pictures for 10 cent showing. This has increased the number of 15 cent admissions. Also, some 20 and 25 cent houses cut prices to meet the increased 15 cent spot competition. This has cut the income of the smaller independent houses that do not possess the physical setup of the theatres formerly charging a higher admission.

Pictures are much better than they have been and if exhibitors devoted the effort, money and time spent on outside promotions in straight merchandising of pictures they would be in a better position to profit and win public approval, Rolsky said.

"Unless the President does something worse than he has and unless he is reelected, business for theatres in this territory should be better in 1936," believes Jay Means, operator of the Oak Park and Bagdad. "General conditions are a little better and will continue better even if Roosevelt is reelected, but taxes will eat up profits so fast, improved conditions will not actually benefit exhibitors. Locally, exhibition profits will be affected by the course of development taken by cash and merchandise giveaways.

Believes Films Better

"Pictures are better; for the past several months a whole lot better but information from the coast indicates the making of a lot of cheap pictures the past few weeks," Means continued. "That won't help the suburban theatre. Our patrons flock to see a good picture. They resolutely stay away from poor pictures, even if there are two of them."

"We have had good pictures at periods during the past five years, yet business did not improve," another observer points out. "It is the coincidental improvement of pictures and general conditions that leads me to believe next year will see better grosses in this section. As a matter of fact, the inability of exhibitors to do more business with better pictures led them to begin the use of giveaways, which is the real evil in exhibition today.

"Such promotions won't be discarded," this theatreman believes, "until the public, which decides just about everything in the movie business, including admissions, double bills, stars, etc., gets tired of them.

"The string of recent good pictures has created new moviegoers and brought back old ones. A number of those who stood in line to see a big picture here recently didn't know that theatres were collecting a sales tax."

"A 10 per cent increase in business next year," predicts Ralph Lawler, manager of the Newman, and he gives as one of the best indications of improved times the fact that all downtown houses are open except the Gayety, which is being made into a cabaret, for the first time in several years. The Empress and Orpheum have just been reopened and the number of houses being reopened in the territory is unprecedented.

Sees Improvement

A good conservative increase in business is expected by Clarence Schultz, head of Commonwealth Amusement Corp., which operates more than 20 theatres in Kansas, Missouri and Iowa. Schultz believes improvement will not be anything sensational, but a gradual betterment in grosses that will parallel betterment in general conditions.

"Grosses the first six months will be 10 per cent better than they were in the same period of 1935 as the result of generally improved business conditions alone," said Gus Diamond, office manager for Warners. "Eastern theatre business is better and Kansas City normally is six months behind the East, both going in and coming out of a depressed period. If pictures are better than 1935, then grosses should increase more than 10 per cent; in fact, by about as much as product improves over last year."

Diamond sees no chance here for admission price increases for some months.

Akron Talks Booking Combine, Clearance

AKRON, Jan. 13.—A booking combine and a clearance schedule based on admissions is being discussed by the I.T.O.A. here. Action was hastened by reports four new houses were to be built here.

Robert Menches, president, who is also manager of the Liberty, has conferred with officers of Michigan Allied and with P. J. Wood of the I.T.O.A. of Ohio.

The clearances proposed are: Theatres charging 25 cents, 28 days after first runs downtown; 20 cents, 42 days; 15 cents, 56 days.

Variety Men Say It Was A Big Party

Bellevue-Stratford ballroom — was decorated like a circus tent with sawdust on the floor, an elevated ring in the center for performers, and the waiters done up in white.

The high point of the evening was when Dr. J. Norman Wilson was presented a check for $1,000 for use in therapeutic treatments for four children suffering from the after-effects of infantile paralysis. He assured his hearers the beneficiaries would become useful citizens again as a result.

The show started as soon as the eating began, with dance bands and acts following each other continuously. All the night clubs in town and some of the theatres furnished talent. Nils T. Granlund had a revue.

Off to a Flying Start

Jessel got off to a flying start by saying he wouldn't read telegrams from those who had failed to appear. Then he called on Mayor S. Davis. Wilson and the Mayor nearly convinced everyone the Democrats had made no mistake in picking their convention city. He promised a championship fight the day after the convention and much liberality.

That pleased Jessel, who said that on all his previous visits to the town he had found men locking up doors after 9 o'clock.

Senator Frank Harris of Pittsburg spoke briefly. Jessel started to introduce prominent guests. He called upon Herbert J. Yates, who failed to respond.

"He must be outside," commented Jessel. He presented Jack Cohn, Jack Connolly, George Weeks, Abe Montague, Mark Hellinger, Mayor Charles White of Atlantic City, Albert Greenfield, Jules Levy, John H. Harris and Ralph Roland, all introduced in quick succession.

Judge Harry Kalodner explained that Governor Earle was absent because he had been jarred in a plane landing at Pittsburgh. Ted Schlanger took a bow.

A Formal Introduction

Town Councilman Charles C. Pettijohn of Harrison, N. Y., spoke briefly. More introductions followed —Harry H. Thomas, Jimmy Wilson of the Philadelphia National League team, Jim Foxx of the Boston Red Sox, and Al Schacht, also of the Red Sox. Secretary of Revenue Jack Kelly, defeated candidate for mayor promised to cooperate with the new Mayor.

Jessel gave a very formal introduction to Louis Neezer, and Lou Nizer emerged from the smoke-filled shadows behind the speakers' table.

James P. Clarke presented a chest of silver to the retiring chief barker Earle Sweigert.

New York, Pittsburgh, Baltimore and Washington were represented by large contingents. On the late train to New York all the drawing room in sleepers were crowded and the two coaches on the rear of the train had dozens of persons in evening cloth standing.

Tried to Halt Koplar Suits, Skouras Says

Showman Is Day's Chief St. Louis Witness

By RED KANN

St. Louis, Jan. 14.—Spyros Skouras today disclosed he had played a hitherto unrevealed role in attempts to dissuade Harry Koplar, one time owner of 25 per cent of the St. Louis Amusement Co., from filing the two receivership suits against that company, Skouras Brothers Enterprises and a number of Warner executives which subsequently determined Warners not to deal with him or his associates and so led to their decision to acquire their own first run outlets in this city.

Skouras was the day's chief witness. Flushed and excited when he first took the stand, his confidence

Court Rules Out Newspaper Article

St. Louis, Jan. 14.—Efforts by Walter Rice, Government attorney, to introduce as evidence a typewritten copy of a newspaper article appearing in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat of March 4, 1934, reporting leasing of the Shubert-Rialto by Warners proved unavailing today. Judge Joseph West Molyneaux, in ruling it out, held that before admitting the article there must be presented evidence showing that the contents had been authorized by Warners.

The circumstance developed upon direct examination of Joseph H.

Reorganization Details May Cover Months

Plans for the reorganization of RKO are expected to be furthered during the current stay here of Leo Spitz, RKO president, who returned from the coast yesterday to confer with reorganization principals on the progress being made in developing a reorganization plan.

According to present intimations, the plan still is in its early formative stages and probably will require several months more to complete. Spitz said that he had received no recent report on the progress being made on the plan and that one of the principal objectives of his trip here was to obtain information on the current status of matters pertaining to the reorganization. It is anticipated that Prospective changes in the present minimum basic agreement between the Dramatists' Guild and theatre managers will include changes of benefit to both, Louise Sillcox, executive secretary of the Authors' League of America, indicated yesterday on her return from the coast.

What the changes will be cannot be predicted at this time, Miss Sillcox said, pointing out that the matter is still in the hands of the contract committee and, when completed by the committee, must go to the council and then be submitted to the Film Runs 60 Hours

Washington, Jan. 14.—There seems to be a lot of wild life on the North American continent. It takes 22 miles of film to reproduce it, and it is figured the film will run for 60 hours.

Just how time out for sleeping and eating will be arranged hasn't been announced as yet.

The picture is to be shown at the North American Wild Life Conference here Feb. 3-7.

French Films Increase, But Grosses Down

By PIERRE AUTRE

Paris, Jan. 5.—More films were released on the French market in 1935 than in any year since talking pictures began, the total of 500 being the highest since 1930. However, depression took its toll and grosses did not reach the expected total.

There were 130 French talking films released, of which 110 were made here and 20 in foreign countries as French versions; 250 foreign pictures were dubbed in French, of which 200 were American and 250 foreign language films, 150 of them American. Of the 250 originals, however, about 150 were also dubbed, and thus cannot be included in the total figure. Depression made itself felt

The board has now before it for approval similar laws enacted by Massachusetts, New York and Washington and will shortly receive copies of a law passed by Utah.

gradually returned as the probing into his knowledge of the St. Louis situation went deeper. He testified in detail to the intricate and interlocking corporate structure of Skouras Brothers Enterprises, which passed to control of Warners on Jan. 2, 1929 for 31,000 shares of Warner stock, current on the market at $112 a share at the time. This company, he explained, held 76 per cent of the stock of the St. Louis Amusement Co., which operates a string of about 20 neighborhood houses. This 76 per cent interest included Koplar's one-fourth interest, for which Skouras said Koplar has received 2,500 shares of Warner stock. Skouras Brothers Enterprises, he added, also owned 50 per cent of Skouras Super Theatres Co., which at the time operated the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. Paramount owned the remaining 50 per cent in this latter company. In addition Skouras Brothers Enterprises held a half interest in three theatres in Indianapolis and one-third of a $1,000,000 third mortgage of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central here.

Were Best of Friends

Skouras testified that when the Warner purchase of Skouras Brothers Enterprises was being negotiated he had urged Abel Cary Thomas of Warners to include Koplar's interest in the St. Louis Amusement Co. He said he had advised Thomas then that Koplar, "by nature was a trouble-maker" and that he would never be happy unless he was bought out. At the same time, he said he had also advised Koplar that it would be to his best interest to sell because he had always been in business for himself and would not be happy identified with a big corporation. Koplar and he were "the best of friends" and no ill feeling prevailed between them, Skouras stated.

Two and a half years after the sale, the witness continued, Koplar filed the receivership suits charging misconduct on the part of all defendants which included, aside from St. Louis Amusement and Skouras Brothers Enterprises, Harry M. Warner, Thomas and other officers as well as the Warner corporation itself. Skouras also was made a defendant.

Appealed to Koplar

The witness declared he had appealed to Koplar not to bring the actions when theatre business was bad and the depression was flourishing. "He didn't listen to me and we had an argument. I felt very bad when Koplar threw these companies into receivership. Warners thought I was behind it and I couldn't convince them otherwise. I tried to bring the two of them together but got nowhere," Skouras testified.

Russell Hardy, Government attorney, objected to the introduction of this evidence without presenting the papers filed in the actions. However, Wood was on his feet with the documents themselves, offering to enter them on the record. Hardy again objected, but Wood countered with excerpts from the findings of the master.

The Warner counsel described the suits as "vexatious litigation"; that Koplar was an "arch enemy of Warners who was engaged in an attempt to black them," and said this was the only purpose of Warners' refusal to deal with the group in which Koplar was interested. Warner lawyers maintain that Koplar is associated with Fanchon & Marco, who currently run the Ambassador, Missouri and St. Louis. The Warners have no right to satisfy "revenge" by conspiracy, Hardy said. The court at this juncture observed that the reason Warners were offering the suits was to demonstrate why they did not deal with the complaining group and Koplar.

Wood then went into an analysis of the Warner position. There were three courses open, he asserted. One, he said, was dealing with Koplar; two, he added, was not to show their product in St. Louis. Three, he concluded, was to open their own theatres. His clients, Wood held, had elected the third.

Today's session opened with Clarence M. Turley resuming where he had left off on Monday. In what appeared to be a perfunctory although detailed explanation, he dwelt on the first run situation here in 1934, expounding policy, prices and patronage. Under cross-examination by ex-Senator James A. Reed for Warners this witness stated the price war between the St. Louis and Fox, which he touched upon Monday, had injured second run business both in point of admissions and exploitation.

Following Turley came Skouras. "State your career briefly," asked Hardy. "Briefly?" replied Skouras, and then was underway. He cited his beginnings as an exhibitor in St. Louis 22 years ago and sketched the growth of the Skouras interests here until he and his brothers sold out to Warners 15 years later. He told of how he then had become head of the Warner theatre department in New York, where he ran 400 theatres during his two-year regime.

Resigning in 1931, and with his fortune swept away by the depression, he had determined to enter business on his own despite the offer of a five-year Warner contract. Skouras narrated he had made a 15-year deal with Paramount to develop theatres in eight eastern states under an arrangement which was to give him a 25 per cent interest in each situation developed. The field was overseated, he continued, and little was done. Next came decentralization of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses. Harry C. Arthur, one of the complaining witnesses in the current equity suit, but then operating head of Fox Theatres Corp., which wholly owned Fox Metropolitan, approached him, Skouras stated. Anxious to return to business on his own, the witness testified, he went to Paramount for a release of his contract. He got it and consummated his deal with Arthur for about 50 theatres in the Greater New York area. This led to the formation of Skouras Theatres Corp., of which he is president and of which his brother George is the active operator. Half of the stock in Skouras Theatres is owned by the three Skourases and the remainder by Metropolitan Playhouses, the company which grew out of the original Fox Metropolitan Playhouses.

Got Fox Contract

One year after this deal was made, he said, he was approached by Fox to take over management of Fox West Coast. He was given a five-year contract and today is executive vice-president and general manager of operations of National Theatres Co., holding corporation for 357 Fox houses through the country. National Theatres is 42 per cent owned by Fox and 58 per cent by Chase National Bank. The Chase interest is being sought by Fox with the deal centering in New York and reputedly now close to the signing point.

Skouras, who is a co-guarantor on the bonds of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central up to $7,000,000 told how a lawsuit had been filed in the New York Supreme Court in May, 1934, by Warners, holders of $350,000 of the bonds, to recover on the guarantee and how a visit to Harry M. Warner resulted in a withdrawal of the action.

Skouras offered to meet the Warner obligation over a period of years, he testified, but the head of the Warner organization refused to take any money from him and declared he would be satisfied with whatever the reorganization of the three theatre properties would yield on the bonds. This was an oral agreement, Skouras added when asked by Hardy. Warner's word was enough for him, was the way in which the witness dismissed the point.

Scene Shifts to Chicago

The scene then shifted to the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago, where Skouras had been conferring with Leo Spitz, then his lawyer and now president of RKO, and Turley on the completed negotiations which extended for 15 years Skouras' personal obligation on the bonds of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. They also had been discussing a reorganization plan of their own for these properties although they had been advised, according to Skouras, that the bondholders already had accepted Allen L. Snyder's offer. The four days

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 14.—CHICK EVENS, manager of Loew's put in his first appearance in court Monday and stayed for both the morning and afternoon session. His presence, he said, had nothing to do with the fact that BILL FINNEY, Loew district manager with headquarters at Columbus, is in Miami on a three-week vacation.

NED E. DEPINET, after a morning in the spectators' section, repaired to the RKO legal table on Monday and has occupied that spot since.

AL FRIEDLANDER barely made his plane when he left here for Pittsburgh. Considerably intrigued by the Merry-Go-Round in the Park Plaza, AL stayed until 15 minutes before plane time and then made a dash for the Coronado to pack his bags. He made it by a split second.

Among those spotted at the Jefferson for lunch: LOUIS PHILLIPS, WILLIAM R. GENTRY, IRVING COHEN, MAURICE SCHWEITZER, Federal Judges JOSEPH W. MOLYNEAUX and GEORGE H. MOORE.

HARRY GREENMAN, manager of the Fox, has a hobby all his own. He likes to pickle pickles. He has a farm called Green Acres, about 25 miles from the theatre, where he grows the abbreviated cucumber. He also has a fruit farm, but there's no produce at this time of the year.

FREDERICK H. WOOD, on Monday, referred to some statistics in Motion Picture Almanac. However, he was unable to get them into the record, as the Government chose to put the local branch managers on the stand to testify to the number of pictures released by their companies during the past four years.

WALTER RICE's sister, married and living here, visits the courtroom every once in a while to watch her brother in action.

SAM DEMBOW and ALPERSON are settling down for a long and hard winter. Ditto for CRESS SMITH.

The Government sought to establish the point exchanges were mere outposts of New York and their duties perfunctory. CLARENCE HILL, Columbia manager, who was questioned at length, making it unnecessary for his brother exchange managers here to go beyond mere designation of their company's releases in the last four years, objected.

"My men are out selling," he said.

"And you would be if you weren't in the witness box, wouldn't you?", flashed FREDERICK H. WOOD.

A pretty picture of precision was provided by SPYROS SKOURAS, GRAD SEARS, BILL POWERS and CLARENCE M. TURLEY the other day in the courtroom. Each was innocently chewing away and keeping time with the other.

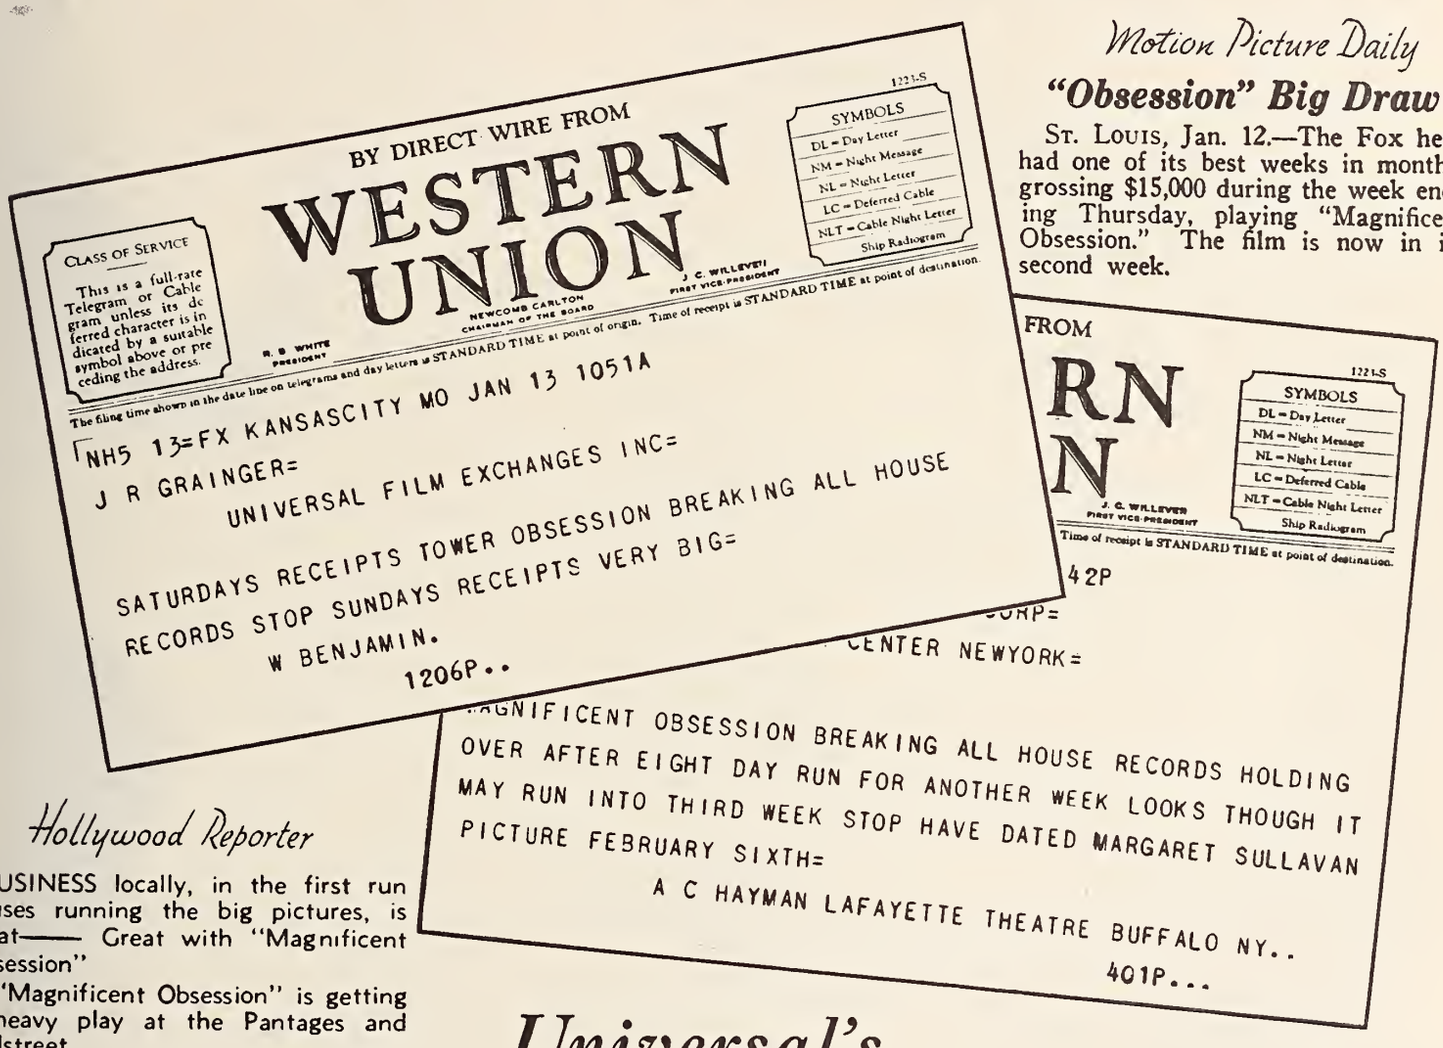
A. A. TISON, auditor of the Roney Plaza, Miami, will be back here again. He was in the witness box during the previous trial.



Game for Arthur

St. Louis, Jan. 14.—Clearance of witnesses from the courtroom, as ordered by Judge Molyneaux, brought up a discussion of how they would spend their time.

Conversion of the witness room into a game room was one of the sideline suggestions.

"When you select the games, why not give Harry C. Arthur 'monopoly'"? was one suggestion.

Tried to Halt Koplar Suits, Skouras Says

he spent there were "the worst days of my life," testified the witness.

The rest of what was purported to have transpired at the hotel followed along the lines of Turley's testimony on Monday. It dealt with alleged threats by Herman Starr of Warners on the St. Louis situation. Presumably, it was also at this meeting that Skouras advised the Warner executive that F. & M. and not he (Skouras) had been successful in acquiring the three theatres.

The meeting was admittedly heated in certain of its phases. Skouras readily testified today that he thought Starr was "kidding" him.

Skouras "Got Sore"

"I got sore when he said I was peeved. My conduct was not that of a gentleman and I used viler language than any man has a right to," said Skouras. Starr, too, waxed excited, according to Skouras, and made the statement the latter had taken care of himself in arranging for the 15-year extension of the three theatres' bonds but that nothing had been done on behalf of Warners. That session broke up when James Coston, Warner theatres zone manager in Chicago, walked in, added Skouras. Gradwell L. Sears had said practically nothing and remained on the sidelines virtually all through the meeting, the witness said.

An interesting commentary on the local field came to light when Skouras painted the first run situation from its inception and declared he had launched the initial move in 1919 with the West End Lyric. From this point he traced his development as a theatre operator, telling how his second first run, the Grand Central, carried with it the original First National franchise for Missouri. It cost him $350,000.

Skouras was the thirteenth to take the stand. Subpoenaed in the criminal trial, the Government failed to call him. Since this action started he returned to New York then doubled back again to clean up details prior to his anticipated departure for Honolulu Friday.

Grand Is Last Witness

Joseph H. Grand was the concluding witness of the day, but will resume on Wednesday. Grand is a local lawyer and a member of the first mortgage bondholders' committee of the three first runs in dispute. He practically doubled back on the testimony he made in the criminal case with the exception of the attempted introduction of an article in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, through which he said he had learned the Warners had leased the Shubert-Rialto. His testimony chiefly concerned two meetings of the bondholders' committee with Warners on reorganization of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central.

David Levinson of Chicago, general counsel for the bondholders' committee, was exempted from the ruling excluding witnesses from the court.

When the Government rests its case, which may be Saturday, the defense immediately will move for dismissal.

Flies by Night

St. Louis, Jan. 14.—From time to time, documents in the equity case have made reference to "fly-by-nights" in proposals and plans dealing with the reorganization of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central theatres.

When counsel was figuring out whether Thomas N. Dysart, chairman of the bondholders' committee, might be released for a week's vacation in Florida, someone inquired if the witness traveled by air. This had to do with his required return here at the end of the week.

Dysart said, "Yes."

"Fly by night?" asked one of the counsel.

Court Rules Out Newspaper Article

Grand, Government witness and local attorney for the bondholders committee of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. He said he had mentioned the story to Herman Starr in a conference held on April 6, 1934, when a plan of reorganization for these theatres submitted by Warners was being aired. The Government's purpose in seeking to have the article entered on the record was to prove the facts therein contained had been made by Warners. Frederick H. Wood for Warners objected on the ground the article was irrelevant, immaterial and incompetent. The bench further stated it had been admitting considerable evidence before a foundation had been laid, but said that it did not propose going too far. In this instance, it was ruled by the court that no foundation for admissibility had been established.

Only 12 Shooting, With 53 Being Cut

Hollywood, Jan. 14.—With activity confined to studio cutting rooms, camera work slipped to its lowest ebb in the last three months. Film editors were rushing 53 pictures to meet release dates. Cameras were turning on only 30 features and four short subjects, a new low for the midwinter season. Only 12 pictures are slated for production within the next two weeks. The week previous there were 33 features and three shorts in work.

M-G-M and Warners shared the lead, each having five features in work. M-G-M also had one short subject.

Columbia had three features shooting, three in preparation, and five in the cutting room. Fox had four, three and seven; Goldwyn, one, zero and zero; M-G-M, five, zero and 13; Paramount, four, two and 11; Radio, two, zero and six; Roach, zero, one and one; Universal, four, zero and one; Warners, five, zero and nine; independents, two, three and zero.

In the short subject division Columbia had none shooting, three in preparation and four editing. M-G-M had one, five and three; Radio, one, zero and one; Roach, one, one and three; independents, one, one and zero.

French Films Increase, But Grosses Down

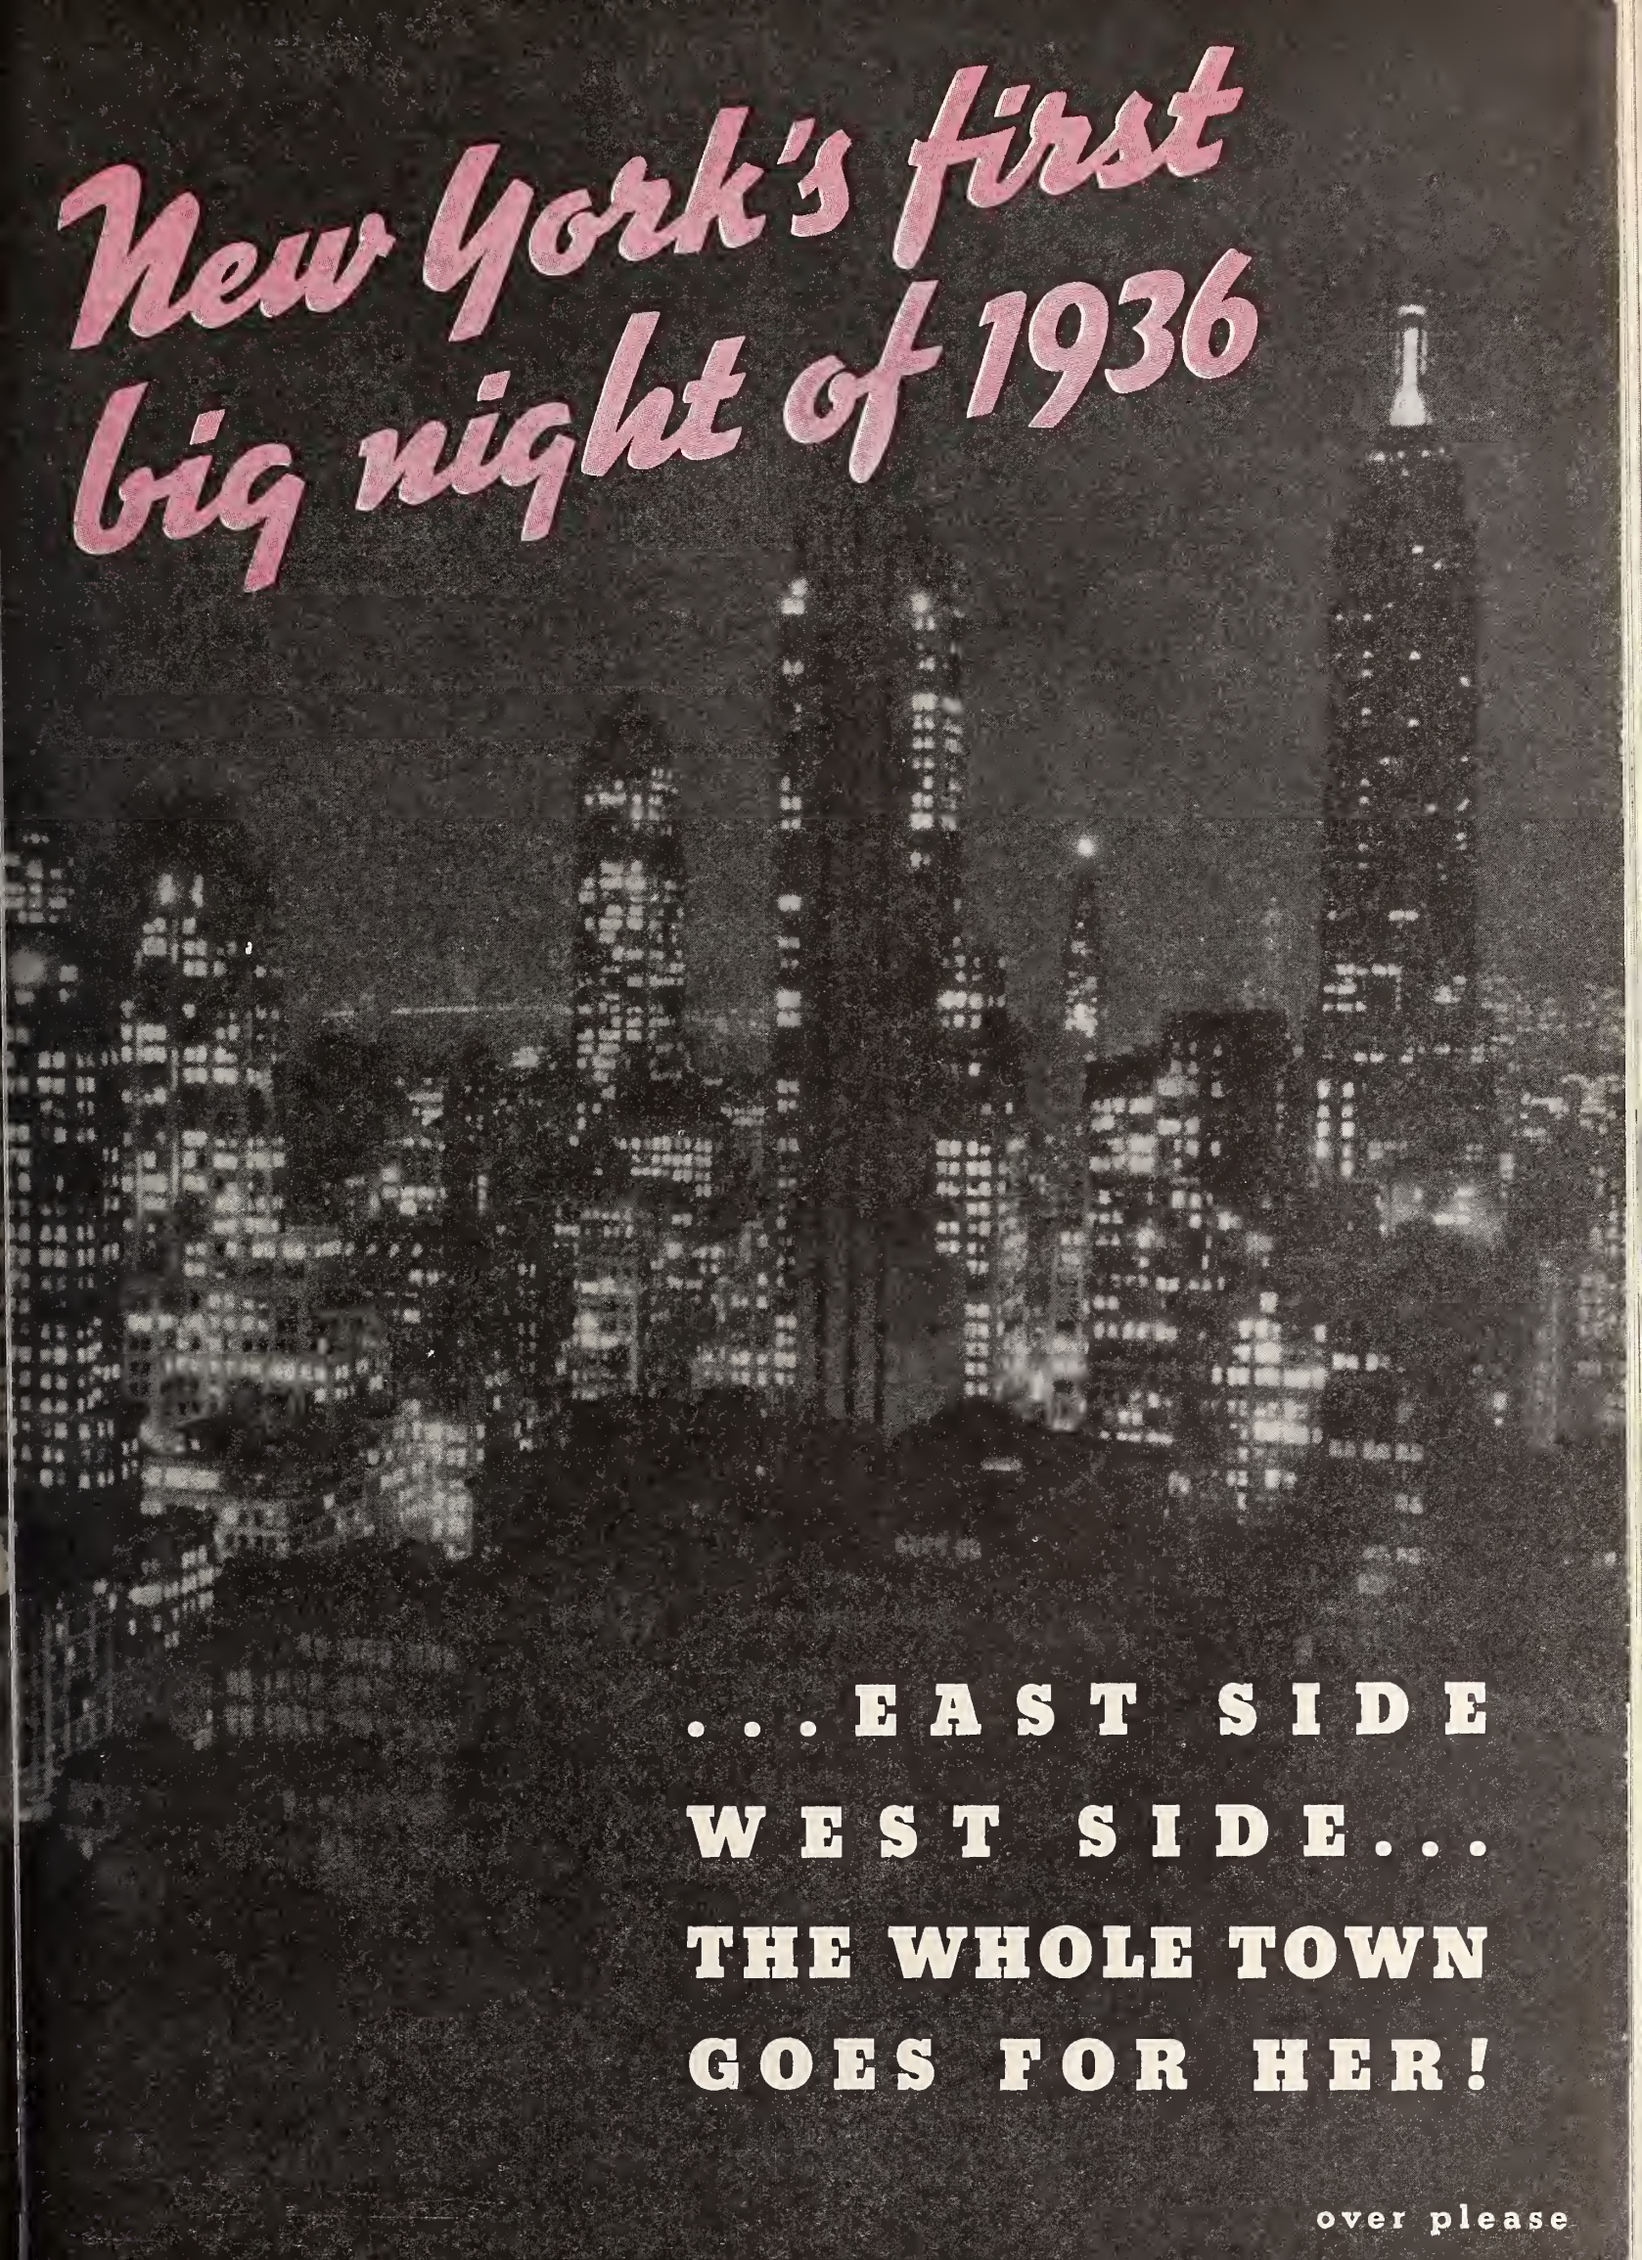
especially in the factory districts, where theatres relied almost entirely on factory employes.

The French industry, with only about 3,500 wired houses, can count upon only about eight per cent of the total population attending the films weekly. An important development in the French industry in 1935 was the partial success of exhibitors in combating excessive taxation. State taxes were reduced about 15 per cent, but the pauper tax is still in force and represents a problem. Exhibitors now pay about 20 to 25 per cent of the gross receipts in taxes, compared to the 25 to 30 per cent they were taxed before. Late last year the industry escaped the danger of the Government decree which would have made the industry virtually a state organization. The danger, however, is not completely over, and it is necessary for industry organizations to maintain a solid front in opposition.

Efforts were made during the year to produce films technically the equal of American product. In general a French film must be kept within a cost of $80,000 to return its cost to the producer. The chief fault found with French pictures is in the matter of stories and screen plays.

French Shorts Rare



Short subjects are comparatively rare in the French market, since 90 per cent of the theatres have adopted the double feature program. France produces very few shorts. The short subject field is largely represented by a few excellent subjects which are largely too artistic for the average French patron. The big handicap to American distribution in France is the necessity of dubbing in French for general release, since the provincial patrons accept only films in the French language. There have been comparatively few American films which have been successful in dubbed versions in France during 1935. "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "G-Men" and "Sequoia" have been well received, however. American dubbed films are in general shown as the second feature on double bill programs.

Films with considerable action, simple stories and those of unusual quality are for the most part the only ones which are successful in dubbed versions. In general 1935 cannot be considered to have been a good year for American companies, except in the limited exhibition of original versions in English. It is this situation which is said to have led some American companies to buy French films for release in this country. As a whole conditions here are difficult for American companies.

The March of Time, No. 10

(Radio)

Release No. 10 of The March of Time maintains the record of the series for effectively contesting the self-sufficiency of the double feature program. Here, as in earlier issues, is screen entertainment to compete with bargain programs and contest its own exclusion from a place on the bill of the established theatre.

These behind-the-scenes views of news events, dramatized in the March of Time fashion, begin with the colonization by the U. S. of barren Pacific islands destined for establishment as way-stations for trans-Pacific passenger planes, and the reaction of England, Australia and Japan to this "invasion" of the maritime posts by America.

"Monsieur de Paris," France's hereditary executioner, and his mobilized guillotine, features the second topic. The man of mystery, feared and hated throughout France, is viewed here at his gruesome work—executioner of all French criminals condemned to death.

The invasion of eastern Tennessee by the TVA is the final subject. Home condemnation proceedings, progress of the engineering work and its consequences in relation to private utilities operations are portrayed.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Lone Wolf Returns"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14.—A well-blended concoction of comedy, romance, crook intrigue and light drama, this is enjoyable entertainment. While not pretentious in cast or production values, it succeeds in being amusing. The story is well conceived, acted and directed.

With Thurston Hall's police filling the expected serio-comic function, Melvyn Douglas, gentleman-crook, and Arthur Hohl, common thief, strive to outwit each other for Gail Patrick's jewels. Douglas decides he would rather have the girl than the jewels as romance enters. The story, with many interesting complications, builds to where he outmanoeuvers Hohl, but lands in the hands of the police. Miss Patrick, finally is convinced that Douglas' regeneration will be more successfully accomplished under her guidance than with the law, after her gems are recovered.

Punch is added to the straight story value by the effective comedy contributions of Ray Walburn, Gene Morgan and Tala Birell. Based on a story by Louis Joseph Vance, with the screen play by Joseph Krumgold, the comedy atmosphere gives the picture real appeal for those who like to see a good deal happen in oddly contrived situations. The deft direction by Ray William Neill spots the laughs and tension in the right places.

Spitz Returns Here To Work on RKO Plan

Spitz may give some study to various proposals for the settlement of the Rockefeller Center claim against RKO, the largest individual claim against the company, and, as such, one of the principal factors in the development of a reorganization plan.

Spitz will remain here until the end of February, at which time he plans to return to the coast to confer with studio executives on RKO's production schedule for next season. The new RKO head expressed satisfaction with the studio setup, but intimated that additional production strength would be acquired in the near future.

"There is nothing I can talk about at the present time," Spitz said, "but I am a great believer in manpower and am always on the lookout for it."

Sam Briskin was installed as head of production during Spitz's last stay at the studio. The RKO head reiterated that B. B. Kahane would continue as head of RKO Studio Corp. and that Pandro S. Berman's contract, which expires within three months, will be extended on the same basis as at present.

membership of the guild for approval It was indicated that this procedure may require another month. The present basic agreement with the managers expires March 1.

Miss Sillcox denied reports that the guild would demand 100 per cent o the amount received for picture rights to stage plays and likewise denied other reports that the dramatists would demand up to 80 or 85 per cen of the picture rights. However, some change in the terms of the presen agreement, under which managers may share as much as 50 per cent in pic ture rights, is certain to be made it is believed. With film companies backing numerous Broadway produc tions and thus becoming managers the guild sees a situation inequitabl to dramatists resulting as they fea that competitive bidding for the scree rights to plays may be seriously cur tained by current developments.

Present Arrangements Unchanged

Indications are that the principa changes in the basic agreement wi seek a solution for this situation, wit the present arrangements, insofar a they apply to the sale of picture right to plays in which no film compan owns an interest, undergoing litt or no change.

The guild may not submit its ne proposals to the League of N. Y Theatres, representing managers, was indicated, due to the fact th the contracts are made with indivi ual managers and not with the orga ization.

Miss Sillcox stated that her rece coast trip had nothing to do with t current developments in connectio with the basic agreement, but w made primarily in the interests of o ganizational work for the Author League. Retaliation for Europe's Quotas Gets Federal Study Retaliatory legislation against countries imposing quotas and heavy taxes on American films is one of the angles being studied by Major George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's coordinator for industrial cooperation.

This has been revealed here by John G. Paine, who has been named permanent chairman of the Council of Industrial Relations through which Berry's work is being carried on. Paine is also chairman of the Board, Music Publishers' Protective Ass'n.

"We should not have a free and open market for any country which refuses to give our films unrestricted entry," Paine said. "The obstacles have been particularly serious in Germany, France and England, with quotas, taxes and regulations of various sorts. We should make it equally difficult for them to do business in the United States."

Possible changes in the anti-trust laws to make voluntary industry regulation attractive are being studied.

At present, Paine says, only one major film company is displaying any interest in the moves. This is Twentieth Century-Fox. Felix Jenkins, counsel for the company, is a member of the council. He says, however, that he is merely an observer.

Berry Invites Industry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's coordinator for industrial cooperation, today extended an indirect invitation to the film industry to join his council for industrial progress. The bid was seen in a statement from Berry on the formation of a committee to study wages, hours and other subjects taken up at the meeting Jan. 6, in which he stressed the fact that John G. Paine, representing the Music Publishers' Protective Ass'n., and chairman of the management group, is a prominent film industry executive.

Paine, in the same statement, outlined the task before the committee, and said that labor and industry can look to the council, if not for a panacea, at least for an improvement.

More than 200 theatres in the Bronx, upper Manhattan and Westchester suburbs were plunged into darkness for varying lengths of time late yesterday afternoon and into the evening by the failure of a power line resulting from a fire in a N. Y. Edison Co. substation in the Bronx.

The power shutdown occurred shortly before 4:30 P.M., halting shows in progress in every theatre in the Bronx, sections of Westchester and the west side of Manhattan above 59th St. While Broadway de luxe houses in the Times Square area were unaffected, crippling of transportation facilities in the Bronx, including the city-owned Eighth Ave. subway, surface and elevated lines in the affected area, was believed by Times Square theatre managers to have been responsible for cutting down theatre attendance. Minors' Admission Aim of Albany Bill

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—One of the repercussions of the recent arrest of hundreds of exhibitors in New York for admitting children under 16 without escorts and of Mayor LaGuardia's statement in favor of a change in the law has been the introduction of a bill by Assemblyman William T. Andrews, Democrat.

The bill carries out the suggestion of the Mayor that children under 16 be admitted to houses approved by local police and fire officials outside of school hours where matrons are in attendance for each group of 200.

U. S. Seeks to Prove Starr Made Threats

who resumed where he left off Tuesday; David Levinson, Chicago attorney, and general counsel for the first mortgage bondholders; Jacob Chasnoff, counsel for the general bondholders' committee, and Frederick H. Kreismann, insurance agent formerly mayor of St. Louis and a member of the first mortgage bondholders' group.

Walter Rice was the champion for the Government all through the day. His opponents were ex-Senator James A. Reed and Frederick H. Wood, special counsel for Warners. Paramount and RKO lawyers played roles in minor keys, raising general objections to the array of testimony on the ground their companies had in no way figured in the two meetings under fire.

Grand Quizzed by Reed

While the bulk of the alleged facts divulged by the quartet followed closely along the lines they pursued in the misdemeanor trial the one exception was Grand, who was examined at length by Rice on an analysis of the Warner plan as against the finally-accepted Snyder plan and rigorously cross-examined by Reed.

Grand had not been cross-queried by the defense in the criminal case. However, with his return to the witness box in the current civil action Warner counsel interrogated him at length on discussions about reorganization which transpired at the April and June meetings on the ground, as explained by Reed, the defense had no other recourse since the Government was apparently determined to air the merits of the various submitted proposals.

Grand, under questioning, went into great detail to explain why it was the committees had determined for Allen L. Snyder as against Warners. He cited $105,000 in rental guaranteed for the three houses by the Snyder bid as against no guarantee submitted by Warners. The latter offer had included five per cent on half of the new bonds which were to be issued while the committee's plan called for the same interest bracket on all the bonds. He emphasized the theatre rental provision in the Snyder plan was the most favorable aspect in contrast to the Warner bid.

Threats Alleged

Reed's contention was that other than the five per cent management fee under which Warners proposed operating the theatres, they would have received no return until the the bonds had been paid off. He further pointed out the only guarantee to the committee under the Snyder bid was the $105,000, which he described as small in view of the size of the proposition, whereas Warners had been willing to pledge payment of interest on half of the new bond issue.

In the unfolding of his account of what transpired at the two conferences Grand alleged Starr had made threats. The witness said Starr had said Warners not only had their own product but would have Paramount and RKO as well. The witness also said Starr had said no one would operate the three theatres other than Warners. Grand testified Hiram B. Morse and Kreismann, both members of the committee and present at the time, had resented Starr's supposed remarks.

Grand's answer at the time, he said today, was that he did not care about product as the committee already had its rental guarantee and what might be shown in the theatre was the operator's problem. Morse remarked, the witness continued, that there was still an attorney general in Washington and that he wanted to hear nothing further about film. Grand added that Morse, then a substantial first mortgage bondholder, had been more interested in reading a plan of reorganization of his own.

Reed Objects to "Arguing"

Reed constantly blamed Grand for repeatedly defending the course of the bondholders' committee. "I don't want to argue with you and I don't want you to argue with me," said the Warner counsel, who had his troubles in getting a "yes" or "no" answer from the witness. "I hope I am not arguing. I don't want to," replied Grand.

Indicating that John S. Leahy, attorney for John T. Blair and Edmond Koeln, trustees for the Fox Theatre here, probably had been cooperating actively with the new Department of Justice on the local situation, Reed drew from Grand the statement that L. B. Reed, local head of the Justice Department, had requested that a copy of an affidavit reporting both conferences be sent to Leahy's office. Grand further declared he had been asked on Sept. 21, 1934, to have Thomas N. Dysart, chairman of the bondholders' committee, swear to such an affidavit. It then went to Leahy who, Grand said Reed had told him, was "getting up other papers in regard to these transactions." Rice sought to introduce the text in evidence. The defense objected and was sustained.

Levinson Testifies

Levinson's recollection of the two meetings developed next. Essentially it covered the same ground. He did testify, however, that when Starr was acquainted with the terms of the Snyder bid he had declared he would meet it. Dysart thereupon said, "It's a deal," according to this witness. "We've had misunderstandings before. Let's get it straight," Levinson testified he then had said. He went over the details and when he had finished, he said, Starr reneged. The defense interposed no cross-examination.

Chasnoff was next. The court clerk had taken himself for a walk and with no one on hand to administer the oath Judge Joseph West Molyneaux undertook the ceremony. The witness's account of the April 6 meeting, the only one of the two at which he had been present, was based chiefly on "understandings" of what had transpired and was largely devoid of attributing direct remarks to those present at the time. In direct testimony he spoke principally about alleged conversations dealing with product availabilities.

Chasnoff Connections Discussed

On cross-quizzing, Wood developed Chasnoff had also been attorney for Aaron Waldheim and Julius Glaser, who were half owners of F. & M. Theatre Co. of Missouri, which held leases on the Fox and St. Louis. Rice objected on the ground that the defense was endeavoring to prove conflict of interests in that Chasnoff was serving as counsel for the general bondholders' committee and as attorney for interests bidding for the three theatres. Judge Molyneaux immediately settled the question by absolving Wood of any implied intention.

Kreismann was the final witness of the day. "I was tired of hearing such threats and defiance on the part of Warners and had reached a point where no good could come out of such discussions," was a highlight of his testimony.

Wood in his cross-examination established through Kreismann that no member of the bondholders' committees had owned any of the bonds. The counsel made the flat charge that members of the committees had been seeking to perpetuate their jobs which Kreismann denied. Under questioning, the witness contributed the information that he, Dysart, Spyros Skouras, William Norden and Morse had been elected voting trustees and directors of the corporation formed to take over the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central under the accepted reorganization plan.

Kreismann Denies Dealings

Kreismann also denied ever having been associated with Harry Koplar frequently described in the proceeding as Warners' "arch enemy." He also declared he had never discussed reorganization with him, although he at one time had business relations with Koplar's brother Sam. The Government at this point found itself short of witnesses and requested a recess. "That doesn't disturb me anyway," replied the judge. It was then 4:30.

Immediately prior to adjournment the court summoned all counsel to the bench and announced it will reconsider the testimony of J. M. Ulmer of Cleveland at the conclusion of the Government's case. Earlier, the judge had ruled it out tentatively, permitting it on the record only for purposes of appeal by either side.

Differentiating from the criminal case where the Government, having suffered complete defeat, had no right of appeal, this anti-trust action in equity may be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court in the event the Government loses.

Hardy's plan tonight for Thursday will put Harry C. Arthur on the stand. Jack Partington follows.

Irving Barry, Spyros Skouras' secretary, is here to help the boss clean up current business before his departure for the coast Thursday. Skouras and Rhoden and their wives are slated to sail on the 17th for a vacation in Honolulu. It was Barry's first air trip. He liked it so much he plans to return to New York on a day liner to catch the scenery.

It's a major operation for the Warner legal staff at the end of each session. Then, suitcases and bags emerge from under the large table which, during the day, groans under the weight of documents dealing with the case. They're packed and carted out of the courtroom only to return each succeeding morning.

Spyros Skouras made an interesting witness. He was flushed and nervous as he entered the witness box, but lost both by the time Russell Hardy was through with direct examination. His account of a meeting at the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago when Herman Starr and Grad Sears were present was punctuated with color. To wit: "Mr. Turley and myself then returned to the hotel and ordered lunch and four drinks." That caused a ripple of laughter, and a broad smile from Judge Molyneaux.

Allen L. Snyder, who is interested in the operation of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, appeared in the corridor early this week for the first time since the case got under way.

A Swell Show

St. Louis, Jan. 15.—A number of the Government's guests, assembled for the equity proceedings against Warners, Paramount and RKO, had a strange idea for a lot of film men the other night. They wanted to see a picture.

Grad Sears, in from Chicago, turned impresario and screened "Ceiling Zero" at the Shubert-Rialto. It was well worth the midnight junket.

This is a first-class melodrama of aviation and love with one smash climax as Stu Erwin crashes to his death in his own airport, downed by a ceiling zero, and a second, not far behind the first, when Jimmy Cagney retrieves his madcap career by deliberately inviting his own finish.

There is a sustained note of comedy, fine atmosphere depicting the inner workings of commercial air lines and very good performances on all sides. Pat O'Brien shares the spotlight with Cagney.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Dancing Feet"

(Republic)

Hollywood, Jan. 15.—Motivated by a story of spirited youth vs. adamant maturity, this music and dance-tinged romantic comedy stacks up as average entertainment. The title, and a number of good cast names, add to its commercial value.

Rebelling against a stern grandfather's (Purnell Pratt), edict that she shun the gay dancing set, Joan Marsh, getting no cooperation from Ben Lyon, erstwhile playboy chum, goes alone to Dreamland, a dance hall. Her dancing ability thrills Eddie Nugent, who plans to take her in on a ballyhoo stunt to teach tap dancing by radio for the purpose of exploiting Dreamland. The plan is rigidly opposed at first by Pratt, but Lyon's plea that youth should shape its own destiny wins his consent. Pratt becomes an admirer of Nugent, and when the radio stunt turns out a success he gives his consent to the marriage of Nugent and Miss Marsh.

It is played in a spirit of lightness and gayety. There is sufficient dramatic contrast to maintain interest. Two specialty dance routines by Nick Condos against colorful backgrounds with a pair of musical numbers written by Sam Stept and Sidney Mitchell give the show a bit of exciting diversity.

The work of the principals mentioned is adequately supported by Vince Barnett, Harry Bradley, Isabel Jewel, James Burke and Herbert Rawlinson. Based on a story by Rob Eden, the screenplay is by Jerry Chodorov, Olive Cooper and Wellyn Totman. It was directed by Joseph Santley.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"I Conquer the Sea"

(Academy Pictures)

A Victor and Edward Halperin production, with direction by Victor, this tells a story of the whaling men of Newfoundland. Woven in is a romance, and the conflict which exists between the native whalers and the Portuguese cod fishermen of the village.

The film has been well produced, and presents an interesting and occasionally exciting picture of the battles which result between the fishermen and their anticipated prey. Heading the cast is Steffi Duna, Portuguese girl, supported by Stanley Morner and Douglas Walton borrowed from M-G-M, brothers and the sons of a whaling man.

Morner, tall and handsome, and the best harpooner in the village, falls in love with Miss Duna, and she with him. Walton, a successful amateur doctor, is opposed to the affair, but consents to attempt treatment of the crippled leg of the girl's brother. He is successful, and suddenly finds himself in love with Miss Duna. She realizes that she loves him more than his brother, but Walton insists that, for Morner's happiness, she must go through with the marriage, especially when Morner's arm is amputated as the result of an accident while whaling.

Finally in an active sequence, the men, out after a whale, are upset when the whale strikes them. Walton rescues his brother, and they are marooned on a rock. Realizing the girl does not love him when he sees an amulet on his brother, Morner permits himself to be carried to sea.

the theatre section, remained at home for the night.

Many neighborhood houses were obliged to refund admissions or issue emergency tickets after patrons had waited in vain for the interrupted shows to resume. Low voltage power was available in some neighborhoods, but shows were stopped regardless, as the current in many cases was too weak for air conditioning units to function properly and also caused flickering and intermittent failing of light in projection.

Loew's, K-A-O, Consolidated, Leff-Myers and Springer & Cocalis circuits, all large operators in the affected areas, were most vitally affected. In all, more than 80 theatres in the Bronx, and approximately the same number in both upper Manhattan and in suburbs north of the city, were closed for periods varying from 30 minutes to several hours.

Artists and National Broadcasting Co. Rabbi Jonah B. Wise officiated at the services and the Jewish chant for the dead was rendered by Jay Pierce, a former Roxy protege.

Honorary ushers at the synagogue included Gene Buck, Ralph Whitehead, Harry Hershfield, Brando Tynan, Percy Moore, James Cro S. J. Kaufman and William J. Weinberger.

"Roxy produced real beauty and dignity in the realm of human amusement," Rabbi Wise said in the course of his brief eulogy.

Roxy, who was 53 years old, died Monday morning of coronary thrombosis while asleep at his residence in the Hotel Gotham. He is survived by the widow, a daughter, Mrs. Georg Bijur of New York, and a son, Arthur, of San Francisco.

Cooper Founds Fund With Theatre Stock

LINCOLN, Jan. 15.—Theatre holdings of J. H. Cooper have been turned over by him to the Cooper Foundation, to aid under-privileged children. Cooper is 50-50 owner with Publix in the Lincoln Theatres Corp., Cooper Enterprises of Colorado, and Regal and Criterion Theatres Corp. in Oklahoma, and his part is now the property of the foundation.

By taking half of his net income from the theatres he hopes to build fund of $1,000,000 for a reserve and hopes to start the foundation and keep it going on the other half. Cooper is said to have turned over $100,000 in money and bonds to the fund already.

understanding of the story easy for those unfamiliar with French. The other members of the cast are competent but will be unknown to American audiences.

A young swimming champion, Eric, an engineer out of a job, becomes swimming instructor at Ladies Lake, a resort. He meets Miss Simon, playing Puck, pretty and attentive, and the daughter of a wealthy family, Danielle. He falls in love with Danielle, and she with him, but he dares not speak since she is the daughter of wealth and he is penniless. He is very fond of Puck, and enjoys her companionship, but is not in love with her. She, gay and full of life, gives him the friendship he sorely needs. Danielle's father is opposed to him, and Puck's father forbids him Puck's island home.

He is taken ill, after Danielle has been forced by her father to leave the resort with him, and delirious, he reveals to Puck that his love is for Danielle. In the end Puck brings Danielle back to him.

Largely devoid of action, the film nevertheless tells an interesting story of young romance and its trials and happiness.

Setbacks Hit Government At St. Louis

Judge Denies Admission Of 5 Conversations

By RED KANN

St. Louis, Jan. 16.—The Government today suffered a series of setbacks in attempting to prove its conspiracy charge against Warners, Paramount and RKO, when Judge Joseph West Molyneaux refused to admit in evidence conversations allegedly bearing on the St. Louis situation and presumably held with a number of important industry executives in the presence of Jack Partington of F. & M.

The Government sought to have entered upon the record details of what was said to have transpired on five different occasions which Partington, the Government's sole witness today, declared he had attended either

Refuses to Allow Arthur-Kann Talk

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Jan. 16.—Efforts by the Government to introduce through a third party who was not present a conversation alleged to have been held between Harry C. Arthur and Red Kann, editor of Motion Picture Daily in a New York restaurant on March 6, 1934, failed today.

Jack Partington, president of F. & M., and only Government witness to testify in the civil conspiracy suit against Warners, Paramount, and RKO before Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux had just completed an outline of his career in the industry when the incident developed. "What happened on March 6?" asked Russell Hardy, Government attorney. Partington then

Payroll Gains Stir Optimism AroundCanton

This is the ninth of a series of surveys on the outlook in the field for 1936.

Canton, O., Jan. 16.—With employment gains ranking among the highest in the state and industrial activity at its best peak in more than five years, exhibitors, with the advent of the new year, view the coming 12 months with much optimism. Survey of the major theatre managers of the city disclosed that, in every instance, theatres are anticipating increased business. They admitted, however, that improved patronage depends largely on the ability of producers to provide features that will appeal in general to the theatre-going public.

Grosses for the year just ended were approximately 15 per cent better than the preceding year, it was learned. This is due, in a large measure, to the unprecedented activity in the steel manufacturing plants in the district, coupled with the extensive PWA and WPA projects recently launched which have absorbed almost all of the unemployed and reduced to a minimum the relief rolls of this area.

For the first time in five years Can-

Fight on Sale Levy Set Back Until Hearing

Distributors to Argue Stand Next Monday

Local exhibitor organizations will take no immediate action, legal or otherwise, in opposing the city's two per cent sales tax on film rentals, which New York exchanges are now collecting from their theatre accounts, until after the new hearing to be held Monday before representatives of the city finance department at which time local distributors will present new arguments against the application of the tax to rentals.

Distributors have already presented arguments against the application of the tax to film revenue derived from theatres within the city, and, although no official ruling has been made as a result of that hearing, the city has made known its intention of extending the tax to apply to rentals derived

Koenig in Meyer's Place at Universal

Hollywood, Jan. 16.—William Koenig joins Universal Monday as general studio manager, succeeding Fred Meyer, a succession which has been rumored here for several weeks. Koenig signed a contract today. Meyer, with almost two years to go on his current contract, will take a production post with the company, to be announced next week.

The placing of Koenig in a chief executive spot at the studio is understood to have been engineered by Charles R. Rogers, here ironing out the details of the Standard Capital option for Universal.

Ampa Dinner Set March 14; Musical Program Is Put On

Ampa's annual Naked Truth dinner will be held March 14, Gordon White told the members yesterday at the weekly meeting. The Astor will be the place as usual.

It turned out to be quite a meeting. So many guests appeared that Jack Dempsey's chefs were caught by surprise. When the lamb chops gave out the diners waited while the chefs argued whether they should substitute vegetable plates or sliced steak. It was a tie vote. Some got the vegetables; others got the steak after the entertainment had started. The Ortiz Ensemble had competition from knife and fork wielders who couldn't keep up with the rhumba rhythm.

Hy Daab was there. He proved to be the first Titan who would not sit on the dais. When White introduced him he bobbed up in a dark corner and merely took a bow. Others

Dual Clause Ruled Out By Appeal Court

Majors Lose in Review Of Perelman Suit

Philadelphia, Jan. 16.—Major companies defending the double features case lost out today when a decision was handed down by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here stating that the contract clause forcing independent exhibitors to agree not to double feature is in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. The clause was ruled illegal and amounting to restraint of trade on both exhibitors and independent producers.

The decision upholds the original finding of Federal Judge George A. Welsh on Jan. 31, 1935, who declared adversely to the majors when the Perelman case came to its first court climax. The new decision applies specifically to Fox, Vitagraph, RKO,

Ascap Claims Few Licensee Losses

Renewals by radio stations throughout the country of their contracts with the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers are proceeding at a pace which indicates few, if any, losses of licensees, it was stated by Ascap yesterday.

The society had a total of 551 stations licensed last year and the number of renewals has already passed the 500 mark, Ascap said. The renewals are on the basis of five-year contracts at the same terms as formerly, despite the loss to the Society of the Warner music catalogues. The renewals cover the principal networks which, to date, have made no licensing agreements with Warners.

Ascap's deadline for renewal of contracts expired early yesterday but many notifications of renewals are believed to be still in the mails, it was said.

Cantor Picture Has Big Start at Hall

Eddie Cantor had a big day yesterday at the Music Hall. So did Ethel Merman. They're both in "Strike Me Pink," which got off to a flying start with crowds all around the street in the morning, and by 5 o'clock had topped the opening day's take on "Cardinal Richelieu" and "Henry the VIII," according to United Artists. "Richelieu" did $107,000 in a week.

It was Miss Merman's birthday. She and Cantor were among the guests at a birthday party staged at 11:30 by W. G. Van Schmus in the suite of rooms atop the Music Hall, and they both officiated at the cutting of a big birthday cake.

Among the guests were: Conde Nast, Benny Rubin, Parkyakarkas, Nathan Burkan, Irving Berlin, Rene Clair, Eleanor Powell, Paul Warburg, Erik Charrell, Lew Brown, who wrote most of the music in the picture, and Lillian Hellman.

"Strike Me Pink" was reviewed in the MOTION PICTURE DAILY in the issue of Jan. 11.

200 Houses Is Aim Of Odeon Expansion

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Odeon Theatres, Ltd., headed by Oscar Deutsch, in which United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc., bought an interest some time ago, plans an expansion which will bring the total houses of the circuit to 200 throughout the United Kingdom in a short time. The capital value is said to be $50,000,000.

It is understood the plan of the enlarged circuit is to release pictures simultaneously with London throughout the circuit, in place of the present arrangement which brings product to the smaller centers approximately six months after London openings.

Paramount, M-G-M and United Artists.

Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., First National Pictures, Inc. and Paramount Publix Corp. were also named in the original suit filed May 28, 1934, by Harry and Louis Perelman, independent exhibitors, but the court decree does not apply to them because they were not served with a writ in the suit because they are outside the jurisdiction of the court here. The decision, written by Judge Joseph Buffington and concurred in by Judges J. Warren Davis and J. Whitaker Thompson, states these three corporations "were in fact not proper parties and consequently have been omitted from it."

Charges Sherman Law Violation

Judge Buffington said the evidence submitted to Judge Welsh was conclusive that the defendants were in conspiracy to violate the Sherman law but that there is a question as to the sufficiency of evidence to support the charge of violation of the Clayton law. But inasmuch as the evidence bears out the charge of Sherman Act infraction, the finding of Welsh was sustained. Judge Buffington's opinion states, on the "conspiracy to restrain trade" angle, "the defendants are connected with the strongest interests of the industry. They distribute more than half the annual product in which the artists who command the largest audiences are displayed. While they compete among themselves they have a common interest in confronting minor or independent producers who lack the resources to manufacture exhibitions on their scale. The independent theatres require their productions in order to continue in business. But to improve business and permit them in some fashion other than offering lower prices of admission, to carry on in the face of de luxe theatres, they must exhibit double features. The independent theatres generally purchase the second full length film from the independent producer but they are prohibited from exhibiting double features, as in the case of the plaintiffs, by their contracts with major producers. Thus they purchase less film from independent producers.

Judge Discusses Duals

"With such a situation existing in the industry one might be logically struck with the idea that it is more than mere coincidence that the defendants, who represent the large majority of major producers, are in unanimity in prohibiting double features in contracts. The fact this unanimity of purpose is not carried out formally in the same language does not destroy the inference."

Judge Buffington also stated, "double feature clauses undoubtedly reduce the production of full-length motion pictures. . . . If they (the plaintiffs) exhibit features of one of defendants they must agree not to display at the same time a feature of another producer. This naturally prevents exhibitors from purchasing film from producers in competition with the defendants and destroys the opportunity of these independent producers to produce and sell more films.

The defendants disclaimed any intention of violating the law or driving competitors out of business, alleging their action was in the best interests of the industry and the public.

Answering this contention, Judge Buffington stated, "The condition in the industry leads to the conclusion that the inclusion of provisions in the contracts between the defendants and independent exhibitors seriously affects exhibitors and smaller companies. This tends to reduce production and stifle competition."

Detroit First Runs Raise Their Scales

Sundays the scale will be 40 cents from opening until 5 P. M. and 65 cents thereafter, which is a rise of five cents in the afternoon and maintains the present evening prices for these days.

Key houses and subsequent runs have not announced any raises yet but it is expected that they will do so shortly. Subsequent run owners have been talking of getting together on a general rise and, now that the first runs have upped theirs, will probably be able to get together on the proposition.

The new scale of prices does not affect the State and Adams, first runs playing double features, it was said.

A decision from the city is expected within a few days following Monday's hearing, at which time the local exhibitor organizations, the I. T. O. A. Allied of New Jersey and T. O. C. Mexico Peace Talks Ended by Producers

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—Settlement of the strike against major distributors now seems farther away than ever. Conversations intended to bring about an agreement have been called off.

Spokesmen for the Cinematographic Workers' Union said distributors called off the parleys without giving a reason, but it was learned they decided to end them rather than continue what they consider fruitless arguments.

Setbacks Hit Government At St. Louis

with Harry C. Arthur or Marco Wolff.

March 17 to Nov. 21, 1934, was the span covered. The initial session was claimed to have been held with Sidney R. Kent, president of Fox Film Corp., in his office on March 17. Efforts to impart what Kent was supposed to have said were ruled out by the court on the ground that the Fox official had not represented any of the defendants in this action.

Number two allegedly was held two days later with Ralph Kohn, then high in the executive roster of Paramount. Whatever he might have said was not permitted to be entered because the court maintained no authority for Kohn to act had been established.

Agnew, Dembow Named

Third was Neil F. Agnew, then general sales manager of Paramount and the place and time identical. The court held in this instance that the Government had not demonstrated any relationship by which Agnew could have bound his company.

Sam Dembow's name was linked in the fourth. Partington got far enough to describe Dembow as a Paramount theatre executive and said he had met him in a hallway of the Paramount Building after leaving Kohn and Agnew. He failed to get beyond mention of the name, because there had been established no proof of Dembow's authority to act in the St. Louis matter.

Hardy here asked for special permission to introduce the text of the purported conversations with these various men through independent witnesses to take the stand later. The court again denied the application for admissibility, advising Hardy it wanted the foundation for authority laid first.

The fifth conversation was supposed to have been held with Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warner Brothers Circuit Management Corp., during lunch on a train eastbound from Chicago to New York on Nov. 21. The defense moved to keep this out of the record with the contention that Bernhard had been discussing the narration of a past event not in the scope of his authority.

Court Holds for Defense

Hardy here entered upon considerable effort to allow Bernhard's alleged remarks in the testimony by trying to establish the latter's authority through the introduction of a letter dated March 28, 1934, to Ned E. Depinet, president of the RKO Distributing Corp. The letter concerned RKO's product commitment to Warners for the Shubert-Rialto, leased as one of the latter company's own first run outlets in St. Louis.

For approximately 90 minutes Wood and Hardy, turning to citations from various U. S. circuit courts of appeal and the U. S. Supreme Court, argued on the admissibility of Bernhard's reputed conversation. The doctrine of res gestae again applied as it did earlier in the week, the contention being an agent could not bind his principal where a matter foreign to that for which the agent was the authority at the time entered in discussion. The court held for the defense.

Before doing so, however, Judge Molyneaux inquired what Hardy's purpose was in seeking to have the alleged train conversation admitted in evidence. The Government attorney replied he proposed showing Bernhard had told Partington of his reluctance in acquiring theatres in St. Louis, but that he had been overruled by Harry M. Warner; that Bernhard had further told the witness that he (Bernhard) was a good soldier and obeyed orders. An important ruling was handed down from the bench at this juncture. The court pointed out it did not believe Bernhard had been a conspirator and that what he may have said to Partington was not in furtherance of a conspiracy and merely a statement of that which someone had said to him.

Stresses Two Points

On direct examination, the story Partington told today practically dovetailed with his testimony in the criminal trial. Additions, however, were brought in. These had to do with alleged statements made by Warner executives at their home office on March 6, 1934. The witness here stressed two points. He gave as one the allegation that Warners would use all of its resources to get theatres in St. Louis and if necessary run double bills at 10 cents. He gave as the other allegation that Warners would protest to the court the reorganization plan for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central.

Wood found Partington a difficult witness. He also accused Hardy of furnishing him with leading questions. More acrimony between counsel was displayed at today's session than at any other time during the trial to date. The Warner counsel apparently found Partington's recollection of today's testimony as well as that in the criminal proceedings hazy. Constant objections to Wood's method of cross-questioning were interposed by the Government lawyer. On two occasions Wood appealed to the court to instruct Hardy not to cross-examine the witness while the defense had him and was sustained.

Alternately probing from his seat and on his feet the Warner counsel went into spirited action today. His eyes would flash. His fingers would dangle almost under the witness's nose. His gestures to the court would be dramatic and eloquent. He would crouch in his chair. His voice would ring with anger and perhaps indignation as what he regarded as simple and direct questions were met with an "I don't recollect but it could have happened," rejoinder.

Wood worked with the transcript of Partington's criminal trial testimony before him. Constantly did he remind the witness of what he had said on the stand in the previous case. Just as frequently did Hardy rally to his witness's support. And significant was Judge Molyneaux's comment in overruling the Government that the object of Wood's persistence perhaps was to impeach the witness.

The Warner attorney charged Hardy had coached Partington not to mention the name of Harry Koplar because the defense had introduced documents covering the receivership suits instituted by Koplar against the St. Louis Amusement Co., Skouras Brothers Enterprises and various Warner officials in 1931.

These were the actions which Spyros Skouras on Tuesday testified he had tried to ward off by appealing to Koplar. It was because of this "vexatious litigation" that Warners since have maintained they regard Koplar as an "arch enemy" who was engaged in an attempt to "blackmail them," and so have refused to do any business with him or anyone associated with him. Partington denied his memory had been "jogged" by Government counsel.

Wood Draws Admission

Wood drew the admission that Koplar had been identified with F. & M. when that company, in association with Allen L. Snyder, took over the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. The Warner attorney tried to go further and wring from Partington an admission that Koplar was still associated with the company. The witness said he did not know.

"Was Koplar's name mentioned at the March 6 meeting at Warners?" inquired Wood. "Yes," replied Partington, "but I don't like to repeat what was said."

"By all means do so," instructed the judge. It's all right. Anything goes here and you can say s— and s— if you want to."

"Koplar was a dirty so-and-so and something a pelican spits up," Partington alleged Abel Cary Thomas had said. He had cost Warners $80,000 in St. Louis and "we are going to get him too," the witness further quoted Thomas on Koplar.

An attempt to gain privilege for matters confidentially discussed with the Department of Justice was overruled when Hardy sought to prevent Partington from answering Wood's query as to whether or not the witness and Harry C. Arthur jointly and at any time had aided the March 6 conference with the department.

Partington's testimony today differed on the date when he and Arthur claimed to have conferred with George J. Schaefer in New York on Paramount product for St. Louis which the witness alleges had been promised F. & M. but had been sold to Warners. This is the meeting at which Schaefer is supposed to have given as his reasons pressure put on by Warners coupled with threats to upset Paramount's theatre organization in Detroit.

Today Partington set the date of that alleged meeting as the week of March 19, 1934. In the criminal case he fixed an earlier date. The significance rests in Paramount's contention in the previous case that such a conference was fictitious because Schaefer had been vacationing in Florida and had not returned to his office until March 12.

The wrangle revolving around admissibility of certain of Partington's testimony carried him over to Friday and further sets back Harry C. Arthur. Irving Lesser returned from New York today ready to go on as a Government witness.

There will be no session Saturday. Ex-Senator James A. Reed leaves Friday night for Toledo to deliver an address Saturday on the Constitution before the Ohio Bar Association. This is one reason for the weekend recess. The second is to give local attorneys a breathing spell and to find out what's going on in their offices.

Samuel A. Fordyce, who is recuperating from pneumonia, will leave Friday for Arizona. This means he will not assist on the Paramount defense.

Louis Phillips expects his wife to join him either the latter part of this week or early next.

Irving Barry, who accompanied Spyros Skouras on his return from New York earlier in the week, will go to the coast to meet Skouras when he returns from Honolulu.

Austin C. Keough didn't return this week as expected. Pressure of business kept him at the home office.

Spyros Skouras was spotted in a spirited conversation with Harry C. Arthur Tuesday between recesses and Skouras testimony. Skouras may delay his trip to the coast, but this will be decided later.

Chick Evens, manager of Loew's says "A Tale of Two Cities," which ends a 16-day run Thursday night, is the longest run for any film in that house. The Dickens film will probably get around $33,000, which is not as good as the Marx Bros. take.

began to tell of a luncheon with Arthur. During it, he said, the latter had informed him of a conversation presumably a few minutes earlier with Kann.

"What was the conversation?" asked Hardy. Before Partington had an opportunity to answer, Frederick H. Wood, co-counsel for Warners, rose to his feet with an objection on the ground that the conversation was immaterial and had no bearing on the case. The judge at once ruled out any disclosure of the asserted talk, holding that what an editor of a trade publication might have said had nothing to do with the points at issue.

Judge Molyneaux, however, permitted reference to the supposed conversation to stand in the record as a basis for the suggestion which Partington said he made for Arthur to visit the Warner headquarters in an endeavor to personally confer on the St. Louis "war" reported under way at the time.

ton's nine theatres are operating, all presenting films with the sole exception of the old Grand Opera House where a repertoire company has been holding forth since last fall with every indication that the run will extend well into the spring.

During the past year major first runs, Loew's, Palace and Warner's Alhambra, have maintained a standard top admission of 35 cents and a dime to children at all times. There is no immediate indication that this top will be upped, not for another year at least unless the three per cent admission tax fails to be returned and, in such case, top will be increased to 40 cents, executives said. Second run houses, of which there are five, have been maintaining a straight dime admission with one exception where a 15 cent price is on after 5 P. M. Subsequent run houses report excellent business the last eight months of the year with turnaway patronage almost every Saturday night and Sunday.

Smaller Towns Renovating

While there has been no new construction locally, throughout the district much modernization is reported in the smaller towns and there are no dark houses for the first time in several years. Several theatres have been enlarged, many have added improvements and the most recent in sound equipment, while others have replaced obsolete appointments and seating. At the present time there are several new theatres under construction throughout eastern Ohio with openings scheduled shortly.

In the Akron district where the rubber industry has been humming for the past three months, there has been considerable new construction, management changes and extensive improvements. Admission prices in this city are slightly above those charged here, and in the Youngstown area where there is only an occasional stage show at the Palace, top admissions are slightly above those here with practically all houses in operation. Steel production has been more active in recent months than at any time since the boom days of 1929, reports indicated.

Free sound film shows, popular in eight eastern Ohio amusement parks, which proved a constant worry to exhibitors and to a certain extent diverted patronage in downtown theatres, have in each instance been abandoned in favor of free vaudeville and circus acts.

In this particular territory Bank Nights and other forms of trade stimulants are at a minimum, due to concentrated efforts of the exhibitors to keep away from such promotions.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Brides Are Like That"

(Warners)

Hollywood, Jan. 16.—This is a light domestic comedy taken from Barry Connors' stage success, "Applesauce." It is played with intelligence and zest and affords pleasing average entertainment.

Ross Alexander, a lovable idler, living on the bounty of Joseph Cawthorn, a thrifty uncle, wins Anita Louise from her suitor, Richard Purcell, against the wishes of her parents, Gene and Kathleen Lockhart. Following the wedding, Alexander is hounded by creditors, but succeeds in reconciling the two families and finally comes through with an invention that assures a happy future for all.

As teams, Alexander and Miss Louise, and the Lockharts, use the situations furnished by the plot to establish themselves in the front rank as comedy performers. Joseph Cawthorn turns in another tongue-twisting characterization which is good for many laughs while Purcell as the rejected suitor and Kay Hughes as the momentary rival of Miss Louise furnish good contrasts.

Director William McGann has followed closely the technique of the stage production and has timed his scenes expertly. Ben Markson's adaptation is clever, with fresh dialogue well spotted. Bryan Foy supervised production. The picture is good, wholesome family entertainment and should score well with general audiences.

"Muss 'Em Up"

(Radio)

Hollywood, Jan. 16.—Unfortunately for this otherwise acceptable production, the mussing up process was followed by the script writers with the result that the audience is frequently left wondering what the story is all about. The valiant efforts of a really good cast cannot triumph over the incoherency of the script, which sets out to be a mystery thriller, but succeeds in being only a mystery.

Preston Foster plays the part of Tip O'Neill, rough and tumble smarty detective specializing in the solving of mysterious shootings and kidnap threats. Alan Mowbray does his usual smooth work as a millionaire with a house full of guns and rather silly relatives. Ralph Morgan goes through the film looking suspicious and doing embroidery. Molly Lamont, Margaret Callahan and Florine McKinney look worried very competently. Big Boy Williams and Maxie Rosenblum, as a couple of dumb clucks, are good for a number of laughs. Noel Madison is excellent as a ratty gangster and the smaller parts are handled nicely by John Carroll, Robert Middlemass, Maxine Jennings, Harold Huber, Clarence Muse, Paul Porcasi, Ward Bond and John Adair.

Erwin Gelsey did the script from the novel by James Edward Grant. Director Charles Vidor strove to hide all clues to the mystery from the audience, and succeeded—even to the very end. Pandro Berman produced. Best angle for the exhibitor is to capitalize on the rapidly growing popularity of Preston Foster.

Production Code Seal No. 1,800. Runing time, 70 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Grain"

(Amkino)

Produced by Mosfilm, Moscow company, this latest importation from Russia is an adaptation of a novel by Ivan Shuhov, and once again attempts to glorify the Russian worker of the new order. It tells of the victory of a group of peasants organizing their first collective farms, over the unscrupulous efforts of the kulaks, or land owners, to preserve their waning power over the peasantry.

The film is plentifully sprinkled with English translations of the Russian dialogue, making for ready understanding of the story, but it is doubtful that the picture has any real entertainment value for the average American audience. It is one of those films which is apt to have an appreciative audience only among those who have a distinct sympathy for the Russia of today.

There is a romance, rather subordinated to the central theme of

Short Subjects

"I Don't Remember"

(Columbia)

Harry Langdon suffers from lapsing memory in this comedy and needs to be hit on his head to remember what it was he forgot. The usual Langdon comicalities prevail and some amusing situations develop. Langdon as an artist is exasperating to his wife, Geneva Mitchell, who calls his mother when she is at her wit's end. Mary Carr gives out the head-banging secret and for the moment all is well. Vernon Dent persuades Langdon to part with money intended for a furniture payment and they buy a sweepstakes ticket. Miss Mitchell leaves Langdon, who goes after Dent to get revenge. After Dent has dodged Langdon's bullets he tells him they have won. A scramble for the ticket follows and Langdon chases it out to sea by way of a sewer. Good comedy fare. Production Code Seal, No. 1761. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

(Columbia)

This latest issue is quite the most tear jerking of the series. In its one reel it reveals the plight of a boy whose love for his dead mother has him stealing a tombstone for her grave. He is found out and faces arrest. His foster parents refuse to make good and he is given a week in which to pay. Appealing to the Voice he is helped out and warned not to let his affection for his mother get the better of his good judgment. A change of policy in his foster parents makes him a happy boy again. For the radio admirers. It is lugubrious fare. Production Code Seal, No. 0755. Running time, 10½ mins. "G."

"Melody in May"

(Radio)

Ruth Etting, escaping from the annoyances of a celebrity's life, dashes off to a small town where she is unknown. At a boarding house she comes on the plight of a youngster who is teased to distraction by his associates. On the night of a school dance his girl stands him up and Miss Etting accompanies him. Seeing how he is so unpopular among his friends she makes her identity known and her young friend becomes something of social lion. It all ends on a hypocritical note. Miss Etting's singing makes amends for the adolescent histrionics. Ordinary musical offering. Production Code Seal, No. 1572. Running time, 19½ mins. "G."

"Camera Cranks"

(Radio)

Joey Ray, Kitty McHugh and Edward Keane act out some primitive comic situations in this short. The supposed humor is done in a studio where Ray is to take a screen test. Miss McHugh, a beauty contest winner and annoying, is trying to crash the films and she gets by on an executive's say so. She interrupts take number 52 and then her dog pulls a storm effects switch and the piece ends with all the characters sitting dejectedly in the rain. The effort lacks what it takes. Production Code Seal, No. 1470. Running time, 18½ mins. "G."

workers' triumph, woven into the story, and complication enters as the kulaks, through bribery of certain of the poorer peasants, attempt to ruin the grain crop which the collectivists had planted. who were presented were: Dave Bader, who will leave soon for England; L. Howell Davis, chairman of the Pennsylvania censor board, and E. S. Gregg, comptroller for Erpi.

Vandy Cape, who has been singing in the Rainbow Room and at the Barbizon Plaza, made a hit with her demonstration of how foreign artists come over here and sing "Parlez Moi d'Amour."

Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, introduced as the "G-Man of Rhythm," showed how he keeps his tune detecting up to date by demonstrating where the composers of "Music Goes 'Round and Around" got their chords.

"Its success," he said, "is due to its nonsensical syllables, a form of comic showmanship, which goes back to the English madrigals." All his hearers gasped when he showed the similarity to certain chords of Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody.

Shows Tune Relationships

Then Dr. Spaeth demonstrated the distinguished musical ancestry of "A Little Gypsy Tearoom," by showing that it was a first or second cousin to "La Cucarache," which, the doctor said, "was very appropriate because cucaraches are often found in Gypsy tearooms." From this his nimble fingers leaped to "Isle of Capri," to "Auf Wiedersehn," to "Il Trovatore" to the funeral music in Grieg's "Peer Gynt" suite. Then he assembled all of them in the order in which they are heard in "A Little Gypsy Tearoom."

Even the budding composers and veteran publicity men who had heard him before gasped.

Dr. Spaeth closed with a serious discussion of the possibilities of new uses of music in pictures. He predicted that it would be made to enhance comedy and dramatic values and that story-telling methods could be worked out so that the music would seem like a logical part of the production.

Some of the recent musical productions had reached new heights in artistry, he said.

Overrules Demurrer In Lincoln Actions

LINCOLN, Jan. 16.—Judge Munger in Federal court here yesterday overruled the demurrers of the defendants, Lincoln Theatre Corp., J. H. Cooper and R. L. Other defendants are several major distributors. The plaintiffs allege they were refused product.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 16.—"In Person" was the big money-maker of the week here with a gross of $3,700, up by $1,500, at the Lincoln. It ran eight days.

"If You Could Only Cook" also was a strong draw. It went 100 per cent over par on a take of $2,400 in eight days at the Varsity.

With the help of two stage shows, and three pictures, most notable of the latter being "Mary Burns, Fugitive," which stood it four days alone, the Orpheum gathered in $3,700, $1,600 over the par of $2,100 on a week.

Temple Is $13,000 Smash in Houston

HOUSTON, Jan. 16.—Shirley Temple led the field here in one of the biggest box office weeks theatres have had in several months. "The Littlest Rebel" grossed $12,000 at the Majestic, where the average weekly take is $7,000.

Playing seven days, "Riffraff" at Loew's State reached $10,000. "Collegiate" had same take at the Metropolitan. Both theatres count $7,000 a par week, but "Collegiate" ran nine days in order to bring the Metropolitan back to pre-holiday opening dates.

Bank night, introduced at the Kirby Tuesday night, ran the take at that theatre for one day to $1,000, which is about $500 more than the usual Tuesday take. The picture was "Broadway Hostess."

"Dangerous," Show $31,500 In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 16.—The New Year's boom extended all over town last week. For the Stanley, it meant a new recent high, with the Major Bowes' amateurs, the third time one of these units has played this house, and "Dangerous" running up the remarkable take of $31,500.

"Captain Blood" also did exceptionally well at the Penn, gathering around $18,000, while "Peter Ibbetson" and "Miss Pacific Fleet" boosted the Warner to $6,750. At the Fulton, "The Littlest Rebel" remained two days beyond the regulation second week and did very nicely at $4,350, while the Alvin, on six days only with "King of Burlesque," managed to attract a fair $5,000. The Davis, remained in the doldrums, and a weak $3,300 in nine days for "Sanders of the River" and "$1,000 A Minute" meant the closing of this house after a two-month try with double features.

Weather conditions were anything but good, a big snowstorm hitting town Monday to be followed by two days of sleet and rain.

Total first run grosses were $68,900. Average is $48,000.

BLUEBOOK of PROJECTION

Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith

WE sincerely appreciate this authorized unsolicited statement from Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith on F. H. Richardson's new Bluebook Projection. We know that you will be interested in the frank opinion of this recognized authority who as Past President of The Society of Motion Picture Engineers did so much to further the cause of projection and projectionists.

IN every field, there are a few books which must be regarded as "classics" and important guides by the workers in that field. Richardson's "Bluebook of Projection" compresses between its covers substantially all the information and guides which motion picture projectionists need. The projectionist who makes himself thoroughly familiar with the contents of this book and constantly applies his knowledge in the projection room can hardly fail to do a good job and to command the respect of his fellow workers and employer. In their own interests, projectionists should not hesitate to avail themselves of such a mine of information.

THE convenience of using Richardson's "Bluebook of Projection" is greatly increased by a novel and helpful indexing system which the author has developed. Preceding each chapter are a series of numbered questions which adequately cover the subject matter of that chapter. In the chapter itself, the answers to the questions are preceded by the corresponding number. Accordingly, the projectionist can readily check up his knowledge of the subject material of each chapter before and after reading it; and can return to these questions at any time to make sure that his knowledge of the subject is still complete. This indexing system is a fine method of "perpetual self-examination."

EVERYONE WHO USES ELECTRICITY AND PAYS FOR IT.
EVERYONE WHO HAS MONEY INVESTED IN UTILITY COMPANIES.
EVERYONE WHO FAVORS PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF THE UTILITIES.
EVERYONE WHO IS NOW EMPLOYED BY POWER COMPANIES.
EVERYONE WHO LIVES IN THE AREA (9 states) AFFECTED BY TVA.

PUBLIC POWER vs. PRIVATE POWER

IN its first issue of 1936, MARCH OF TIME turns its cameras on the program of the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA), affecting 9 states, an area as large as England. As the government pushes its power lines out through the Tennessee watershed to hundreds of southern towns and hamlets, millions of people will get their first taste of TVA cheap electricity and like it. By this great experiment in regional planning, TVA proposes a national yardstick for measuring what all U. S. electricity should cost.

But TVA is in head-on collision with other millions of people who are employed by, or have their money invested in, the third largest U. S. industry. So to the nation's Supreme Court turn the power companies to defend their property and to challenge the government's right to go into business.

With the headlines scarcely dry on the NRA and AAA decisions, now TVA goes on trial. On this collision between public and private power is focused the attention of all U. S. industry.

FOR SHEER PRESENT DAY MYSTERY, March of Time turns to the strangest man in 1936 France—Monsieur de Paris. Few know his name or remember his face, but for half a century, like his father before him, he has been owner of the guillotine, traveling over France, using it, collecting its gruesome fees.

Asked Help From Zukor, Wolff States

F. & M. Executive Sought First Run Product

By RED KANN

St. Louis, Jan. 17.—Marco Wolff, the "M" of F. & M., and executive vice-president of that company, today revealed for the first time that he had appealed to Adolph Zukor on two different occasions for his assistance in obtaining Paramount first runs here after the product had been committed to Warners.

The intervention allegedly sought supplemented efforts directed at both George J. Schaefer and Neil F. Agnew and took place at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, on June 6, 1934, during a Paramount sales convention. Two months later the second conference was declared to have been held at the Paramount studio with Schaefer present at both.

This was a highlight of Wolff's testimony. It was the first time in his life that he had ever taken the wit-

M-G-M Loses Appeal On "Lynton" Ruling

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday reversed a district court decision and held that M-G-M's "Letty Lynton" was an infringement of the play "Dishonored Lady," by Edward Sheldon and Margaret Ayer Barnes. The court directed that a decree for damages and an accounting be entered, and awarded the two plaintiffs attorneys' fees in both the circuit and district courts.

When the action was filed by the authors of "Dishonored Lady" in 1932 an injunction was asked against "Letty Lynton" and the circuit court in its decision granted this petition, although it will have little, if any, effect on distribution of the picture at this late date.

In its decision the court held that "much of the picture owes nothing to the play; some of it is plainly drawn

Directors Go Into a Guild; Quit Academy

Another Phase of Drive For a Closed Shop

Hollywood, Jan. 17.—A Screen Directors' Guild was formed here last night as the culmination of a series of meetings attended by 40 prominent directors. Until last night's meeting at the Hollywood A. C., which lasted until 5 o'clock this morning, sessions had been secret.

Formation of the directors' group is another phase of the closed shop drive.

Last night's meeting was attended by several officers of the Screen Actors' and Screen Writers' Guilds with whom the directors will cooperate.

Laurence Beilenson, attorney for the Screen Writers' and the Actors' Guilds negotiated the legal aspects of the new organization. A corporate charter was obtained in Sacramento last Monday, it was learned.

Temporary officers of the Guild are

Warner Music Units Sue on Broadcasts

Four suits asking a total of $20,000 damages were filed in U. S. District Court here yesterday by the Warner owned music publishing firms, charging NBC, CBS and others with copyright violation through publicly performing Warner music without a license.

Harms, Inc., brought suit against Columbia alleging an unauthorized use of the song "I Get a Kick Out of You" after Dec. 31, when the Warner music catalogues were withdrawn from Ascap. Remick Music Corp. filed suit against NBC for the singing of "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet." M. Witmark & Sons filed suits against Knickerbocker Broadcasting Co., and the Marcus Loew Booking Agency, Schenley Products Co. and William H. Rankin Co.

"Rancho" and Show Give Para. $40,000

Stage attractions at the Paramount coupled with "Rose of the Rancho" gave the big Broadway house a neat $40,000 for the first 10 days of this bill. The picture opened for its regular run Wed., Jan. 8.

"Captain Blood" was strong in its third week at the Strand at $20,500; while "The Ghost Goes West," drawing $39,000 for the Rivoli, and "The

Some Laugh!

Boston, Jan. 17.—Herbert L. Ohrenberger now has two claims to fame. His laugh—a boisterous guffaw that gets audiences going — first attracted attention during the showing of Columbia's "Three Stooges" recently at the South Boston.

The management gave him a pass.

Now Columbia is going to give him a screen test to see what it does to the sound track. It may develop into something like that Lexington shot in 1775 that was heard around the world.

Quota Changes Being Studied By FBI Group

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, Jan. 7.—A special committee of the Film Group of the Federation of British Industries is considering further recommendations for the revision of the quota clauses of the Films Act. Conferences between the full group and the council of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n will follow with a view to arriving at mutually agreeable suggestions for the Board of Trade.

The Government, which has asked for an agreed trade policy before considering revision of the Act, has already had a confidential report on the situation from the advisory committee, representative of producers, exhibitors and the public, which was appointed by the original legislation.

Separately, producers are believed to favor a minimum cost clause of $50,000 for British films and exhibitors want a reduction in the present 20 per cent exhibition quota. American distributors for the most part would prefer a cash quota system, permitting them to spend a fixed sum

Silverstone May Be Director of Odeon

London, Jan. 17.—Maurice Silverstone, managing director for United Artists here, may be named to the board of directors of Odeon Theatres, Ltd., the Oscar Deutsch circuit, it is understood here. Reel Change Is Set Back To August 1

Shift Follows a Report From Committee

The date for the official adoption by the industry of the new 2,000-foot reel was set back from April 1, next, to Aug. 1, by agreement of the reel committee at a meeting yesterday at M.P.P.D.A. headquarters.

The postponement resulted from reports submitted jointly by the committee and the manufacturers of the new equipment. The reports set forth that it was not possible for the manufacturers to meet the concentrated demands for simultaneous delivery to all studios and exchanges by April 1. The later date, the committee said, was agreed upon in view of the special designs, steel dies and the large amount of equipment required through the adoption of the larger reel.

All major distributors were represented at yesterday's meeting.

Expect High Court Dual Case Appeal

Philadelphia, Jan. 17.—With the film center here alive with rumor following the decision of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals calling the dual feature clause in contracts a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, it is expected the major companies will carry an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Independent exchange men here are jubilant, expecting many independent exhibitors to begin double featuring as soon as possible, although most of the product contracted for is on a single feature basis. Premium dealers and giveaway operators see an increase of dualing cutting into their business. Warners are seen as strong competitors if they shift from their former opposition to duals.

Reserves Decision On Mrs. Fox Motion

Federal Judge William Bondy yesterday reserved decision on motion by Mrs. William Fox to set aside two subpoenaes served on her last Sunday by the Capital Co. in connection with its action to satisfy a $280,000 judgment against William Fox. "Riffraff" Attacked By Cleveland Unions

CLEVELAND, Jan. 17.—The Cleveland Federation of Labor has passed a resolution protesting against the showing of "Riffraff" at Loew's State. The union men claim the picture is "a slander on the militant trade unions of the west coast."

Col. Henry E. Long, Loew division manager, was surprised by the allegation, he said. Max Hayes, editor of the labor paper, Cleveland Citizen, described the picture as "propaganda to prejudice the public against trade unionism."

Time Has a New Folder

Ralph Roland has gotten out a new type of exploitation folder for use with The March of Time. It is in a red indexed folder that can be slipped into a file and used when releases are scheduled.

The contents are on heavy stock sheets, many of them in color, designed, apparently, for the double purpose of selling the exhibitor on the value of special exploitation for The March of Time and telling him how to do it. The usual publicity releases, mats and accessories are included. One card is devoted to The Photo Reporter, a sheet which circulates in schools.

To make sure exhibitors will do something more than file the material a contest for best exploitation is included, with radios as prizes. The judges will be Bruce Barton, Jules Levy and S. Barret McCormick.

Televised Reel Worries British

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Provision in the standard contract for prohibition of the television of films until after the last theatre runs is regarded, in many quarters here, as likely to stimulate the production of an official newsreel, for television only, by the British Broadcasting Corp.

Captain West of Baird Television Ltd., supports this possibility in an article in Cinema, in which, however he emphasizes that the final decision as to film broadcasts must rest with the owners of the film. Baird, which with E.M.I (Marconi-H.M.V.) will monopolize transmission for the B.B.C.'s experimental television service, is closely associated with Gaumont British.

Press stories of the development of a film production department at the B.B.C., with interest as well as news films in view, are discredited, the Wardour St. angle being that an accommodation with the trade will be arrived at, newsreels offering the only point of difference.

ness stand, Wolff declared. He followed Jack A. Partington a half-hour after the session opened and was under a gruelling cross-examination by ex-Senator James A. Reed for Warners when court adjourned until Monday morning.

It was the second of the alleged conferences in California, where the St. Louis situation was seriously broached by Wolff, according to his testimony. On the first occasion, he said he had brought up the situation with Schaefer, who had earlier invited him to be a guest of the convention when Zukor walked in. A portion of his talk with Schaefer and Zukor dwelt on the possibility of Fanchon & Marco producing a musical for Paramount release, according to the witness, when Barney and John Balaban joined the trio. With Zukor present, Wolff declared he had turned to Barney Balaban and said, "These gentlemen are allowing Warners to take away Paramount pictures from us in St. Louis. Can't you stop them?" Balaban's reply, the witness stated, was, "You haven't lost a picture yet and I believe you will get them (referring to Paramount product), so don't worry."

Discussed Musical Film

At the Paramount studio two months later when presumably the second discussion was held, Wolff, accompanied by his sister, Fanchon, the "F" in F. & M., testified the conversations swung largely around the deal for the musical aired at the first meeting. This is what Wolff in substance said then took place:

Zukor agreed with Fanchon & Marco that the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central were the best theatres in St. Louis. Although it was Paramount's preference not to sell away, he declared big companies had to do things at times which they preferred not to do. Wolff told Zukor this meant the extermination of F. & M. The last few years have not been so good for him either, Zukor rejoined.

He promised to send a wire regarding St. Louis in a promise to see if something could not be done. Wolff did not quote Zukor as mentioning to whom the contemplated wire had been or would have been sent. He never heard from Zukor thereafter about this but subsequently received a note from the then Paramount president referring Wolff to a Paramount studio executive relative to their discussed deal on the musical.

Reed Objects

Reed entered an objection on the ground that since no representative of Warners had been present the alleged conversation could not be binding upon his client. Louis Phillips for Paramount also rose to protest on the contention no foundation for authority has been established. Both were overruled and the testimony admitted in evidence, with the explanation by Judge Joseph West Molyneaux that it would stand on the record only if the Government subsequently during the course of the proceedings linked the defendant companies, Warners, Paramount and RKO, in a conspiracy.

In the talks he said he had had separately with Schaefer and Agnew, Wolff credited them with acknowledging the superiority of the three theatres as against the Shubert-Rialto which Warners had acquired for their first run outlet.

This is what Wolff testified further as to one of his talks with Agnew: "You know the Warners and what they can do," said the Paramount sales executive. "We would rather sell F. & M. but we are afraid of what Warners might do if we turned them down." They had threatened to upset Paramount's theatre reorganization for Detroit, where the company had a $12,0000,000 to $14,000,000 investment, Agnew added.

Questioned Legality

"We can't afford to have Warners break into that situation," was another comment. "Sometimes I think Harry Warner is drunk with power." Agnew was supposed to have said. Marco pleaded with him that the taking away of the Paramount product would ruin F. & M. in St. Louis and that one of the reasons for leasing the three theatres was the 25-year franchise they held for Paramount product. He told Agnew he did not think it was legal to take away that franchise. Agnew replied he did not know about the legality of such a step but that the deal with Warners had not been completed and spoke of the existence of a possibility for F. & M. to get the pictures.

Wolff, according to this testimony, declared Schaefer said he was satisfied with F. & M. as operators, pointing particularly to the Paramount Los Angeles, operation of which had been taken over by the interests with which Wolff was identified. Schaefer told him, declared Marco, that he did not want to take Paramount away from the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, but that Warners were "difficult people to deal with and sometimes we have to do things we don't want to." Marco at this point said Schaefer held out a ray of hope and indicated it was "not all over yet." This testimony developed under direct examination by Russell Hardy, Government attorney, who again attempted to bring in a conversation allegdly held by Wolff with Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warner Theatres in an east-bound Chicago-New York train on Nov. 21, 1934.

Denies Giving Interview

Motion Picture Daily today again played a prominent part. When Reed began his cross-examination his first point centered around a story published on Jan. 11, 1935. It was an article with a Los Angeles dateline telling of a transcontinental telephone conversation between Wolff and Harry C. Arthur, and dealt with the proceedings of the St. Louis grand jury which resulted in the criminal indictments against Warners, Paramount, RKO, Harry M. Warner, Abel Cary Thomas, Gradwell L. Sears, Herman Starr, George J. Schaefer and Ned E. Depinet.

Reed's question to the witness was, "After talking with Arthur did you not give an interview to the effect that, 'everything is turning out in our favor'?" The witness denied the query as well as the story. "Did you take it up with the newspaper?" asked Reed. "No," replied the witness. "Did you telegraph them?" further queried Reed. "No, I don't even know if they have an office in Los Angeles," rejoined Wolff.

After establishing the approximate date on which F. & M. leased the St. Louis, Reed hammered hard and long for information concerning policy and prices. He sought to prove that it was F. & M. which, by putting on duals and stage shows at 25 and 40 cents as against the 40 and 55-cent scale prevailing generally in St. Louis first runs at the time, had precipitated the price war which later embroiled the Fox, which also passed to F. & M. management 10 weeks after the St. Louis had been leased. With both theatres under joint management, it was established that the original price scale had been restored and the "war" then terminated.

Under questioning, Wolff conceded the St. Louis had stayed in the red each week under his company's regime and finally had to go dark. By the introduction of film contracts Reed demonstrated, and persuaded Wolff to admit, that the St. Louis and the Fox had been able to contract for RKO, Fox and Columbia, thereby giving it three major brands of product. But Wolff contended this was not enough to keep the theatres going. "Yet you double-billed in them, did you not?" pressed Reed. "Not always," replied the witness. "When we got an unusual attraction, we showed it single."

Wolff Hesitant

Picking up earlier threads in the Warner defense technique, which is constantly stressing the association of Harry Koplar, admitted "arch enemy" of the Warner organization, Reed endeavored to make Wolff admit that Koplar was identified with the operation of the five first runs currently under F. & M. management. Wolff admitted the lease of the St. Louis provided Koplar was to go along, but said he was not familiar with any arrangement covering Koplar in the other four except as an employee in a managerial capacity. While he did not state it in specific language, Reed implied definitely that Koplar was in the entire picture through $25,000 put up as part of the $105,000 guarantee on the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central by Dr. Jacob Probstein, who is Koplar's brother-in-law.

Wolff was a halting and hesitant witness. He persistently warded off direct answers to Reed's often sarcastic interrogations on the ground that he had had little to do with negotiations involved in the leasing of any of the five first runs under F. & M. management. He said he was not an officer of any of the various local F. & M. corporate entities and maintained his general knowledge about the deals covering the local theatres was limited. Frequently he advised Reed that the man to answer the barrage of questions fired was Arthur. He added he had only made two trips to St. Louis, one of them a forced landing while en route from New York to Los Angeles.

Partington Queried

Reed probed him in great detail about Chicago and New York meetings held prior to the acceptance of the Snyder bid in which F. & M. had become associated. Here, too, Wolff's knowledge was apparently limited.

Partington's final half-hour on the stand this morning had to do with a cross-examination by Phillips, who sought to check dates on which the witness and Arthur presumably spoke to Schaefer during the week of March 19, 1934. This ties in with Paramount's contention that Schaefer had been vacationing in Florida when both Partington and Arthur claimed they had conferred with him in New York about the situation in St. Louis. Partington declared he had made a special trip to New York from here to check the MOTION PICTURE DAILY files in an effort to definitely fix the date on which Schaefer had returned to that city from Miami.

Judge Molyneaux showed annoyance as the session terminated when there developed a need for subpoenaed records of the St. Louis Theatre. They were not in the courtroom. "If they are not produced, there will be something happening around here," the judge stated. There was a brief flurry which brought no results.

It's a cinch that when the hearing resumes Monday morning the required papers will be on hand.

By agreement with the court, Warners will produce the books of the Orpheum and a breakdown of that theatre's operation. This probably explains the presence here of Stuart McDonald, an assistant secretary of the Warner company. If the records are admissible, the court held they may be turned over to the Government for its own accountant to verify. Warner counsel stated it would put its own witness on the stand to explain details in this connection.

Ned E. Depinet is slated to leave for New York at noon Saturday and Harry M. Warner is now expected Sunday.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Timothy's Quest"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17.—What this production lacks in the way of big names is more than compensated for in a wealth of heart-warming entertainment. It has that sympathy and stimulation which really gets under the skin. The reaction of the preview audience here indicated that the show will receive public support parring or topping many more heavily ballyhooed productions.

Adapted from the novel of Kate Douglas Wiggins, the story portrays childhood heartbreak, tragedy and triumph skillfully and sympathetically. The screen play is by Virginia Van Upp, Dore Schary and Gilbert Pratt. It is a fine blend of drama, comedy and contrasting love interest. Charles Barton's skillful direction capitalizes fully on these values and accentuates the competent work of the featured players to a high degree.

Life is bitter for Dickie Moore and Sally Martin, orphans, under the heartless guardianship of J. M. Kerrigan and Irene Franklin. Sheltered in the home of wealthy but rigid Elizabeth Patterson, the little pair contribute performances that would do credit to more mature artists. Their childlike simplicity and fortitude in the face of many discouraging events captivates the heart of Miss Patterson. It aids in climaxing a charming romance between Eleanore Whitney and Tom Keene, and completely regenerates the brattish Virginia Weidler.

The rural locale plus an abundance of clean, wholesome drama and romance embellished by natural human comedy give the show an unusual appeal for small town and family audiences.

Looking 'Em Over

"King of the Damned"

(Gaumont British)

LONDON, Jan. 7.—This Helen Vinson, Noah Beery, Conrad Veidt vehicle is surely a remarkable proof of the extent to which G.B. has assimilated American formulas and technique. The sets, the mob scenes and the vigorous action, not to say the Devil's Island plot, might all have come from, and done credit to, a major coast studio.

Original angles in a convict mutiny story, somewhat familiar in its main outlines, are that the leader of the revolt is saint rather than tough and that he has actually been given his freedom but sacrifices it to save his fellow victims from oppression; there is the further development that the convicts, in control of the settlement, govern it more wisely than their gaolers did and surrender in the end on a promise that they will receive justice.

There is fighting aplenty and it is hair-raising stuff in the scenes of the convicts' capture of the barrack square and of the shelling of the settlement from a cruiser. An execution by garroting, too, is carried through until the steel necklet tightens about the Beery neck. The love interest, with Helen Vinson as an officer's fiancee who summons the avenging cruiser, and then repents, is suggested rather than shown. Beery is as unctuous and as effective as ever, as the heart-of-gold ruffian essential in any convict settlement. Veidt is a very gentle revolutionary, but many will respond to the emotional appeal of his last demand for justice for the oppressed, which nevertheless does not quite lift the film out of the class of effective melodrama. Running time, 75 minutes. "A."

All directors attending the meeting drafted resignations from the Academy which were submitted today.

Although Academy heads seemed unperturbed over the new setup this morning, it was intimated that a board of directors' meeting will be called within the next two days for discussion of the directors' move. It was understood that the Academy will continue with the achievement awards.

A decision regarding possible affiliation with the A. F. of L. has not yet been decided by the directors, a spokesman said.

Corporate papers were filed in Sacramento under the title of Screen Directors, Inc.

Money Export Ban Restricts German Trade

BERLIN, Jan. 9. — Germany has, like many other countries in Central Europe and elsewhere, prohibited the export of currency. This situation creates a peculiar problem so far as the exploitation of foreign-made pictures is concerned.

In former years some of the American branches in this country have distributed German-made films or have produced such films with the money that has piled up. A year has passed since these companies stopped their German production and restricted their business to distribution.

By their withdrawal from production in this industry the American

Last Argument On Sales Tax Set for Today

Court Appeal to Follow An Adverse Ruling

Local distributors will present final arguments today in answer to the city's moves to apply the two per cent sales tax to the entire film rentals of New York exchanges, regardless of the location of the theatres from which they are derived.

The exchanges are prepared to make stipulations covering testimony already given at an earlier hearing in opposition to the application of the sales tax to any film rentals. The new testimony to be presented today will be brief and directed specifically at the legality of the city's move to levy against film rentals derived from theatres outside the city limits.

Profit Exceeds Total On All of Previous Fiscal Year

Profits of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and subsidiaries, took a sharp jump during the three-month period ending Nov. 30. The net after deducting all charges, including interest, amortization, depreciation and Federal taxes, was $1,031,315.96. This bears out predictions made at the annual stockholders' meeting.

It is far greater than the net for the entire fiscal year ending Aug. 31, when the total was $674,158.96. For the same three-month period last year the net, after the charges mentioned above, was $16,248.69.

Gross income for the 13-week period was $8,602,147.32. Amortization of film costs, including depreciation of studio properties, was $4,873,634.14. Amortization and depreciation of Those Passes!

Mexico City, Jan. 19.—A warning to grateful exhibitors who issue passes for favors:

A lawyer in Leon, Guanajuato state, has sued an exhibitor for $2,500 because the exhibitor cancelled a pass granted the attorney and his family for a favor rendered many years ago. The lawyer said the cancellation hurt his dignity, but the exhibitor contends the pass was not issued for life.

Money Export Ban Restricts German Trade

companies have come under a new regulation which forms a part of the kontingent laws in effect since 1916, although in a different form.

In the past the wording of the kontingent law has been changed every year, making a clear policy for an extended range of years impossible for American companies. Since the arrival of the new Government the kontingent provisions have been untouched, only the prices of the kontingent licenses having been changed in the meantime.

Import Licenses Distributed

Each year, at least since the present stipulations have been in force, 105 import licenses have been distributed. Sixty of them are handed free of charge to distributors of German films and 30 to exporters of German films. The 60 distributors' licenses must, according to the provisions of the law, be used by distributors themselves and are non-transferable. The 30 exporters' licenses, however, are transferable once and have, in former times, been sold to U. S. companies at a price which has been regulated by market conditions. To prevent an over-rating of these exporters' licenses the Government prescribed at the end of 1934 a price of 20,000 marks ($8,000) for each license. After a stormy debate, which was conducted by George R. Canty, U. S. Trade Commissioner, the Government agreed to reduce this price and introduced a sliding scale.

The main point of this regulation is, that the wholesale price is reduced to 10,000 marks ($4,000) if the imported film is to be run in Germany in foreign language (original version) or with super-imposed German titles.

If this film is dubbed in German in a German studio with German negative stock and German actors, the price is reduced to 9,000 marks when more than 20,000 reichsmarks are paid for the dubbing. For each 5,000 marks more spent in making the German version the license price is reduced by another 1,000 marks, so that 5,000 marks are paid when the cost of the dubbing reaches the 40,000 mark limit.

U. S. Films Best of Foreigns

The license is issued on presentation of bills. After the American film companies retired from production the showing of U. S. films depended upon the availability of exporters' licenses and external licenses were used to differentiate them from the 60 internal licenses. Internal and external licenses make a total of 90 licenses every year, so that 25 licenses per year remain in the hands of the Government which are issued only when a special need for films exists.

U. S. films have always held first place so far as foreign-made product is concerned and there is no sign of a change in this connection. This preponderance of American films is mainly due to the fact that with a few exceptions only American film companies have their own representation in Germany.

Selection of American films for this market has not always been good. Some have done a tremendous business, beating house records. Others, however, have completely failed.

Some countries send films abroad which have been unsuccessful in the country of origin largely to cover the expense of production. This is always wrong. It spoils the market and hurts following productions because of the dissatisfaction of exhibitors.

Restrictions on Foreign Films

Germany has severe provisions for the showing of foreign-made films. Each company has to arrange a trade show which must be published three days ahead in the official organ of the Ass'n. of German Film Exhibitors. Even when there is a contract signed months before the exhibitor has a right to refuse the film within four days after the first public presentation. This provision causes constant fluctuation in the number of bookings and complicates the problems of foreign companies, which, generally, present films in original versions at first to judge reactions of the public and the press.

Germany considers films a cultural medium rather than mere distractions and films with logic and reasonable scenarios, and, possibly, with a healthy and fine humor, are more welcomed than typical American features which are rarely understood here. Historical films have a better chance than modern satires, human features a greater one than "hot stuff."

Oklahomans Attack Cooper Foundation

which was organized recently to fight an alleged monopoly of films which is said to be denying pictures to "schools, churches and independent exhibitors."

Cooper operates 30 theatres in partnership with Paramount. He plans to build two new houses here and others at Ardmore and Bartlesville and devote his share of the profits of the entire group to a $1,000,000 foundation for the establishment of homes "to maintain and provide education for destitute, deserving youngsters."

Cooper's plan was also criticized by Paul Harrup, president of the council, as socially unsound. "I am greatly opposed to the institutionalizing of children," he said. "In my work as boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A., I have observed the situation closely and I have learned that boys who come to us from institutions definitely are not well prepared for life. They lack initiative. Granted that Cooper is sincere in his plan, I believe that the money could be spent to greater benefit."

Harrup declined to comment on whether he believed the council or the Y. M. C. A. could put Cooper's money to better use.

Boston, Jan. 14.

(Best Exploitation: Keith's)

For straight film strength 'Magnificent Obsession' at the Keith Memorial seems to have edge on town at $20,000 pace. Getting ace play from women on matinees, but plenty femmes are dragging in escorts for night shows to swell the take to that very satisfactory figure.

In two other spots the pictures are the heavy money-makers. 'Magnificent Obsession' heads into the high water figures at the Palace and from indications on its opening days, it looks a cinch for at least a two or three weeks' gallop.

Palace (RKO) (2,500; 25-35-55-65)—'Obsession' (U), and vaude. Weaver Bros. heading the vaude. Picture is packing 'em, crowding the register to its biggest slice of money in many weeks. Looks like a holdover at $27,000, on almost completely adult draw.

'OBSESH,' 'CITIES' 2 H.O. IN ST. L. A RECORD

St. Louis, Jan. 14.

(Best Exploitation: Fox)

It's been ages since two St. Louis cinema palaces had celluloid features of sufficient b.o. at same time to hold 'em over for a second week but that is situation here this week. Fox. F&M's big first runner in midtown, is showing 'Obsession' for second week to swell business.

Fox (F&M) (5,638; 25-35-55)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U) (2d wk) First week was a surprise to town and word of mouth got b.o. $17,600 to count; second week is still going strong and should finish for a nice $11,000.

Cincinnati, Jan. 14.

(Best Exploitation: Albee)

Only two fresh releases at the major stands currently, and they're real b.o. 'Magnificent Obsession,' at the Albee, is the acer at a $17,500 tempo.

Theatres Picking Up In the Philippines

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Improved conditions in the Philippines have increased attendance at theatres, according to a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce from its Manila office.

An up-to-date theatre called the State has been opened in Manila. It has 1,020 seats, is air-conditioned, and is the first in the Philippines to have elevators to the balcony.

With the opening of the State, the Philippines have a total of 313 houses, which is equivalent to one for every four municipalities, or for every 43,000 inhabitants. Manila leads with 93, or one for every 3,000 of the population. Rizal, the neighboring province, is third with 18, being exceeded by Occidental Negros with 22. Laguan, Tayabas, and Pampanga provinces, all on Luzon Island, follow with 16, 13, and 12 respectively.

Southio Circuit Now Controls Ohio Town

MIDDLETOWN, O., Jan. 19.—Southio Theatres, Inc., a Paramount subsidiary, has leased the Gordon and Sorg, formerly controlled by Gordon Theatres, Inc., and now dominate this town with operation of the Paramount and Strand, which gives the organization 5,500 out of the 6,000 seats in this 30,000 population situation. The Sorg is one of the oldest stands in the territory and was recently acquired by the Gordon interests.

Under the new setup, prices at the Gordon have been reduced from 35 to 25 cents, and the Strand prices boosted from 15 to 20 cents. Both are all-day prices. James Stamper, assistant manager at the Strand, becomes manager of the Sorg, and Robt. Gibbs, Jr., in charge of the Sorg, goes to the Gordon. R. E. Peffley remains as city manager.

U. S. Pictures Lead In the Danish Field

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—During the first seven months of 1935, 80 per cent of the paid admissions to all theatres in Copenhagen, Denmark, were to film houses, according to a report from that city to the U. S. Department of Commerce. American films rank first among imported pictures, with German second and British third. It is estimated American films accounted for 60 per cent of the pictures released during the first nine months of last year.

There are now more than 300 houses in the country wired for sound. Generally speaking, says the report, pictures favorably received in the United States are also popular in Denmark.

Miss Carver brings along her wrestling sons, and together they proceed to wreck the place. Collins is again seen back at the boarding house lunging after the breakfast where he is happy. Production Code Seal No. 1773. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Excursions in Science No. 2"

(G.E.-A.O. Bondy)

An interesting industrial subject that should entertain and instruct audiences, this film shows a toothless set of gears, a sorting "phototube" and the manufacture of electric bulbs. The latter part is the most interesting. From the materials that go into the making of glass there is shown the gradual construction of bulbs right to the finished product. Excellent photography of the various machines reveals mechanical wonders. This should satisfy curiosity as to how bulbs are made. Distributed free as advertising. No production code seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"King of the Mardi Gras"

(Paramount)

Popeye and his man mountain rival in this one have rival spots on a midway and each boasts of his superiority to draw the crowd from the other. The rival makes off with Popeye's girl and the usual chase takes place on a roller coaster which makes for an exciting few moments with some spectacular animation. As usual the spinach settles accounts. Good cartoon offering. Production Code Seal, No. 0485. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Scrappy's Boy Scouts"

(Columbia)

A somewhat far fetched version of Boy Scout activities, this cartoon, by merit of some novel invention should prove entertaining. The theme concerns Scrappy's attempts to join a troop. He is found not to be up to standards and rejected. As the troop marches off he leads his own troop of dachshunds on a hike. Later he rescues the outfit that rejected him in a storm and is taken in after saying the scout oath. Production Code Seal, No. 1613. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Morocco"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

Differing from other offerings of the same country, this one gives glimpses of the handicrafts and arts of the polyglot populace. There is to be seen the tanning of Moroccan leather, silk making, manufacture and methods of dyeing. Interesting dialogue jocularly explains the gathering of snails and young locusts as food delicacies. Novel shots of peculiar eating customs in a native restaurant close an offering of merit. Good travel fare. Production Code Seal, No. 1572. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Soak the Rich"

(Paramount)

The unquenchable Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, who wrote, directed and produced this picture, have done a farce comedy centered about an extremely wealthy man, his spoiled daughter and a group of "radical" college students, who, the Hecht-MacArthur combine is at pains to point out, are merely suffering from the modern form of intellectual growing pains.

As comedy, it has some mildly amusing moments, but, as in the case of other of the pair's pictures, it is pointed, but perhaps not very accurately, for the sophisticated screen audience. It is, in effect, considerably more of a stage play lifted bodily to the screen, and it is open to question whether the average film patron will find much in it to entertain. The cast is headed by Walter Connolly, the only player whose name is apt to mean anything on the theatre marquee. Mary Taylor, with an amateur dramatic club speaking voice, plays his spoiled daughter; John Howard the young "radical," and Lionel Stander, Ilka Chase and Alice Duer Miller have the more important minor roles.

Connolly rants and raves over the "soak the rich" taxation, feels sorry for himself, and goes completely into the air when Miss Taylor, electing to return to the college her father built, falls in with Howard, leader of a small faction of students crying for the oppressed and poor. When the two fall in love, via considerable by-play which ridicules the boy's radical notions, Connolly takes a hand, attempting to steer her away from Howard. She is kidnapped by a lunatic, rescued through more farce comedy, and eventually turns against Howard and his professed ideals. Then the showdown, when Howard's resistance is broken down by the girl, and romance wins, while his erstwhile "radical" group enjoys the Connolly champagne, and ends by singing his praises.

It is, on the whole, a typical Hecht-MacArthur concoction, not, however, nearly so promising as certain of their earlier efforts. Some of their horse-play in this is not very funny and much of it is questionable in taste and judgment.

Production Code Seal, No. 0761. Running time, 87 minutes. "G."

"Riffraff" $5,000 Hit in Louiville

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 19.—Jean Harlow demonstrated that she has what it takes to bring the patrons in after the holiday spurt is over. "Riffraff" at Loew's State took top money for the town, $5,000, over par by $500.

"King of Burlesque" garnered $2,600 at the Strand, just $100 over normal. The Mary Anderson did well with "Captain Blood," which was well received by the critics and public. The picture received recommendations from church leaders and heads of civic groups. The second week's take was $2,800, over average by $300.

Other first runs felt the pinch, dropping below par in most instances.

The Kentucky, a Switow house on the main stem, has cut night price from 26 cents to 21 cents. This move will be felt by other Fourth Ave. houses, as this second run stand is a consistent money-maker, and strong opposition to the big-seaters.

All downtown theatres had good weeks. The Strand took $10,800 with "The Bride Comes Home," over par by $4,300.

"Two in the Dark" and a stage show garnered $8,200 for the Albee, $1,200 to the good. The Majestic was $500 over par with "Show Them No Mercy" and "Your Uncle Dudley," which hit $7,500. Fay's, with "Born to Gamble" and a revue, was even at $7,000.

Records for Houses Ruled Out by Court

Also Refuses to Allow Alleged Zukor Talk

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Jan. 20.—All records of the Orpheum and the Shubert-Rialto during Warner operation and a reputed conversation between Fanchon Simon, the F in Fanchon & Marco, and Adolph Zukor in the late summer of 1934 at the latter's office on the coast were ruled out today by Federal Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux as the Government's civil suit against Warners, Paramount and RKO entered its third week.

During a recess following the court's refusal to admit the records and alleged conversation Russell Hardy, chief of the Government's legal staff here, and Frederick H. Wood, co-

Production Falls To a Seasonal Low

Hollywood, Jan. 20.—Production went into its third week of doldrums last week and reached the season's ow activity mark.

The seven-day survey of studio production schedules showed 29 features and two short subjects on the sound stages. These figures are a trifle less than the previous checkup which registered 30 features and four shorts.

There was a gain in features being prepared for the cameras and slated to start in two weeks with 17 in the scenario departments as compared to 12 the previous week.

Warners and 20th Century-Fox led the field in production, each having five shooting.

Columbia had three features in Federal Amusement Taxes Jump $1,026,625 in 6-Month Period

Washington, Jan. 20.—Marked improvement in the amusement industries is demonstrated by a $1,026,625 increase in admission tax collections of the Government during the last half of 1935 as compared with the corresponding period of the preceding year, reported tonight by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Receipts from the admission tax during the first half of the current fiscal year reached $8,874,871, against $7,848,246 in the same period of the previous year.

Collections in December, the bureau reported, were nearly $112,000 under those of November, but were $89,000 ahead of December, 1934, amounting to $1,755,059 against $1,866,915 the preceding month and $1,666,060 in the same month of the previous year.

Appeal Court Holds Drawing Is a Lottery

The Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court, Brooklyn, affirming a decision of the Court of Special Sessions, has decided that prizes awarded as the result of spinning a wheel in a theatre are in violation of the state lottery law. District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan of Brooklyn saw the decision as opening the way for the arrest of theatre operators who distribute cash awards as the result of drawings.

The case was against Charles Cranides, theatre manager; Joseph Kiley, assistant manager, and Farmer Miller, who operated the wheel used in the drawing. A policeman who attended the house Aug. 22 was the complainant. He said he purchased a ticket, and was given another with a stub bearing a given name. He dropped the stub into a box, he said,

Warner Policy on Bands Not Set Yet

St. Louis, Jan. 20.—While Warners expect to file additional suits almost daily charging radio broadcasters with the unlicensed performance of Warner owned music, no legal action is contemplated against theatres, hotels, cafes or other public users of music until after such time as the company's licensing policy for these classifications of users has been made known, Herman Starr, Warner vice-president, said today.

The Warner licensing policy as it affects theatres and hotels is now under discussion, but probably will not be made known for several weeks

Quick End of Mexico Tangle Is Predicted

The settlement within a few days of labor and tax problems which have barred the operations of distributors in Mexico since September is now a possibility, foreign managers of major distribution companies were advised yesterday at a meeting at M.P.P.D.A. headquarters.

Current reports from Mexico on the situation were studied at the meeting, at which Frederick L. Herron of the M.P.P.D.A. presided. The distributors' policies will remain in status quo until the expected developments materialize, it was stated following the meeting.

American distributors curtailed their activities in the Mexican market appreciably following the imposition of drastically higher duties on American films entering Mexico last year. This was followed in September by

Theatre Men Not Heard in Tax Protest

Get Permission to File Briefs Before Ruling

Exhibitor representatives were denied the privilige of being heard on their opposition to the city's efforts to apply the two per cent sales tax to film rentals at a hearing yesterday before representatives of the city finance department.

Louis Goodgold, of the city comptroller's office, who held that exhibitors were "not proper parties" to the hearing on the application of the tax to film rentals, conceded them the right, however, to file briefs in opposition to the city's procedure and gave them one week in which to do this. It was indicated that this would be done by Allied of New Jersey, Keith-Albee-Orpheum and the I. T. O. A., all of whom had representatives at the hearing to oppose the tax on behalf of exhibitors. A decision on the application of the tax was reserved by the city officials and is not expected until some time after the time allotted for the filing of the briefs.

Definite indications were given during the hearing that the city will rule that film rentals are subject to the tax either in whole or in large part. Distributors have been anticipating such a decision for some weeks past and are prepared to appeal the city's ruling in the case to the Appellate Division.

An appeal may be based in part on the question of the constitutionality of the city's sales tax law, it was made evident at the hearing. Melvin Albert, attorney, of Weisman, Quinn, Allen & Spett, representing the I. T. O. A., pointed out that the city was attempting to levy on film rentals derived from pictures which exhibitors had contracted for months prior to the enactment of the sales tax. He declared that the result was an impairment of contract and that the provision of the sales tax which specifies that the tax shall apply to such antedated contract sales was unconstitutional.

Albert Testimony Ruled Out

Goodgold refused to permit Albert's remarks to be made a part of the record and observed "this isn't the place to argue the constitutionality of the amendment." He stated, however, that if and when the tax is found to be applicable to films the exhibitors will be given a hearing. He also declined to permit Norman Samuelson, attorney for Allied of New Jersey, and Lee Newberry, president of that organization, to testify for the record.

Assessment A Test Case

Yesterday's hearing was specifically on the right of the city to assess the United Artists exchange $21,232 on its film receipts from Dec. 10, 1934, to May 31, 1935. This assessment is being accepted as a test case by all local exchanges. A first hearing in opposition to it was held Nov. 8. Yesterday additional testimony in opposition was offered by Paul Lazarus, U. A. assistant sales manager; Samuel Rifkin, a U. A. salesman for New Jersey, and Edward Mullins, office manager of the U. A. exchange. The testimony in the main attempted to show that rentals derived from theatres outside New York City were not properly subject to the tax. At the November hearing testimony was offered to show that the rentals received from local theatres, likewise were not taxable by the city.

Edward Raftery of O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, attorneys for U. A., and T. N. Lawler of the same law firm, maintained that every film shipment without qualification is interstate commerce and, as such, not subject to a municipal tax.

Goldman Partnership Stirs Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20.—The setup whereby William Goldman will operate the theatre to be constructed in the new 69th St. Terminal has the local trade intrigued by the involutions of its partnership arrangement and its competitive aspects.

Goldman, one time local chief of the Warner forces and lately an independent exhibitor, is a partner with Warners in the new terminal theatre, though he will operate it under his own name under a 10-year lease. In competition with the house is the 69th St. Theatre, across the street which is a Warner house, and the Tower, within a stone's throw, which was recently sold by the Frichofer-Nirdlinger estates to a new corporation. Rumor states that it may eventually join the Warner string. In other words, the new Goldman-Warner spot may have strong competition from two other large Warner houses.

While this partner-competition is taking place in the West Philadelphia district, Goldman is in strong competition with Warners in the Germantown neighborhood where his Bandbox Theatre is surrounded by three nearby Warner houses definitely restricting Goldman's first run product. The question local Vine Streeters are asking is "Who's fighting whom?

and later a wheel was spun on the stage. It stopped at a name, and all stubs with that name were collected. One of those was drawn to decide the winner.

Justices Bayes, Murphy and McInerney in Special Sessions found the defendants guilty of maintaining a lottery and suspended sentence. Melvin Albert, defense attorney, took the case to the Appellate Division, contending one might participate in the drawing without purchasing a ticket, and that consequently there was no violation of the law. George F. Palmer, assistant district attorney, declared that purchase of a ticket made no difference. The decision of the Appellate Court was unanimous. Albert said he would seek Appellate Division permission as soon as possible to have the decision reviewed by the Court of Appeals.

The I.T.O.A. will hold a meeting at the Hotel Astor tomorrow to determine the organization's policy, pending a later decision by the Court of Appeals.

more due to delays occasioned by the hearing in progress in Federal court here of the application for an injunction against Warners, RKO and Paramount, which has required the attendance of Warner executives. At present, Warner officials do not regard theatres and cafe orchestras using Warner music as infringers, inasmuch as the company has made no arrangements for the licensing of these music users.

Suits were filed by Warners in Federal court at New York late last week against four radio broadcasters charging unlicensed performances and asking $5,000 damages in each instance. The licensing of radio broadcasters is the only licensing procedure decided by Warners to date.

Starr related that five Warner song numbers were eliminated recently from the performance of Glen Gray's Casa Loma orchestra at the Paramount, New York, although Warners have not made known their licensing policy for stage bands and had no intention of bringing suit in this instance.

It was learned that since withdrawing from Ascap, Dec. 31, to begin independent licensing, Warners have paid their first quarter royalties to Ascap for all Warner theatres. The payment, of course, covers the performance at the Warner theatres of the music not controlled by Warners.

The American distributors' efforts to settle both obstacles to normal operations have been in progress since, with the cooperation of the Mexican Federal authorities during the past few months.

The complete cessation of American distribution has resulted in a picture shortage in Mexico which has greatly impaired theatre operation there, is is reported.

Records for Houses Ruled Out by Court

Warner counsel, almost came to blows. The clash was averted by former Senator James A. Reed, who called Wood to him after an exchange of words with Hardy.

Anxious to make notations of figures contained in transcriptions made up by Warners for the two theatres, Hardy asked Wood if he could look them over. The request was granted. Wood then told Hardy he did not want the Government to offer them again. Hardy differed with his adversary on this point and refused to return the papers when the Warner counsel asked for them.

Riled at Hardy for this, Wood said, "I suppose you will have copies made and give one to Harry C. Arthur."

Hardy, flushed and indignant, remarked, "That's a contemptible statement and I resent it."

No Apology from Wood

No apology was made by Wood as he left the Government's table. However, the Warner lawyer referred to the situation in no uncertain terms later when he declined to let Hardy glance at contracts Warners had made with Tom K. Smith for product at the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. Wood, producing the pacts under Government subpoena, placed them on the long table underneath the judge's bench when Hardy made a move to pick them up, the Warner counsel stopped him, saying, "I haven't introduced them."

Hardy queried, "You don't want me to touch them?" Wood replied, "I find it safer when you don't." Hardy then walked away from the table and that was that.

When the Government called for the records of the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum, Stewart McDonald, assistant treasurer of Warners and vice-president and assistant treasurer of General Theatrical Enterprises, took the stand to explain them. During part of the Government's examination of the witness, it was revealed Vitagraph receives $1,000 a week for every Warner and First National picture playing the theatres in addition to $125 in weekly rental for shorts, and that Circuit Settlement Corp. acts as disbursing agent for General Theatrical Enterprises, which operates the two Warner houses here. Although Judge Molyneaux refused to admit the books and papers of the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum, he granted the Government permission to have its accountants check the box-office statements and summaries of operation expenditures.

Phillips Objects

Fanchon's tenure of the witness box was limited to her history in the show business. When she brought her theatrical biography up to date, the witness was about to relate a conference assertedly held with Zukor. Louis Phillips of the Paramount home office legal roster, objected on the grounds that Zukor had not acted within the scope of his authority.

Moving to obviate the appearance of present and past Paramount executives here, Phillips submitted a 16-point stipulation as to the titles and functions of Schaefer, Agnew, Ralph Kohn, Sam Dembow, Y. Frank Freeman, Ralph LiBeau and Charles M. Regan. In addition, he listed the various companies, their subsidiaries and functions.

The Paramount attorney objected to two clauses, one dealing with the 25-year franchise between Skouras Super Theatres and Famous Lasky Corp., dated Aug. 1, 1928, and the cancellation of the agreement on July 28, 1932. The second was a list of theatres in which Paramount is interested.

Phillips' arguments were that the Skouras franchise was canceled because the company with which it was made not only was indebted to Paramount but had no local theatres; that the agreement was a personal contract. As for the list of Paramount houses, Phillips contended this was irrelevant to the issue as neither the parent company or any of its subsidiaries had theatres in St. Louis. The objection was overruled after Walter Rice, assistant to Hardy, stated the purpose of the list was to show the extent of power of the corporation. Rice added, "Warners threatened to interfere with Paramount's reorganization in Detroit and the list will show what theatres were in jeopardy."

Phillips held that Zukor had nothing to do with St. Louis at the time of the meeting with Fanchon, that Paramount was in bankruptcy and that the trustees and not Zukor were the only ones who could act for the company. Judge Molyneaux then told Hardy, "It's up to you to lay a foundation first for Zukor's power."

The Government counsel then contended that a stipulation entered by Paramount showed Zukor was the chief executive at the time, but Phillips countered that the trustees had designated George J. Schaefer and Neil F. Agnew in charge of sales and they were the only persons who could act.

Phillips also asserted he did not object to the Zukor-Marco Wolff conference on June 6, 1934, because Schaefer had then been present. Hardy made another effort to have the Fanchon-Zukor conversation admitted, but it was no use. The Government ended its examination there and defense counsel excused the witness without asking a single question.

In denying Paramount's objection, the court pointed out the stipulation was being received at the discretion of the court.

With this question out of the way John E. Otterson, Zukor, Freeman, Austin C. Keough and Agnew have been released from Government subpoenas and will not appear here unless needed by Phillips as defense witnesses. Dembow, who had been here two weeks awaiting a call, returned east Saturday with Edward Alperson. It is understood Leo Spitz, RKO president, will not be needed, but he is on a 24-hour call if he is required.

Wolff resumed the stand this morning and it appeared for a moment he would not be questioned by defense counsel. However, when the witness advised Reed he could qualify as to the corporated setup of various F. & M. companies Warner counsel interrogated him for 20 minutes. Wolff said he had been mistaken about some of his testimony in connection with F. & M. holdings in affiliate companies and produced two typewritten sheets supplied by Ernest L. Wilkinson, his attorney, with the complete data.

Papers Produced

All papers and records of the local F. & M. companies subpoened by Warners were produced today by Arthur. There was some question last week if they could be located but the court said that if they weren't, "something's going to happen around here." The bundles and papers were spread out on the table below Judge Molyneaux's bench and had not been introduced when the session broke up. It became a problem what to do with them. The court finally settled the matter by placing them in the custody of the clerk. Harry Koplar, appearing for the first time in this case, brought some papers of Famous Amusement Co. They were also subpoenaed by Warners.

At the request of Rice, who said he will not be here at the close of the Government's case, the court consented to hear arguments on the admissibility of testimony given earlier in the proceedings by J. M. Ulmer, Cleveland lawyer. Wood opposed the Government on this question and the debate lasted for about two hours. At the termination Judge Molyneaux reserved his decision until Tuesday morning.

Argue on Conversation

The principle of res gestae was the basis for the protracted arguments, the Government holding the Ulmer conversation with Herman Starr at the latter's office on Aug. 14, 1933, admissible because the talks show the state of mind of the Warner executive at the time, that it was a verbal act and an admission of an agent acting within the scope of his authority in a transaction at the time. Wood held the statements by Starr were not in furtherance of a conspiracy and cannot be introduced as a declaration of an alleged conspirator. The Warner lawyer also argued the statements were not made when Starr was acting in the scope of his authority in the Capitol, Wheeling, W. Va., matter and they further were not admissible on the same grounds covered in the alleged conversations Joseph Bernhard had with Jack A. Partington on an eastbound train from Chicago. Wood said Starr's statements would be admissible if the court were trying the Wheeling case.

Indications tonight are that Cresson E. Smith, RKO western and southern sales manager, will take the stand first Tuesday morning.

Thomas N. Dysart, who was granted leave from cross-examination by the defense to take a Florida vacation, has returned from the south and is on call. He did not appear in court today. Partington returned to New York over the week-end.

"The Alchemist's Hourglass"

(The Norton Co.)

The industrial film departs from the usual production of this type, for it presents a historical background and has a semblance of a plot. The use of abrasives from medieval times to the present is shown by introducing a story in which an alchemist, who is sponsored by a prince, after making synthetic gems demonstrates how they can be used for purposes other than as ornaments. A grinder nicks a noble's sword and is feeling his wrath when the alchemist intervenes and, taking the sword, he puts an edge on it that can slice through silk without effort. His audience is delighted, but suspects him of being a sorcerer. Using his hourglass he shows them the future. At this point there is a finely edited array of stock shots showing modern machinery and craft which depend on abrasives for their proper functioning.

As no distribution plans have been set, the film is being handled by The Norton Co. of Worcester, Mass. It should make good program filler. Production Code Seal No. 0795. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

Atlantic City Finds Use for Dark Banks

ATLANTIC CITY, Jan. 20.—This may point a contrast, a moral or something:

While Chicago's closed bank buildings are to be made into modern film houses, this playground resort has turned its financial mausoleums into night clubs.

One marble edifice here is a swanky dine, dance and cocktail stop on the fringe of the luxury residence section. Another, on the edge of the Northside colored belt, is recommended by taxi drivers to thrill-seeking tourists.

A third recently was opened as an upper-class, upper-price cocktail and seafood spot for beachfront hotel guests.

The only other ex-bank buildings suitable for conversion here point a contrast by serving as Federal work-relief headquarters.

Get Set for Contest

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 20.—Commonwealth Amusement managers are set on the "1936 History Makers Contest." Plans for it were outlined here last week at a meeting.

Looking 'Em Over

"Frasquita"

(DuWorld)

The outstanding feature in this operetta, produced in Austria by Atlantis, Vienna, is the music by Franz Lehar, who makes a screen appearance merely as the conductor of the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, in an opening and closing sequence. There is the usual light comedy story, of romantic complication. Lovers of music in this country may be expected to enjoy the score, and the voices of Jarmila Novotna, of the Prague Opera House, as the gypsy girl, and Hans Heinz Bollman, in the leading masculine role.

Superimposed dialogue translations, which might have been more plentiful, assist in an understanding of the story by those unfamiliar with the language. Two friends are en route to the home of Harold's prospective bride. They encounter a band of gypsies and Harold falls in love with Frasquita. His friend falls in love with Harold's fiancee. From that point often amusing complications develop as the friend attempts, with the fiancee's help, to further the romance of Frasquita and Harold, leaving the way clear for his own courtship.

Eventually, of course, after a quarrel or two with Frasquita, Harold succeeds in winning her, and his friend's romance is also completed. Throughout the film the music is highly attractive.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Bowes' Unit, "Band" Big in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20.—The lure of Major Bowes and his amateurs still holds good here, being responsible for a $17,500 week at the Earle. The feature was "Dance Band." The other stage show house, the Fox, also cashed in nicely with a $16,000 second and final week for "King of Burlesque."

On the whole, the town felt some of the post-holiday slump with several features not getting the breaks they were entitled to. "Dangerous" at the Boyd and "Collegiate" at the Stanley both got good press notices, but were both under par with $11,000 and $11,500, respectively. Rain in the middle of the week hurt business.

In its second run at Keith's, "Captain Blood" cruised along to $3,700, best figure for the house in a long time, and was held a second week.

Total first run business was $78,800. Average is $84,300.

"Obsession" Pittsburgh's Hit, $12,500

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20.—"The Magnificent Obsession" at the Alvin was far ahead of anything here last week, claiming around $12,500, more than double average, for the biggest thing this house has had since "Steamboat 'Round the Bend." It got away to a great start, continued to build and was held over.

The only real disappointment was "Collegiate" at the Penn. It fell off to $9,000, considerably below recent takings here. The Stanley didn't drop as expected after a sensational week before and pulled down a very satisfactory $21,500 with "Splendor" and a stage show, while the Fulton in six days, got a seven-day average, $4,000, with "Charlie Chan's Secret" and "Hitch Hike Lady." At the Warner "Seven Keys to Baldpate" and "Millions in the Air" got away briskly but fell off down the home stretch and wound up with $4,600.

Wehrenberg Tells of Effort To Get Films

Sought Paramount, RKO Product for House

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 21.—Testifying as a Government witness today in the equity action against Warners, Paramount and RKO, Fred Wehrenberg, president of the M. P. T. O. of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, recounted his unsuccessful efforts to obtain Paramount and RKO product for subsequent run showing at the New Grand Central, in December, 1934.

He conferred with Harry Koplar and Harry Arthur, Fanchon & Marco vice-president and general manager, on the invitation of Koplar, at the Fox Theatre on Dec. 8, 1934, Wehrenberg testified. At that conference Arthur offered him two propositions on the New Grand Central. One was that F. & M. would give him a half-

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—According to a report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 107,718,000 persons attended 799 film theatres during the past year throughout Canada. This is the first aggregate attendance compilation made by the Government.

Receipts in six of the nine provinces were in excess of those of the previous year, British Columbia showing the greatest advance with 6.6 per cent and Ontario three per cent. The greatest falling off was in Quebec, where the decrease for the year was 3.2 per cent. Mani-

Crisis on 52nd St.

The waiters at "21" walked out on strike yesterday and left that effete establishment, rendezvous of many film men, in very much of a jam.

However, the film contingent got along, as did others, with only a slight delay to Ralph Rolan, Phil Reisman, Capt. George McL. Baynes, Joe Moskowitz, Bob Goldstein, Willard McKay, Charles B. Paine and Monte Brice.

Theatre Boom Underway in Detroit Area

Many New Houses Going Up; Others Planned

DETROIT, Jan. 21.—Theatre building is gaining boom proportions in this territory, observers agree.

In this city the University, a 2,000-seater, is under construction in the University of Detroit section, and another is being built at Grand River and Southfield. Both of these are for United Detroit Theatres.

Barney Kilbride and Joe Stoia, operating the Alhambra and Midway, will soon start a 1,000-seat house to be known as the Dome, at West Warren and Schaffer Road, and Joe Miskinnis has plans for another new house at West Warren and Miller Road.

Lew Wisper, of Wisper and Wetsman, operators of nine neighborhood houses, has planned for a 1,900-seat house to be started in April at

Warners Offer WNYC Free Music License

Licensing of the city-owned radio station, WNYC, for the use of Warner music without charge can be had by the station on application. Warners, through their music subsidiary, Harms, Inc., advised Mayor LaGuardia yesterday in a letter which pointed out that the station's "rather precipitate recourse to litigation" was unnecessary. WNYC brought suit against Warners last week asking a declaratory judgment for its use of Warner music on the grounds that the station is a non-profit operation.

The Warner letter explained that no application for a license had been received from WNYC.

Para. Claims Record On King George Reel

Paramount claims a new speed record for distribution of newsreel films throughout the country. Within 20 minutes after the announcement of the death of King George, it says, film records of his life with leaders announcing his death were released by all exchange centers.

Announcement of the death was made in England, Paramount says, at 6:55 P. M., Eastern Standard time. At 7:18 the film was being shown at the Paramount.

Discuss New Move In Anti-Dual Case

An application for leave to reargue the appeal on the legality of the anti-feature clause in exhibition contracts before the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia was discussed yesterday at a meeting of major company attorneys at M.P.P.D.A. headquarters.

If the application for reargument is made it would set aside for the time being any move to bring the double features case before the U. S. Supreme Court, as was favored by some distributors earlier. Such a move, however, undoubtedly would be taken if the application to reargue should be made and denied.

Standard May Ask Extension Of "U" Option

Still Studying Company Financial Details

Indications are that Standard Capital Co. will be unable to arrive at a decision on the exercising of its option to acquire a controlling interest in Universal until approximately the time of the expiration of the option, Feb. 1. The negotiation of an extension of the option time beyond that date, if necessary, is a possibility.

J. Cheever Cowdin, head of Standard, said yesterday that, despite the fact that his company's study of Universal's financial position and requirements had been proceeding "day and night," the work could not be completed before next week at the earliest. Standard's decision on exercising the option is awaiting the completion of this study.

The understanding is that Universal leans favorably toward the idea and that the terms of such an option are being worked out now.

Roxy Estate Placed At $5,000 by Widow

Samuel L. (Roxy) Rothafel left an estate valued at less than $5,000, according to a petition for letters of administration filed in surrogate's court yesterday by the widow, Mrs. Rosa R. Rothafel. The petition stated that no will had been found and that Roxy's personal estate consisted principally of a claim against RKO, which was recently proposed for settlement at $179,271, but since his death has become subject to possible readjustment.

It was believed that Roxy held life insurance for a large amount but no mention of insurance was made in the widow's petition. Roxy owned no real estate.

Allied Union Loses Richmond Hill Case

Justice Aron Steuer yesterday denied an application by Allied M. P. Operators Union for an injunction to restrain Screen Theatres, Inc., operator of the Garden, Richmond Hill, L. I., from employing Local 306 operators after having been a member of the I. T. O. A. when the organization entered into an agreement to employ members of the Allied union.

In denying the application Justice Steuer found that the Garden had dismissed Allied operators two years ago and since had employed members of Local 306. He ruled that Allied had waived its right to relief by failing to make its application for an injunction sooner and also pointed out that Allied had failed to show that efforts had been made to settle the cause by arbitration. Mathew M. Levy was counsel for Local 306 in the case.

Local 306 Appeal Denied

The Court of Appeals yesterday denied Local 306 the right to appeal in the case of Allied M. P. Operators' Union against the Tiffany Theatre in the Bronx, according to Murry Harston, attorney for Allied.

Allied had sued originally to compel the Tiffany to employ its men under a 10-year agreement with the I.T.O. and won in a lower court. Local 306, which had defended the theatre, took the case to the Court of Appeals in an effort to have the injunctive relief first obtained by Allied removed. Harston said yesterday the clerk of the higher court advised the right of appeal had been denied the theatre and 306.

Claims "Beat" on King's Death

The Embassy, Broadway newsreel house, reported yesterday that by the receipt of a special Pathe News release on the death of King George V at 7:13 P. M. Monday, it was enabled to score a "beat" on New York dailies, which did not reach Broadway with news of the King's death until 30 minutes later. Its lettering announcing the death was on the Embassy's marquee simultaneously with receipt of the Pathe special, the theatre management said.

The Embassy said it received a special release from Paramount News at 7:40 P. M., and that Hearst, Fox and Universal reels made no specials, but issued releases yesterday morning covering the death.

Seebach, Cameraman, Dead in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21.—James Seebach, veteran Fox Movietone staff cameraman, died suddenly here Monday. His death follows closely upon that of Bill Loweree, late sports film editor of the reel.

interest in the house if he could get the needed pictures, or that he could have the house itself, merely paying the weekly rental of $350 required under the lease with the St. Louis Ambassador Theatre Co., owner of the property.

He mentioned conversations with Maurice Schweitzer, local Paramount manager, and Lou Elman and Tom Tobin, RKO manager and salesman, respectively, regarding the obtaining of films for subsequent run at the New Grand Central.

He admitted he had entered into no verbal or written agreement with Arthur on either proposition for the house, when questioned by Frederick H. Wood of Warner counsel, but said he merely tried to find out whether Paramount or RKO product would be available. He testified that Schweitzer told him some days later, after consulting New York, that Paramount thought it inadvisable to book its films into the New Grand Central, fearing it might hurt first run receipts from the Shubert-Rialto, nearby, where Paramount product was being shown on a percentage basis.

Wehrenberg also said that Schweitzer told him the St. Louis Amusement Co. had previously taken second run rights for Paramount product in the city. Wehrenberg said the same was true of RKO, and answering a question put by Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux, he said he did not expect to obtain second run rights for either Paramount or RKO product.

RKO Product at $100 Per Day

The price question was not taken up with Schweitzer, the witness said, but Tobin said he would sell RKO product for $100 a day, which Wehrenberg declared he considered too high, considering the overhead at the New Grand Central. He said when he approached Elman, the latter said he thought Ben Brinkmeyer, now manager of Koplar's Montgomery, had leased the New Grand Central, and when Elman was told Brinkmeyer had not gone through with the deal, he said he would look up a proposition for RKO product which he had made to Brinkmeyer. Then Tobin made the $100 a day offer.

Wehrenberg did nothing further on RKO, he testified, until he met Elman in the old Federal Building during the grand jury investigation into the alleged conspiracy of Warners, Paramount and RKO to withhold product from the Missouri, Ambassador and New Grand Central.

"I asked Elman again about RKO pictures for the New Grand Central," Wehrenberg testified, "and he replied, 'Get a lease first, Fred, and then we will talk about it.'"

According to Wehrenberg, the eight major producers turn out 97 per cent of the high grade films, and in his opinion a first run house could not be operated successfully without some of their pictures.

Under cross-examination by Wood, it developed that Wehrenberg had not tried to get Columbia, Universal or Fox product for the New Grand Central. These films are shown first run by the F. & M. houses, including the Fox, but Wehrenberg said, answering a question by Walter L. Rice, assistant to Russell Hardy, chief Government attorney, that he had no understanding with Arthur that he could not seek pictures playing at the Fox.

Price War Discussed

The price war that followed the reopening of the St. Louis under F. & M. management in November, 1933, was brought out by Wood's cross-examination. At that time, the St. Louis ran a stage show and double feature films for 25 cents and 40 cents, compared with the 65-cent top formerly charged at the house by Koplar's Famous Amusement Co., and the 55 cents which was top at the Ambassador, Loew's State and the Fox.

Wehrenberg declared the war between the St. Louis and the Fox hurt subsequent run houses. He was questioned on the meetings held by his organization in November, 1933, to protest to Fox, Columbia and RKO on the cut in first run admissions, and a second session the following year when similar protests were lodged with producers and F. & M. about the extension of the matinee time at the Missouri and Ambassador from 6 P. M. to 7:30 P. M.

The witness declared that on Dec. 8, 1934, he was aware that F. & M. had complained to the Department of Justice about the local situation, having obtained the information from Koplar. He said he received a telephone call from Koplar shortly after, when Koplar wanted to know whether he had obtained Paramount and RKO product for the New Grand Central. Wehrenberg said he considered two changes weekly at the house and would have needed four to six pictures each week.

Harry M. Warner, president of Warners, appeared in court this afternoon for the first time during this hearing, and Rice sought to have him excluded from the courtroom. Judge Molyneaux declined, declaring it was within the court's discretion, and he believed Warner, as head of a defendant company, should be permitted to assist the defense.

Ulmer, Gordon Testimony Admitted

Early in today's session, the court tentatively admitted the testimony of J. M. Ulmer and B. D. Gordon, Cleveland attorneys, on an alleged conversation with Herman Starr, Warner vice-president, on Aug. 14, 1933. It was tentatively excluded several days ago, and the court has not yet definitely decided on it.

Hardy spent considerable time this morning introducing various leases on the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum, and contracts on pictures for the houses, as well as correspondence of Warners, Paramount and RKO relative to the pictures. He tried to get into the record the indictment in the criminal case on the ground certain options in the leases of the local houses were exercised by Warners and subsidiaries after the indictment was voted on Jan. 11, 1934, but the court immediately sustained an objection by the defense.

The testimony of Cresson E. Smith, RKO southern and western sales manager, was largely a repetition of his previous testimony in the criminal case, and related to the preparation and signing of the contract to supply RKO product to Warners for use at the Shubert-Rialto late in September, 1934.

On the Lighter Side

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Jan. 21.—The testimony, as of Monday morning, totaled 1,279 pages. At the present rate the record will far exceed that taken in the criminal proceedings.

I. Levinson is pinch hitting for Grad Sears as far as gags go in the civil case. Sears, who returned from New York Sunday, can't get near the courtroom because he will be called by Warners when this company starts its defense. Levinson isn't bad at the bat.

Bill Gentry took his first look at the proceedings from the jury panel Monday afternoon. He sat next to the door in the first seat.

Sam B. Jeffries likes to doze in the afternoons. This reporter caught him in the act Monday afternoon while Walter Rice was arguing the doctrine of res gestae.

And, by the way, that res gestae is getting in everyone's hair. We won't be surprised one of these fine days to find the Merry-Go-Round and Crystal Terrace in the Park Plaza serving a drink of that kind. With all the Warner wiseacres around, anything can happen. Even res gestae.

Louis Pelegrine, former member of the Motion Picture Daily editorial staff, was around earlier in the week en route to the coast. He's making the trip by bus.

Cress Smith had a peripitetic urge Monday afternoon when he was called by the Government to be on hand. Smith went to the local exchange after having been excused in the morning and was summoned to the courthouse expecting to go on. He didn't, and in the time he waited he must have walked a couple of miles up and down the corridor. His cohorts, Sam Dembow and Eddie Alperson, were not here to keep him company, of all things.

We just can't tell the reason for it, but every Warner man here on Sunday night ordered a nice juicy steak for dinner at the Park Plaza.

Harry C. Arthur, his brother, Milt, and Irving Lesser have an explanation for the judicial order excluding witnesses from the courtroom. Daily they repair to an unoccupied witness room and together confer on theatre matters pressing at the time. The only thing lacking in the makeshift office is a telephone.

Former Senator James A. Reed's wife has been missing from the courtroom the last 10 days.

Marco Wolff and his sister, Fanchon, haven't decided when they'll leave these parts for either the coast or the east. Both finished testifying Monday.

Chick Evens, manager of Loew's, is the only one who shows up in the courtroom with a white carnation in his lapel.

Milton B. Arthur says he is not missed in Los Angeles. On the last trip and on this one business at his theatres has been better than when he is on the coast.

K. C. Operators in "Unfair" Campaign

Kansas City, Jan. 21.—Local IATSE operators are instituting a campaign against "unfair" subsequent runs. Between 500 and 1,000 copies of the Labor Herald containing a list of "unfair" houses, and a parallel list of houses using union operators, is being distributed in the neighborhoods of the non-union houses.

Union workers found going into "unfair" theatres will be fined.

After several months of off-and-on negotiations between subsequent runs and I. A. T. S. E. officials, the union appears no closer to signing contracts with subsequent run owners and managers. Many of these houses have been using union men, but without contracts.

Union men want to get this matter settled before going into a huddle with downtown houses, which are operating on last year's schedule following their refusal to grant increases when contracts came up for renewal early in the fall.

Actors and Writers Meet Labor Units

Hollywood, Jan. 21.—The Screen Actors' and Screen Writers' Guilds met here today at the Writers Club with teamsters, carpenters and other recognized labor unions in the first move toward plans for a Hollywood film industry labor council. Representatives of IATSE, Directors' Guild and IBEW did not attend. The meeting was a closed affair.

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 21.—Steve Broidy, Republic salesman, is treasurer of the newly formed Hampshire Amusement Corp. which has taken over the Academy of Music formerly operated by C. W. Sharp Sues TWA

Hollywood, Jan. 21.—Henry T. Sharp, Paramount studio cameraman today filed suit for $519,648 against TWA for injuries he says were sustained in the plane crash last year in which three persons were killed. Sharp was enroute to the "Annapolis Farewell" location at the time.

Loew's State and the Delman, the latter a suburban owned by I. Adelman of Ft. Worth, have not entered the competition. Officials of both theatres say they will do so only if they are forced into it by the competition.

Court Denies Case Review

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—Bank Night, represented by George S. Ryan, local attorney, won an anti-lottery litigation in Maine, when the Supreme Court refused to review a Superior Court decision on the ground the facts were insufficient.

The case had been brought by the State of Maine against Frank Colburn, exhibitor of Bath, alleging violation of the anti-lottery law. It is understood the county attorney will drop the case, which has been returned to the Superior Court.

Drop Giveaway Suit

CHICAGO Jan. 21.—The Bank Night infringement suit in the Federal Court at Danville, Ill., against six houses in the McCollum circuit was dropped today when McCollum agreed to the use of the Bank Night plan instead of his Cash Night idea. The Alger and Anderson circuits are expected to follow suit to avoid fighting the case in court.

Wins Bank Night Case

BANGOR, Me., Jan. 21.—Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., has won a $2,500 suit brought by Harry Berman of Rockland, allegedly due as commissions for selling Bank Night in Maine. In the argument in Superior Court, the defense contended any action should be brought against Roy Hofener, New England Bank Night distributor.

New Kansas House Burns

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 21.—The De Soto at De Soto, Kan., which was opened about a week ago by W. E. Weldon, was almost completely destroyed by fire Jan. 19.

Citizens believe the town is jinxed. The De Soto was the first theatre it had had since the silent days. They had used it only about 10 days. Weldon, getting back into the business after several years, as postmaster at Overland Park, Kan., estimated the loss at $6,000 to building and equipment. This was only partially covered by insurance.

It has aided the theatre in many ways, including the revising of building code legislation, organization of the National Theatre Conference and the publishing of plays and books on the theatre and its allied arts.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Call of the Prairie"

(Sherman-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 21.—This is the fourth of the Hopalong Cassidy series. Although it is weaker in story material than its predecessors, still it offers enough action to give general satisfaction.

Jimmy Ellison, youthful companion of Cassidy (Bill Boyd) during the course of the sowing of his wild oats, becomes entangled with a gang of robbers led by Al Bridge. After an unsuccessful attempt to rob a ranch owner the members of the gang hold up a bank. Although Ellison had been knocked out and took no part in the robberies, suspicion falls on him. Boyd, running down the crooks, kills them off one by one until only one remains, George Hayes, who reforms at the last minute and clears Ellison. Director Howard Bretherton has created a gripping scene when Bridge sets a gun to destroy Ellison, tied to a post.

Muriel Evans, appearing briefly for the love interest, is good, and Chester Conklin, Hank Mann and Willie Fung give good performances in character roles. The camera work and scenery are above average. Doris Schroeder and Vernon Smith, who did the screen play from Clarence E. Mulford's novel, have made the situations believable. Audiences who have followed the series should be pleased with this film.

Production Code Seal No. 1,927. Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Dangerous Waters"

(Universal)

Fashioned after a melodramatic pattern but with its full share of comic relief and heart interest, "Dangerous Waters" manages to be good entertainment in an unpretentious way. The result is achieved through plenty of action in a wide variety of situations plus some successful comedy work by Charlie Murray.

Jack Holt, as an ambitious ship officer, takes command of a vessel after the death of its captain during a fire aboard ship and brings it safely into port. Hoping for a ship's command as his reward, Holt is denied this on a technicality resulting from the causes of the fire. He accepts command of a vessel whose owners plot to destroy it at sea to collect the insurance. Overcoming the obstacles of a storm at sea, a mutinous crew and a crippled vessel, Holt, with the aid of Robert Armstrong, his first mate, again succeeds in bringing his ship into port and is rewarded with the command of a new passenger liner. Diana Gibson, as Holt's designing wife, provides additional complications on land as well as sea, while Grace Bradley, a ship owner's daughter secretly in love with Holt, weaves the real romantic thread.

Where action pictures are popular this should be strong enough by itself to support a program, otherwise it rates as a strong contribution to any double feature program. Lambert Hillyer directed and did well with the material.

Production Code Seal No. 1,816. Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

J. A. Schwalm on Tour

HAMILTON, O., Jan. 21.—John A. Schwalm, manager of the Rialto, local unit of Southio Theatres, is one of a party called the Ohio "harmony tour" who will accompany Gov. Martin L. Davey to Washington tomorrow for a conference with President Roosevelt. The delegation will travel by special train.

Among the cities, Toronto held the leading position with receipts of $4,778,500 and an attendance of 19,242,000 persons for 89 theatres. Montreal, the largest city of the Dominion, but with only 56 theatres, had aggregate receipts of $3,938,000 and an attendance of 18,578,000. Theatres in Toronto reported an increase in receipts of 2.6 per cent, while in Montreal receipts fell off 3.5 per cent, compared with the previous year. Vancouver stood third with an attendance of 7,752,000, with Winnipeg fourth with 6,066,000 admissions.

Receipts of all theatres in the Dominion showed an increase of 1.5 per cent over the previous year. Film exchanges showed a relatively better increase with business totalling $7,618,700, or 9.4 per cent better than the previous year.

Discuss New Move in Anti-Dual Case

George A. Welsh in the Perelman case against major distributors was handed down at Philadelphia last Thursday. The opinion, written by 82-year-old Judge Joseph Buffington, held the contract clause prohibiting double featuring to be illegal and amounting to restraint of trade on both exhibitors and independent producers. The effect of the clause is to seek to prohibit the showing of a second full length picture on the same program with the pictures covered by the contract. Clauses of this nature were embodied in the contracts of Fox, Vitagraph, RKO, Paramount, M-G-M and United Artists.

Kansas City Bankers Find General Gain

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 21.—Improved general conditions for Kansas City and its trade area, on which theatre men here base their predictions for at least a 10 per cent increase in grosses for 1936, are reflected in the Federal Reserve Bank's Monthly Review of agricultural, industrial, trade and financial conditions in the 10th Reserve District.

Findings of the Review, which cover November and the first 11 months of 1935, are very encouraging. Comparing the first 11 months with the same 1934 period:

Business failures declined 17.7 per cent in number and 40.8 per cent in liabilities. Payments by check in 29 cities in the district were up 11.2 per cent and Federal Reserve Bank clearings, up 9.8 per cent. Wholesalers' sales were up 0.6 per cent, and retailers' sales for 32 department stores, 6.3 per cent. Retail trade was up seven per cent in November over November, 1934, and Christmas business, it was learned from other sources, was better than a year ago. Sales of groceries, dry goods, hardware, furniture and drugs were up from 1.3 to 14.6 per cent in November, as compared with November, 1934.

Building Brings Lumber Gain

Continuing the 11 months' comparison:

Lumber sales were up 23.3 per cent. The value of building contracts awarded increased 14.6 per cent, while the value of residential contracts awarded went up 63.5 per cent and the value of building permits in 17 cities was up 75.8 per cent.

In production, flour was up one per cent; crude petroleum, 6.9; soft coal, 15.3; zinc ore, 25.3, and lead ore, 35.6.

Wheat receipts were 7.3 per cent up; corn, 46.5 off, and oats, 118 per cent up.

Live stock receipts at six markets were off substantially, as was meat packing.

However, the "Dec. 1 condition of western ranges was much improved over a year ago and above the 10-year average," and "November rains over the central and eastern portions of the district materially benefited winter grains and enabled additional planting of winter wheat in areas with moisture deficiencies."

Also, live stock prices showed net gains of from 25 cents to $2 per cwt over October.

While life insurance volume declined, reports indicate that the volume of premiums is well over last year.

Hold Up "Show Goes On"

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 21.—Production on Sol Lesser's "The Show Goes On" will be suspended for three weeks while Bobby Breen recovers from an emergency operation for appendicitis. The young star was rushed to the Cedars of Lebanon hospital last week, and is doing nicely following the operation.

Providence Unanimous 1936 Will Be a Prosperous Year

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 21.—Voicing unanimous opinion that 1936 will be one of the best years ever enjoyed by the industry, Providence exhibitors look forward to better product, larger houses and bigger grosses.

They point with pride to the fact that some of the best films of the year came at the tag-end of the season which will give them extra momentum for the New Year. Then, too, every house downtown has at least half a dozen pictures set for the first two months that are expected to lift grosses sky-high.

Howard Burkhardt, manager of Loew's State, had no hesitancy, when queried as to the outlook, in saying that "there are plenty of good things to look forward to in 1936. Good product is coming and we should have a great season."

He then went on to point out some of the outstanding hits of the past year which did land-office business at his house. Heading the list was "Mutiny on the Bounty" which broke all house records. Other films written in large red letters were "Forsaking All Others," "David Copperfield," "Naughty Marietta," "No More Ladies," "China Seas," "Anna Karenina," "Broadway Melody," "I Live My Life' and "A Night at the Opera."

Harry Schlinker, manager of the RKO Albee, also voiced optimism for a banner year. In addition to pictures, the house intends again to inaugurate a policy of stage presentations which will be in the form of revues. Among the pictures to which he pointed with pride as having done excellent business were "Roberta," "Alice Adams," "Top Hat," "The Scarlet Pimpernel" and "Annie Oakley."

"Good times are on the way again," is the opinion of Bernard Fay and Jack Toohey at the Majestic. Quizzed as to the past season, Toohey said: "Of course we've had a good year—don't you know we booked all the Shirley Temple pictures?"

Practically all of this little curly top's films were held over for a second week, in some cases moving to the Carlton after the first week at the Majestic. Other films that tickled the customers to the extent of disgorging were "Here Comes the Navy," "G-Men," "Go Into Your Dance," "Shipmates Forever," "Life Begins at 40," and "George White's Scandals."

"Going to Town" hit the high spot at the Strand, Providence's independent house which two years ago was under the aegis of Paramount-Publix. Ed Reed, feted recently for having put over one of the best years in the history of the theatre, sees nothing but bright lights ahead. He believes the 1936 output will be better than last year and that patrons will respond accordingly.

In his list of big attractions for 1935 Reed placed these: "Big Broadcast of 1936," "Here Is My Heart," "Mississippi," "Gilded Lily," "Rumba," "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "Ruggles of Red Gap," and "Private Worlds."

Exhibitors point out that business has been cut into by the racing season at Narragansett and by the fact that the textile trade is in a slump. "If we can have a good season despite that sort of competition and disadvantage there is no reason why the New Year shouldn't be one of the best," they contend.

Changes Gaining in South

ATLANTA, Jan. 20.—Theatre changes are increasing rapidly all over the South, thereby reflecting improved agricultural and industrial conditions in this territory.

In North Carolina improvements are general and one new house is to be opened soon.

In other spots the changes include the renovation of the Carolina at Greensboro; exterior and interior improvements to the Broadway, Charlotte; remodeling of the Oasis, Kingston, owned by A. B. Huff and associates, and changes in the Seabreeze, owned by W. L. Paul, at Beaufort.

In South Carolina George H. Harris has joined the expansion moves by leasing a brick building to convert into a theatre.

Florida developments include renovations and installations of new equipment at the Dixie, Apalachicola; development of plans for a new house at Arcadia by G. K. Stanford, and plans for remodeling a building into a theatre at Sebring. Charles Morrison is backing the Sebring project.

One new house is being built in Georgia at Swainsboro by J. T. and C. W. Phillips, and another, damaged some time ago by fire, at Fitzgerald, is being rebuilt by the Roy Martin interests.

Alabama also has felt the pickup. The Crescent Amusement Co. has just acquired the Princess Theatre Building at Gadsden for $60,000.

Two Tennessee houses have been remodeled. The Princess at Lexington has been reopened and the Rex at Nashville is being equipped with new sound.

Schines Take 3 More

DELAWARE, O., Jan. 21.—Three new units have just been added to the rapidly expanding Schine circuit by acquisition of the Ohio and Majestic, at Athens, and purchase of a half interest in the Strand here. The three houses have been operated by Henry Bieberson, who built the local Strand more than 20 years ago.

Schines now operate houses in Wooster, Mt. Vernon, Ashland, Norwalk, Bucyrus, Van Wert, Bellefontaine and Piqua. They will build at Marietta, and are reported to have several other locations in sight.

Lincoln Film Men See Gain During 1936

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 21.—Substantial improvement in business noted by theatres here during December, in comparison with 1934 in the same month, has theatre men in optimistic spirits and firm belief is expressed in better grosses in 1936.

The December lull, ordinarily tough to cut in this area of low salaries, was about five per cent better than a year ago in the southern and eastern Nebraska towns. Dependence to a large extent in this territory is on the agricultural situation, a good crop and price year meaning excellent business.

Improvement here during 1935 was in direct proportion to the difference in crop values, which were totalled at $35,000,000 in excess of 1934. The forepart of the previous year was extremely bad all over the state, since early spring saw dust storms paralyze business for nearly a month and early summer saw Nebraska's most devastating flood all along the southern part of the state.

Under such a handicap, conditions were bettered and small town theatres have been getting a good play. Openings in the territory have exceeded closings. New Deal spending, although frowned on pretty generally in this area, has forced more and more money into amusements of which theatres represent an overwhelming percentage.

No Receipts Tax Thus Far

Box-offices have survived a regular and special session of the state legislature without seeing a tax slapped on receipts and there is no session in sight for 1936, which will mean another worry off the mind. Vaudeville, hitherto rather an unknown article, has sprouted in large as well as smaller towns where it was unheard of before. Lack of interest has been shown in Bank Night as a draw which is believed the reason for the turn to acts to support program pictures. Two-for-ones operate only in rare cases now, although double features seem to be a policy which cannot be dodged.

Optimism is expressed by City Manager Jerry Zigmond of the Lincoln Theatre Corp. here. "We showed some financial betterment in December," he stated, "not anything terrific, but it was on the up. Most of the business men around here seem to think we're in for more spending on the part of the public for 1936 and I'm sure we'll get our share. Releases so far look very good."

Mid-state, Carl Rose of York, city manager for the Blank Central States houses there, said:

"Our corn crop, far better than usual, is netting a nice upturn in business. Summer crops show signs of being good, too."

Film salesmen insist exhibitors are happier to see them around than at any time in the last few years.

May Increase Federal Levy On Admission

U. S. Eyeing Theatres as New Revenue Source

The Roosevelt Administration is onsidering an increase in the Federal ax on theatre admissions, according o the Washington Bureau of Motion Picture Herald, out today. It is understood in Washington that Treasury Department experts, casting about or new forms of revenue, following evelopments which might affect the President's budget, were eyeing admision taxes.

The present Federal tax on admisions over 40 cents causes theatre owners to pay the Government about $17,-00,000 a year. Owners would be orced to decide whether they can absorb a new tax or must pass it on the atrons in the form of higher admisions. Invalidation of the processing axes and the probability of a soldiers' onus are the factors which have aused the Administration to seek posibly needed new revenue.

On the basis of reports for the first alf of the current fiscal year, ending une 30 next, it is estimated the total

Several details are now being checked by the lawyers and it is expected the papers will be served either late today or tomorrow. The hearing was set down for Feb. 4, but indications are that additional postponements will be granted, as efforts to effect a compromise of the claim are being made and depend in large part for their consummation on progress in the development of a reorganization plan for RKO.

Failed to Get Warner Films, Lesser Says

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 22.—Irving Lesser, managing director of the Roxy Theatre in New York under Howard S. Cullman, trustee, a Government witness in the equity case here against Warners, Paramount and RKO, described his unsuccessful attempt last summer to get Warners' "Alibi Ike," for showing at the Roxy. It was brought out that the reason lay in the fact that the Roxy had been injected into the civil and criminal actions against the three major companies, with Fanchon & Marco as complainant.

Lesser had no opportunity to describe his career in the industry, as Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux, in an effort to speed the action, said, "His career may be very interesting, but let's assume he is qualified as an expert." Counsel agreed, but it was established that Lesser started at 16 in distribution on the coast.

In response to a question by Walter Rice, assistant to Russell Hardy, chief Government attorney, Lesser said his experience covered produc-

Film Board Survey for '35 Reflects More Prosperity

What the national pickup in business did to theatres during 1935 is graphically illustrated in the annual report of the Film Board of Trade, made public yesterday, which shows an increase in the total number of houses to 18,508, a gain of 245 over last year, or about 1.3 per cent.

Total seating capacity increased by 175,446 to a new high of 11,308,041, which is one seat for about every 11 persons in the United States, based upon the 1935 mid-year estimate of a nationwide population of 127,157,000.

Of this 18,508 theatres, however, 15,378, with a seating capacity of 10,-098,920, are in operation, so that the total of available seats works out to about one in each 10 for the nation's population. Theatres in operation increased by 826, which is a gain of

May, who has been assistant manager of the Embassy, will be manager of the new house.

While Newsreel Theatres may open other houses of this type in the larger cities of the east later on, it has no definite expansion plans at this time, according to F. C. Wood, Jr.

Mrs. Roosevelt Hits "Careless" Newsreel

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, speaking today before the National Conference on the Cause and Cure of War, urged the supression by public opinion of "careless" newsreels which tend to cause distrust between nations. Referring to protests, Mrs. Roosevelt said the Government is powerless to interfere, and "the only people who can do anything are the people who see the reels in the theatre.

"If they protest," she said, "the thing will disappear. You control the opinion wherever that film or radio program or other thing is seen or heard and you have the power to stop whatever is harmful to good feeling between nations."

about 5.8 per cent. Seating capacity of houses in operation increased 379,390.

Sound theatres continued to gain and silent houses continued to fall off. There are now 16,989 wired houses, an increase of 664 during the year, while the silent houses have fallen off 419 to a total of 1,519.

Seven of the country's key centers —Atlanta, Des Moines, Memphis, New Haven, Philadelphia, Portland and San Francisco—are now without silent houses.

Silent theatres persist strongly in scattered sales territories. The areas having more than 100 each are: Boston, 193; Chicago, 113; Cincinnati, 157; Dallas, 161; Salt Lake City, 143.

Closed theatres now total 3,130 with a seating capacity of 1,209,121. This is a decrease of 591 houses and 203,937 seats.

At the start of this year there were 1,638 sound theatres dark. Last year there were 1,824, a decrease of 186 during the year. On Jan. 1 there were 1,492 silent theatres dark, while last year there were 1,887, a decrease of 395.

Unaffiliated circuit theatres increased more rapidly than affiliated circuit houses. There are now 2,192 affiliated houses with seats for 2,908,226, an increase of 119 theatres and 189,525 seats.

Unaffiliated houses gained by 394 to a new high of 3,464. The gain in their seating capacity was 227,390, bringing the total to 2,766,806.

Independent theatres fell off both in numbers and in seating capacity. Independent houses now total 12,852, a drop of 268. Seats now total 5,633,009, a decrease of 241,469.

tion, distribution and exhibition, including the operation of 10 houses for Skouras Brothers in the east. Further questioning revealed that Lesser is apparently an employe of F. & M. Stage Shows, Inc., wholly owned subsidiary of Fanchon & Marco.

Despite objections he was allowed to detail a conversation with Roy Haynes, eastern district sales manager for Warners, concerning the booking of "Alibi Ike" into the Roxy. He said he saw the film at a screening and liked it, but when he asked about terms Haynes said it had not been decided whether the film would play Warners' Strand or the Capitol in conjunction with a personal appearance of Joe E. Brown, star of the picture.

Attempts to Reach Haynes

Lesser declared Haynes told him he would let him know in a few days, but when he had not heard from him, he telephoned, and was informed by Haynes again that he would inform him on the matter in a day or two. "I called him again in a few days, but could not get in touch with him," Lesser testified. "The next thing was I read in a newspaper that the picture was going to play a 500-seat theatre which up to that time had been playing foreign pictures, the Cameo on 42nd St." The first conversation with Haynes was on June 20, 1935, Lesser said.

The court permitted Lesser to testify that the Cameo was not recognized as among the leading houses in New York. The witness declared that on or about July 4 he called Haynes and told him it seemed unusual that Warners would pass up a 6,000-seat house like the Roxy and then put the film in a 500-seat theatre without even discussing terms.

Lesser then said Haynes advised him he was under orders to place the picture in the Cameo, but would not say from whom the instructions came. Lesser said he reported the incident to Cullman.

Rice thereupon read into the record a series of letters between Andy W. Smith, Warner sales executive, R. W. Perkins of the Warner legal staff, and Cullman. In his first letter to Smith Cullman asked whether he was to consider it a plain case of discrimination. In a letter dated Aug. 14, 1935, Perkins explained that in view of the fact that the Roxy had been brought into the case against Warners, et al, the company's attorneys had thought it advisable to be careful in conducting negotiations on films with that house.

Ignorant of Roxy Connection

The next day Cullman replied, saying Perkins' letter was his first information that the Roxy had been injected into the St. Louis case. On Aug. 16 Perkins wrote that he would take the matter up with ex-Senator James A. Reed, Warners' senior counsel, and planned to leave for St. Louis in a few days on the case. In a final letter, dated Sept. 3, Perkins said Warners would be pleased to continue their former friendly relations with the Roxy, but in view of the civil and criminal actions, in which F. & M. were complaining witnesses, the Warner attorneys must insist on dealing with Cullman direct, as a matter of protection, and not with any employe of F. & M. or its subsidiaries.

Cullman, in his answer, declared this arrangement was satisfactory. It was brought out that several Warner films have played the Roxy since. Warners, it was disclosed, play most of their product at the Strand or Capitol.

Lesser said he was advised by Smith on Sept. 6 and again in December that he could not talk about bookings because Lesser was an F. & M. employe. He said that once Haynes called him about a picture, and when Lesser told him he doubted that he could talk business in view of the information from Smith, Haynes thanked him and promised to check up for his own protection. He never heard from Haynes again, Lesser testified. He said that prior to the arrangement, Cullman had never booked any films for the Roxy.

Statistics Introduced

The witness was allowed to quote statistics from the Film Daily Year Book for 1935 on the number of films produced by the eight major companies the previous year, but was not permitted to guess as to the total film rentals collected by all companies during that year. When Rice sought to make the point that producers sometimes pay as much as $7,500 for advertising first run films, Judge Molyneaux declared it was apparent to anyone that proper presentation is important.

All of the morning session and part of the afternoon was devoted to cross-examination of Thomas N. Dysart, chairman of the bondholders' committee for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central. The quizzing touched on the chief differences between the Warner and committee plans for reorganizing the theatre properties. Virtually the same ground was covered in the criminal action.

Considerable time this afternoon was taken with an unsuccessful effort by Hardy to place in the record details concerning bond purchases by Warners prior to the foreclosure of the theatre properties, but the judge maintained he could see no reason for so weighting the record.

RKO Claim Hearing Is Again Set Back

000 reduction of the Samuel L. (Roxy) Rothafel claim against RKO which had been proposed for allowance at $179,271 was filed yesterday with Judge Bondy by Donovan, Leisure, Newton & Lumbard, counsel to the RKO trustee. A stipulation on the allowance of the claim was based on the breach of Roxy's employment contract with RKO several years ago. The contract had 10 months to run at the time of Roxy's death and for this reason counsel believed that the stipulation could not be approved by the court in its original form.

Briefs were also filed with Judge Bondy by the Trenton Advertising Co., contesting the stipulation for allowance of a claim by Alfred E. Fiegel at $11,629. The company contends that the work on which the claim is based was performed by it and that Fiegel is entitled only to a commission on the amount.

Judge Bondy reserved decision on both claims. His decision on stipulations for the allowance of 18 additional claims submitted to him recently by the RKO trustees is also pending.

Increase Possible In Admission Taxes

revenue from Federal admission taxes for the year will be more than $17,000,000, compared with $15,379,397 for the previous fiscal year. Two ways of increasing the admission tax are open. One is to reduce the exemption from 40 cents, and the other is to raise the rate from the present 10 per cent.

Tax increases are expected to face bitter opposition in Congress, however, since many members come up for re-election in the fall. Indicative is the fact that members of the House Ways and Means Committee, where revenue legislation originates, have agreed among themselves to fight new taxation.

Officers Are Installed

David A. Levy, New Jersey branch manager for M-G-M, and recently elected president of the New York Film Board of Trade, was inducted into office last night along with other new officers at a dinner at the Algonquin. Following the induction all local branch managers saw "George White's Scandals."

Reid Option Taken Up

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22.—Radio has exercised its option on Cliff Reid, associate producer. As his first assignments he will produce Ann Harding's next picture, "Witness Chair," and "Fugitive Gold," starring Richard Dix.

"Collegiate" Sets Record

All attendance records for the opening of a feature at the Paramount were broken yesterday by "Collegiate," according to Paramount. Robert Weitman, manager, said 8,000 had paid admissions up to one o'clock.

Foran's Next Titled

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22. — Warners have selected "Two Gun Buckaroo" as the title for the next Dick Foran western.

Concord's First

Concord, Mass., Jan. 22.—Its first film theatre is being planned for this town, the first battle ground of the Revolutionary War. To seat 700, the house will be built along Colonial lines, and is expected to be ready in the spring. The only films here have been occasional screenings by religious or educational groups.

ITO Will Sue City, 'Changes on Sales Tax

Appeals from a decision handed down Monday by the Appellate Division of the Brooklyn Supreme Court declaring games in theatres illegal. This action involved the Winthrop, Brooklyn.

Exhibitors were cautioned not to admit persons under 16 at theatres without guardian or parent. As soon as the instructions were given out a number of theatre men rushed to telephones to put their managers on guard.

Harry Brandt, president, officially declined to again run for the post. Some members immediately voiced dissatisfaction with the president's stand and hope to change Brandt's views before nominations are held in April.

'Pasteur' Book Elaborate

S. Charles Einfeld has issued an elaborate pressbook on "The Story of Louis Pasteur" with 23 pages, exclusive of covers. The cover, with a green background, quotes reviews.

A double page spread leads off the exploitation section. One page is devoted to a Pasteur anniversary, with a month-to-month enumeration of his discoveries. Attention is also called to the fact that it is Paul Muni's 10th picture.

Two National tieups are suggested.

Stubblefield Laid Up

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 22.—Flynn Stubblefield, for the past five years manager of the Strand, is in St. Anthony's Hospital suffering from a spinal ailment, necessitating a plaster cast. There is a possibility that he will not be out for several weeks.

During Stubblefield's absence his duties are being handled by Johnson Musselman, manager of the Rialto, and Harry McCoy, in charge of the Uptown.

McMahon Heads Club

Joseph McMahon, Brooklyn booker, has been elected president of New York M-G-M exchange club. He succeeds Capt. Harry Miller. Maurice Silverstein, also of the booking office, has replaced John Cunliffe, ad sales manager, as treasurer. Frances Levin continues as recording secretary.

Postpone Examination

The examination before trial of Herman Robbins of National Screen Service and Charles L. Casanave of American Display Co., in connection with a suit brought by Master Art Products, scheduled yesterday, has again been postponed for a week.

Charity Rackets Go Under Manitoba Ban

WINNIPEG, Jan. 22.—E. A. McPherson, provincial treasurer of Manitoba, put his foot down on "charity rackets" when he issued an order prohibiting the waiving of the amusement tax for performances of any kind which are announced as being held under the auspices of community organizations unless the sponsors actually manage the finances.

When no promoter is engaged, the charity organization will be entitled to a tax concession. This follows the example of the Ontario Provincial Government which collects the amusement tax in all instances, but grants a rebate of the levy when sworn declarations are produced showing that the expenses of a charity show do not exceed 50 per cent of the gross.

Tax Action Stirs Canada

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—A sensation occurred when the Ontario Government took criminal action, under the amusement tax act, against Mrs. Olive Mitchell, a community leader of Cobalt, for having unused tax tickets in her possession, which is an offense under the new provincial law punishable by a fine of from $10 to $200.

Mrs. Mitchell has been the regent of the Cobalt Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire for 21 years and the tickets had been left over from a performance which had been conducted under the auspices of that organization. Magistrate Atkinson adjourned proceedings after hearing the evidence.

"Informer" in Comeback

CLEVELAND, Jan. 22. — "The Informer" is coming back for repeat runs in all major situations in this territory after having closed first and second runs. In Cleveland it is in its second week at the Circle, after having played all subsequent runs. Other repeat runs at first run houses are at the Pantheon, Toledo; Palace, Akron; Palace, Canton; Palace, Youngstown, and all houses in the Warner, Shea and Schine circuits.

On Fund Committee

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—Martin J. Mullen, Samuel Pinanski, Charles Koerner, Al Somerbee and Joseph Brennan are among the theatre men serving on the committee for the 1936 Community Fund, which seeks to raise $4,000,000 for the support of 100 charitable organizations here.

"U" Theatres Pay Again

Universal Chain Theatres has paid a fourth liquidating dividend amounting to $2.50 a share. The process of liquidating the company has been under way for several years.

McCarthy Goes to Denver

OMAHA, Jan. 22.—Danny McCarthy will take over the booking duties at United Artists Monday, replacing Bern Marriner, who has been promoted to office manager at Denver.

"Obsession" 116 Mins.

"Magnificent Obsession," reviewed in MOTION PICTURE DAILY in the Dec. 31 issue, had for its running time 67 minutes. It should have read 116 minutes.

Chicago Men Cheerful on 1936 Outlook

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Theatre men in this part of the country got a taste of profits, in a substantial way, during the past year. It was the first time in several years their figures had been in the black, and, buoyed up by this rise in business, they look optimistically to the coming year.

Judging from the way business started off after the first of the year, it looks as though 1936 would be a banner year. Practically all other lines of business have shown a marked increase during the past few months, and Christmas trade, in this territory, as reported by retail merchants, was the heaviest since 1929.

Theatre business here started upward last spring. More than 80 theatres, usually closed during the summer months were kept open, and, for the most part, showed a profit. Various kinds of giveaways devices such as Bank Night and Screeno are credited with part of this increase. In the past few weeks, however, theatre men have been dropping these games. While it is expected that they may last through the spring and summer, the number of houses using them will be far less than those of a year ago. Exhibitors credit better pictures and healthier business conditions for this situation.

All local film exchanges report an increase in contracts deals over last year. Selling campaigns are months in advance of those of a year ago. Exhibitors are willing to commit themselves and sign up for product at prices in excess of those paid during the past few years.

For the first time in five years, many new theatres are being built. Downstate 10 or more new houses have been erected. Many houses, dark for years, have been remodeled and reopened. Theatre equipment sales have been the heaviest in the past six years and it is estimated that at least 75 per cent of all theatres have undergone some renovation during the past few months. More is contemplated.

In the city of Chicago, several new theatres have been opened and at present five are under construction. B. & K. and its affiliate, Great States Theatres, plan to open numerous closed houses and to build several new ones. This is the first activity of this type the circuit has engaged in for several years.

Circuit managers are optimistic. Loop houses have shown a steady increase in gross, week by week. During the first week of the year Loop business was the best since those record-breaking weeks of the Century of Progress.

The threat that double features, which have not been used for many months, might force their way back has been waylaid by the healthy increase in grosses. At present, there is no thought in the minds of exhibitors that duals will be necessary.

With booking and union troubles cleared away, with better product than there has been made during the past few years already available and more in sight, the feeling is general that 1936 will mark the beginning of a new progress toward what is considered normal times.

Short Subjects

"Pirate Party on Catalina Isle"

(M-G-M)

Time and money were lavished on this outdoor short in Technicolor with results that are eye and ear-filling. The buccaneer costumes, a bevy of good-looking girls and a collection of singers, with outdoor action shots to lend variety make up a satisfying whole. Buddy Rogers leads a band called the California Cavaliers. Occasional glimpses are given of Marion Davies, Chester Morris, Cary Grant, Virginia Bruce, Lee Tracy, Lili Damita, Randolph Scott, Mickey Rooney, John Gilbert, Leon Errol, Eddie Peabody, Robert Armstrong, Johnny Downs, Sid Silvers, Vince Barnett, Errol Flynn, Betty Burgess and Jack Duffy. Lou Tyler's Banjo band does a snappy number. It's a grand short. Production Code Seal No. 1,593. Running time, 20 minutes. "G."

"The Count Takes the Count"

(Roach-M-G-M)

With some well-developed gags and plenty of automobile chasing, Charley Chase succeeds in keeping this two-reeler moving at a fast pace. Chase is an insurance agent who thinks he has been smart in insuring a wedding for $1,000,000 until his boss points out that the prospective bride objects. He collides with the bride's car, takes her in when she tells him she is a detective pursuing the missing bride-elect, and they start merrily for San Francisco. Both are arrested. A dining room and bedroom sequence with Chase handcuffed to the sheriff is very funny. A holdup with Chase and the girl roped together is also good for a series of laughs. Recommended. Production Code Seal No. 1,815. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"International Varieties No. 1"

(J. H. Hoffberg)

This is a collection of continental vaudeville acts which includes a clown, Noni; The Two Tars, Strelsky's Cossack Singers and Albert Sandler's Viennese orchestra. The last named plays Schubert's "Serenade" beautifully and, in a measure, redeems the rest. Noni leads a band and The Two Tars do a silly turn, finishing with a stupid piece of business in which they row off the stage. The names are unfamiliar to Americans and the brand of entertainment is not up to standard here. The singers do typical Russian folk songs with the usual staccato ending. The lighting and photography are spotty and little imagination went into the production. No production code seal. Running time 8 mins. "G."

"A Thrill for Thelma"

(M-G-M)

This is one of the "Crime Doesn't Pay" series. A girl is summoned from a state prison lineup to tell her story to a reporter in the warden's office. It's an exciting yarn, detailing how she gets a job in a beauty parlor, is led unsuspectingly into a holdup of a couple in a parked car, with one crime following another until the boy is killed and the girl is sentenced to 20 years in jail. Irene Hervey is effective as the girl prisoner and Robert Livingstone gives a realistic performance as the young criminal. First class entertainment. Production Code Seal No. 1,760. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"West Point of the South"

(M-G-M)

The Virginia Military Academy, is student life, references to its share in the Civil War, views of the miniature field pieces used in artillery practice and cavalry training are presented with comments by Pete Smith. Some of the comedy attempted in the narrative falls short of the mark, but the number ought to be popular in the south where the students come from almost every state. Running time, 8 mins. Production Code Seal No. 1,700. "G."

"Run, Sheep, Run!"

(Harman-Ising-M-G-M)

Good child entertainment and with plenty of appeal for adults. It is the story of three little white sheep, one black sheep, a dog and pickaninny. The black sheep gets into trouble in a forest, and the dog, to get revenge, wraps up in a wolf's skin to scare the others. He is eventually chased by a big black bear. A musical number somewhat reminiscent of "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf?" runs through it. Production Code Seal, No. 1,875. Running time, 10 min. "G."

"Sacred City of the Mayan Indians"

(FitzPatrick-M-G-M)

Indian costumes copied from the early Spanish conquistadors, native buildings and customs with mountain backgrounds, close ups of natives at play and at work, music from a marimba made of gourds—these and other scenes make this a very interesting short. The photography in Technicolor is gorgeous. Production Code Seal, 0,831. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

Indianapolis Looks For Business Gains

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 22. — Business here is expected to be at least 10 per cent better this year, local business leaders have declared. Theatre men say the increased industrial development should help business in general. Two branch factories of General Motors are expanding and will increase their payrolls materially by spring. The plant of Fairbanks-Morse, which has been closed for several years, is scheduled for reopening.

The local Chamber of Commerce reports all statistics show an upward trend.

Local exhibitors have an eager look in their eyes, but most of them are afraid to make any predictions for fear they may be wrong.

ANSWERS ALL PROJECTION PROBLEMS!!

Sixth Edition of

F. H. RICHARDSON'S

A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO GOOD PROJECTION AND QUICK TROUBLE-SHOOTING

A new Bluebook by Richardson is always an event of signal importance to the motion picture industry. It is being issued at this time to meet the truly urgent demand of thousands of users of the old Bluebooks for an accurate, modern evaluation of the changes and refinements in the art and science of sound reproduction and projection including all the apparatus. Richardson's expert knowledge of the craft he has taught and followed for more than three decades makes this latest treatise, in the opinion of leading authorities, the most comprehensive, most useful projection manual ever published.

714 Pages of Text, Charts and Data

The new Bluebook contains 714 pages and 153 illustrations—photographs and schematics of every description. It is 6x9 in size with large readable type for easy visibility in the projection room under all conditions. It is entirely original from cover to cover, not a line of type from any of the many previous editions being used. Its low price of $5.25 and its handiness in one volume are among the many innovations.

1 IN ONE HANDY VOLUME
The new Bluebook is complete in one handy volume. It is a great improvement over the former expensive and cumbersome three-volume sets.

2 COMPLETE and UP-TO-DATE
The new Bluebook does a three-fold job: (1) it gives a detailed description of the construction, wiring and functioning of every piece of sound and projection apparatus used in a modern projection room. (2) It gives all the instructions for the operation and maintenance of this equipment and (3) it contains a complete trouble-shooting department as a first-aid in breakdowns.

3 QUICK-FINDING INDEX
An extremely simple but comprehensive indexing system makes the new Blue Book a truly great aid to working projectionists. Whatever problem comes up in the day's routine is covered on the instant with hardly more than the twirl of your thumb. Projectionists of long experience in the projection room will be first to appreciate this remarkable time-saver.

4 QUICK TROUBLE-SHOOTER
And it is, within its 700 pages, a practical trouble-shooter, which alone entitles it to a place in every projectionists tool kit.

"Obsession" Pulls $7,000, Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 22.—"Magnificent Obsession" delivered a smashing $7,000 at the Strand on the week. This is nearly triple the ordinary take for the house. It was held.

"Dangerous" was $2,000 on the profit side of the line with a take of $4,500 at the Mary Anderson. This also was held.

With the public flocking to the two standout attractions, other first runs found the going rather rough. The Rialto, with "Rose of the Rancho" did $3,800, $800 under par. Loew's State, with the double feature bill, "Ah, Wilderness" and "One-Way Ticket," couldn't quite make the grade, the gross hitting only $4,300, or $200 under average.

With the repeal of the state three per cent sales tax, theatres will drop the additional cent on admissions up to 40 cents. This should give some impetus to business.

The weather has been pleasant, and the resultant reaction at the box-offices has been favorable.

Milton Arthur On the Stand At St. Louis

Testifies for U. S. On Product Troubles

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 23.—Taking the same lines that featured the equity case here against Warners, Paramount and RKO, during the past two days, the Government today placed on the stand Milton Arthur, president and general manager of Cabart Theatre Corp., which has theatres in California, Arizona, Nevada and Utah, and who is a brother of Harry C. Arthur of Fanchon & Marco. Arthur recounted his difficulty in getting Warner product for his houses, and said his proposals for Paramount pictures were rejected by the home office.

Paramount's position was explained at the close of the session when Louis Phillips, Paramount attorney, cross-examining Arthur, read a letter dated April 11, 1935, from George J. Schaefer, then vice-president and general manager of Paramount, to Harry Arthur, indicating that Arthur's connec-

Phila. Independent Meeting Postponed

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—The meeting of the newly formed Independent M. P. T. O., scheduled for today, has been postponed. Tomorrow the original M. P. T. O. will meet at the call of Lewen Pizor for the election of officers. Pending developments at tomorrow's session, many members of the new group have also retained their membership in the parent body.

Whether or not the merger of the two groups will go through, the two will remain, or exhibitors favoring the merger will go back to the I. E. P. A., may be decided at tomorrow's session. The illness of Charles Segal, president of the Independent M. P. T. O., is the chief reason for the postponement of today's meeting.

Title Barrage

Hollywood, Jan. 23.—Columbia has still another title for the Harry Richman-Rochelle Hudson picture. First it was "Rolling Along." Then it was "The Music Goes Round and Round." Now, it is called "The Music Goes Round."

One "round" was used to save marquee space.

Ampa Award Plan on Ads Gets Approval

Best Home Office Work To Be Recognized

Plans for the presentation of annual awards to men in the advertising, publicity and exploitation departments of various home offices for the best results as decided upon by a special committee were adopted yesterday by the Ampa at its regular meeting at Dempsey's.

The plan adopted by Ampa will not conflict with the annual Quigley awards which are limited to theatre personnel. It was pointed out that the Ampa awards will center about the importance of merchandising pictures. The first prizes will cover the work done for the year ending Dec. 31, 1935.

Persons not affiliated with the organization are eligible for the awards, it was stated yesterday. Plaques, or statuettes, will be given to the persons responsible for creating the ideas, while certificates of merit will be dis-

Gaumont's KRS Suit Delayed to Feb. 18

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The legal action instituted by Gaumont British against the Kinematograph Renters' Society and virtually all distributors in the British trade has been postponed until Feb. 18.

The proceedings deal with the ban placed on buying combines by the K. R. S., to which G. B. objects.

G. B. May Add

London, Jan. 23. — Mark Ostrer, managing director of Gaumont British, refuses comment, but, significantly perhaps, does not deny a story published locally quoting C. M. Woolf as saying G. B. is discussing regular American distribution of a selection of General Film Distributors, Ltd., releases. This is the company formed by Woolf after he retired as a joint managing director of G. B.

Fleischman Likely To Succeed Brandt

Maurice Fleischman is expected to be the candidate to succeed Harry Brandt as president of the I. T. O. A., it was indicated yesterday. Brandt has definitely announced his retirement from the top post, but will continue actively in the organization.

Nominations will be held Feb. 27 at the Astor. Brandt, who leaves today with his brother, Billy, for a vacation in Hollywood, Fla., will not return in time to be on hand for the nominations. Fleischman has been one of the most active members in the I. T. O. A. under Brandt. He operates a number of theatres in Brooklyn.

Report Hoffman to Resume as an Indie

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—M. H. Hoffman, who has four pictures to go under his Republic deal, is understood to be planning to return to independent production on his own next season. Hoffman formerly headed Liberty Pictures, which was merged with Mascot and Monogram into Republic.

Vancouver Warring on Suds

Vancouver, Jan. 23.—Four downtown theatres, the Orpheum, Capitol, Maple Leaf and Globe, have joined churches and temperance organizations in a fight against granting a beer license to the Palms Hotel on Granville St.

The theatre men say they don't want the crowds waiting in front of their houses to smell the breaths of persons emerging from the suds parlor. They are also afraid some of the prospective customers will stop off for a snifter and then decide to have another, thus delaying until they miss one of the shorts or the newsreels.

It's all quite serious. The Provincial Government and Liquor Commissioner W. F. Kennedy have been deluged by protests. The City Council has taken a hand in it by endorsing the stand of theatres.

It looks as though the night life boys will have to stick to their fish 'n' chips.

Loew Theatre Games Hinge Upon Courts

Trio of Cases in Bronx To Determine Policy

The future of games in Loew's metropolitan theatres is contingent on the outcome of three cases pending against the circuit in Special Sessions, Bronx, it was learned yesterday.

Two of the complaints filed by the district attorney are against the Elsmere and Grand and are scheduled for hearing on Feb. 21. The third involves the Paradise, de luxe house, which is slated to come up on Feb. 28. Screeno is the game played in the three houses.

On Monday, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, upheld a decision of Special Sessions in that borough. The Winthrop, an independent theatre, was the respondent,

Expect 30-Day "U" Option Extension

Extension of Standard Capital's option to purchase Universal would be for 30 days, or to March 1, if the proposed purchaser and seller get together. The indications last night were that Universal would grant such extension on the same terms of sale outlined in the original 90-day agreement, which expires Feb. 1.

Hastings, receiver for General Theatres Equipment, Inc., on petition of Hastings.

The petition stated the firms served the receiver since his appointment Feb. 29, 1932. On Dec. 7, 1932, the local attorneys were allowed $17,500 and the New York firm $12,500. They had received no further compensation, although they had been active since, the petition said. Chancellor Wolcott, in granting the request, provided that he retain full jurisdiction to modify the order upon the hearing for final allowances.

Last week the Fifth Ave. Theatre featured a dual bill consisting of "A Tale of Two Cities" and "Coronado." Together with the newsreel and trailers, the complete show ran three hours and 47 minutes. This week the show was moved to the Music Box for an extended run, but "Coronado" was left off the program, without any announcement explaining the switch to a single-feature policy at the Music Box.

Next week "Captain Blood" will be booked as a single-feature attraction at the Fifth Ave. Theatre.

tion with the charges against Paramount and himself had destroyed the good will that should exist between buyer and seller, and that Paramount, exercising its right to choose customers, had decided not to deal with Arthur or his theatres.

Charles Caballero, Milton Arthur, Marco Wolff and Harry Arthur and his wife each own one-fourth of Cabart. Cross-examination by Frederick H. Wood, Warner counsel, brought out that Cabart had finally obtained Warner product for 1935-36 on practically the same terms as submitted by Milton Arthur. However, the houses were without these films from Aug. 1 to Dec. 24, 1935, when Warners accepted a compromise contract worked out in Los Angeles Dec. 11.

His theatres have showed RKO product, Arthur testified, but he had to give up the Studio, Prescott, Ariz., because he could not get Warner films at an early date in the 1935-36 season. He told of a conversation with Jules Levy, RKO general sales manager, in RKO's coast office in November, 1934, in which he said Levy declared Harry Arthur had gone to Washington to file a complaint with the Government and that he was causing a lot of trouble.

Arthur testified, "I told him I had no connection with the St. Louis situation, and was interested only in the theatre I was operating." He said Levy replied, "Well, you had better interest yourself in that situation if you know what's good for you."

Judge Admits Testimony

"I don't know any way that you can injure me except to withhold product for future years as I have already booked product for this season," Arthur testified he replied. He declared Levy's reply was, "That kind of talk is all right, but you had better do something about it, for if you don't you will be out of luck."

RKO counsel objected, but Judge Molyneaux ruled that since it covered a similar situation to that in the testimony of J. M. Ulmer and B. D. Gordon, Cleveland attorneys, which he tentatively admitted subject to defense objection, he would accept this testimony subject to a ruling later on its admissibility.

Arthur then told of his negotiations with Carroll Peacock, Paramount Los Angeles branch manager, on 1935-36 product for the Los Angeles, Boulder City and Phoenix houses. He said that on April 7, 1935, he signed the contract application but heard nothing further until June 7, when Peacock told him the applications had been rejected by the home office. He said on June 10 in Peacock's office he saw the applications with the rejection marked on them in large letters. He said Peacock declared the rejections were not because of terms.

Arthur said he asked him if it was due to the St. Louis situation, and said Peacock replied that he did not know what it was, but was "willing to bet $5 that when the St. Louis situation was cleared up I would get the pictures."

Arthur told of another attempt to get Paramount films through Mike Louis, Pacific Coast division manager, on July 24, 1935, when Louis said, according to Arthur, "Milt, I am sorry, but I've got my instructions to follow out and I can't serve you or any of your theatres." After argument, the court allowed Arthur to testify that after he had dropped his interest in the Strand, Long Beach, Cal., the house got Paramount product and is showing it today. He said he sold the interest about Oct. 28 or 29 last and it began Paramount films in November.

He told of a conversation with John E. Otterson, Paramount president, at the studio on Aug. 15 or 16 last. He said he told Otterson he needed the Paramount films to keep his houses open, and told him Paramount refused them because of his brother's connection with the St. Louis situation. He quoted Otterson as saying: "I am not acquainted with the situation, but I am going back to New York tonight and will look into it. If all that you say is true it would seem to me that you are entitled to the pictures." Arthur then said he had never heard from Otterson.

Talk With Lustig Barred

He tried to testify about a conversation in 1935 in Los Angeles with Harry Lustig, Warner manager, who has since died, and James Burden, salesman, and N. H. Brauer, coast manager. There was considerable argument as to whether this conversation should be barred because of the death of a participant, and Judge Molyneaux recessed the court to check the matter. But the conversation was ruled out anyway. Arthur then testified on a series of meetings with Brauer to obtain the 1935-36 Warner product, beginning in August, in which Brauer had said he could not deal with him, Arthur testified. The court overruled efforts to have the conversation ruled out. Arthur had said Brauer told him he would like to do business with him, but the Warner legal department had instructed him not to enter into a contract. A letter from Brauer dated Oct. 21 was read into the report.

The letter and Arthur's response had to do with the inability of Brauer to deal with Arthur. He then described the meetings at which a deal was finally made.

Redirect examination is expected tomorrow, when the Government will introduce Harry Arthur's reply to Schaefer's letter.

Wood cross-examined Irving Lesser of the Roxy in New York this morning on the Warner film situation with respect to "Alibi Ike," which Lesser testified had been refused him.

Walter Rice, assistant to Russell Hardy, chief Government attorney, left here tonight for Washington, to appear before the U. S. Supreme Court Monday in another case.

Ampa Award Plan on Ads Gets Approval

tributed to those assisting the winners in some divisions.

Six divisions are listed. They are:

1. The best advertisement of the year addressed to the trade.

2. The best advertisement of the year addressed to the public.

3. The best poster of the year.

4. The best and most practical press sheet.

5. The best single publicity achievement. This is not to be a campaign. It may be the planting of a story or a series of stories or the staging of a special event that directly brings publicity, but it must show wide distribution of the publicity and must show ingenuity and be of a definitely constructive character.

6. The best single exploitation achievement. This is not to be a campaign. It may be a tieup or a "stunt," but must have widespread effect and not be local in character. It must show originality and ingenuity and must be of a constructive nature.

Indies and Majors Considered

Independent companies as well as majors are to be embraced in the consideration for awards. A different set of judges will be selected for each division. Trade paper executives will judge the best trade ad and exhibitors will decide on the press book prizes.

Members of the various committees will be announced by Gordon S. White, president, at the next meeting. White is chairman of the Committee on Annual Awards which includes S. Barret McCormick, Alex Gottlieb, Milton Silver and Paul Gulick.

Home office heads already have expressed a willingness to cooperate and shortly will submit specimens of the best work turned out by their companies.

In the case of press books, it was decided yesterday to award a plaque to the company which is responsible for the winning book rather than the top executive. Employes of the company who aided in the development of the winning press sheet will be given certificates of merit.

20th-Fox to Transfer Sol Wurtzel Studio

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—20th Century-Fox plan to combine their production activities at the Westwood studio. They will move Sol Wurtzel's Hollywood studio production activities to the main Westwood plant within four months, it was learned on unimpeachable authority today. A new building at Westwood to accommodate the Wurtzel staff will be started shortly, it is believed.

The understanding here is that 20th Century-Fox does not own the Hollywood property outright but merely leases it, although verification of this fact could not be obtained.

Loew Prize Games Hinge on Courts and Farmer Miller was the name of the game.

In affirming the lower verdict, the Apellate Court held that prizes awarded as a result of spinning a wheel in a theatre are a violation of the lottery laws. Weisman, Quinn, Allen & Spett, which represented the exhibitor, plan to seek leave to file an appeal with the Court of Appeals. This move is expected either today or tomorrow.

Several independent exhibitors have been successful in having various magistrates dismiss similar actions.

Some time ago the Loew circuit threw out games when a drive by the police was instituted, but shortly after reinstated them.

SEC Refunding Approval Asked

Loew's, Inc., is preparing for the approval of SEC in Washington details of a proposed $15,000,000 issue of 10-year debentures at 3½ per cent. The issue is designed to retire $7,717,500 in six per cent 1941 debentures and to retire other mortgages as well as subsidiary funded debt. The data will go to Washington sometime next month. The underwriting will be floated shortly after official approval is granted.

For the 16 weeks ending March 14, 1935, the company reports a net of $2,344,029 which is equal to $1.41 a share on the 1,464,205 shares of common outstanding.

Both Sides Score Points At St. Louis

Hilles Is New Witness In Equity Case

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 24.—Both sides registered technical victories today in the equity proceedings here of the Government against Warners, Paramount and RKO. The Government won a point when Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux permitted the introduction of the income tax reports of the three companies and their affiliates, on the theory that Warners had been charged with making threats and the tax evidence would show whether they were capable of carrying them through if they were actually made. The Paramount and RKO reports were allowed on the basis that if there were a conspiracy the aggregate wealth would increase the power of the companies to make good their alleged threats.

The defense scored when RKO counsel, Jacob M. Lashly, was successful in having exluded the evidence

Warners Aim Suits at Out-of-Town Stations

Having filed 11 complaints within the last week against local radio stations allegedly infringing on the copyrights of Warner controlled music companies, Wattenberg & Wattenberg, legal firm which has been retained to handle the actions, next week will concentrate on out-of-town stations, it was stated yesterday.

The first complaint against a station outside of New York was filed Jan. 22 by Remick Music Corp. against the Pennsylvania Broadcasting Co., station WIP, Philadelphia, for the use of "Canadian Capers" on program of Jan. 1, 1936.

Government's Finance Needs Being Studied

Billions Needed; Expect Plan in Few Weeks

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Administration plans for raising billions of dollars needed for payment of the bonus, agricultural relief and to meet the deficit will be developed within the next few week, at which time President Roosevelt is expected to determine whether he can finance himself through the coming campaign without resorting to new taxation.

Possibilities indicated by recent discussions in Washington and market trends in New York are that further devaluation of the dollar and silver revaluation at a ratio of 16 to 1 with the new gold value may be considered by the Treasury to use the profits thus made in the value of its gold and silver holdings to finance the bonus payment.

If the Administration determines to ask for new taxes, the matter is likely to come before Congress in March. What form such new taxation would take is not, of course, being discussed by officials here, but every effort is expected to be made to avoid

Pizor Re-elected; MPTO Merger Dies

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—Lewen Pizor was re-elected president of the MPTO here today at a meeting attended by 75 exhibitors representing 190 Independents and 18 affiliates.

Plans to merge MPTO with IEPA were quashed by a unanimous vote. Members also went on record as opposing triple featuring and the admission of political propaganda as a part of newsreels. It was voted to petition the news reel producers for a correction of the condition.

Myers Is Silent

Washington, Jan. 24.—Replying to a query today as to his attitude toward the suggestion of J. B. Clinton, head of Allied of the Northwest, that Allied cooperate with the M.P.T.O.A. on matters where their policies do not conflict, Abram F. Myers, general counsel, said:

"My information is that Clinton is speaking only of a policy which he favors for the northwest unit, hence any comment by me would be inappropriate.

"Policies of national Allied are controlled by the board of directors which meets here Feb. 4-5."

Detroit Vote Shows Patrons Prefer Duals

DETROIT, Jan. 24.—Patrons of six Ben & Lou Cohen theatres, in widely scattered sections of the city, are voting heavily in favor of a continuation of double features, according to Ben Cohen. The voting, which started Jan. 18, is to continue through Jan. 31. It was inaugurated in the theatres because the Cohens previously believed their patrons wanted single features.

Although no total count has yet been made, Cohen said the vote in favor of duals probably would exceed three to one, upsetting predictions of both producers and exhibitors in diagnosing the public's true attitude toward the bargain policy.

The Hollywood, Rio, Mayfair, Roxy, Norwood and Grand Victory, the houses in which the vote is being conducted, are well scattered as to location. All of them are among the most important situations. Ballot boxes have been installed in the lobbies and patrons are urged to cast

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 24.—A plea that Allied recognize the need for two exhibitor organizations in the national field and that Allied cooperate with the M.P.T.O.A. on problems where the aims of the two organizations do not conflict is contained in a bulletin sent to members of Allied of the Northwest by J. B. Clinton, president.

Clinton has just completed a tour of sections where Allied is represented and others where it is not and his recommendations are presented to members with the statement that he intends to bring them before the directors of the national organization.

His four recommendations follow:

Zero Weather Nips Broadway's Grosses

Zero weather nipped box-office takes along Broadway this week in addition to sending grosses at neighborhood houses to new lows. Eddie Cantor's "Strike Me Pink" garnered $78,000 for the week ending Wednesday night. The Capitol, with "Exclusive Story," dipped to $16,750, while the Roxy ended with $22,500 on "Charlie Chan's Secret."

"Ceiling Zero" at the Strand in its first week wound up with around $35,000, and the second week of "The Ghost Goes West" at the Rivoli ended with approximately $25,000. Bishop Urges Sound Films for Churches

CINCINNATI, Jan. 24.—"There is no reason why the church should remain in the horse-and-buggy stage of using lantern slides and primitive methods when it has at its disposal such a great and effective force as the sound film," declared Bishop Henry W. Hobson, speaking before the 61st annual convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Ohio. Contrasting the "tragic emptiness" of the church, with the constantly crowded film houses, he advocated installation of sound pictures in all churches.

"My prediction is that through the sound picture, the Episcopal Church will make a great advance in visual church education, and will be able to present the life and history of the church in the way facts are presented in the crowded motion picture houses of the country," he said.

"They will not be programs of light entertainment in an effort to meet the challenge of the theatres, but programs in which leading men of the church will be brought with their personality and inspiring messages to all members."

Zanuck to Do Series With the Same Cast

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 24.—Darryl Zanuck has decided on an experiment with feature length films. After seeing "Every Saturday Night," which Sol Wurtzel produced at the Western Ave. plant of Twentieth Century-Fox, Zanuck decided to keep the main part of the cast intact, and to produce a series of four comedies with them.

Spring Byington and Jed Prouty, who play the father and mother, June Lang, June Carlson, Kenneth Howell, George Ernest and William Mahan, who play the children, will be billed as "The American Family" in "Every Saturday Night" and in three other titles still to be chosen. "Every Saturday Night" is a domestic comedy based upon the play by Katharine Kavanaugh.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—A virtual victory for Bank Night in Maine has resulted from the refusal of a Bangor court to hand down a decision on anti-lottery charges brought by County Attorney Ralph Dale. Dale has indicated that he will not press the case further.

Inasmuch as the litigation, which involved the M. & P. Theatres Corp. as the operators of the Opera House in Bath, was a test case, the discharge is held to be a victory for Attorney George S. Ryan and his associates.

Both Sides Score Points At St. Louis

of Milton Arthur, Harry Arthur's brother, concerning a conversation with Jules Levy, general sales manager for RKO, in November, 1934. It was excluded on the ground that at the time Levy was not on company business but merely carrying on a casual conversation with Arthur, even though they met in the RKO Los Angeles office. Arthur had said Levy advised him he would be out of luck if he didn't call off his brother in the St. Louis situation.

Lashly's cross-examination brought out that Arthur has been able to get RKO product for all his houses for the 1935-36 season, and has always shown RKO films. He said he always did business with RKO and had close relations with them. "You still have?" Lashly asked. "I hope so," Arthur responded.

Hardy Claims Prescott Boycott

Russell Hardy, chief Government attorney, in redirect examination, tried to bring out that Arthur's company had to drop a Prescott, Ariz., house because it could not obtain Warner films, but the court ruled against him. Hardy said it was strange he could not show that the conspirators extended their boycott to Prescott, and succeeded there in doing the very thing they had threatened to do in St. Louis." Frederick H. Wood, Warner counsel, countered that Arthur's evidence yesterday was that Warners did deal with him. Defense objection on the Prescott testimony was then sustained.

When Hardy attempted to get into the record a list of the theatres owned by the RKO interests, Warner and Paramount, Judge Molyneaux sustained the objections of Lashly for RKO, Wood for Warners and Louis Phillips for Paramount.

Then it became known that Charles D. Hilles, trustee in bankruptcy for Paramount-Publix at the time Marco Wolff and his sister, Fanchon Simon, talked with Adolph Zukor at the coast studio on the St. Louis situation, had voluntarily come here this morning, at the request of the Government. It was learned Department of Justice men had talked with Hilles by telephone, with stenographic notes having been taken.

'Financial Strength Immaterial"

Hardy called Hilles in an effort to show that at the time of the Zukor talk Zukor had authority to sell Paramount films, but when Hilles had completed his testimony the court stuck out the original ruling that the conversation could not go into the record. While admitting the income tax data, the court, on a point raised by ex-Senator James A. Reed of Warner counsel, made it clear that the strength of the companies financially could have nothing to do with his judgment on the case.

On direct examination Hilles said he was named a trustee in January, 1933, and is being continued for the purposes of a suit although the company emerged from bankruptcy last September. He said Paramount Pictures Distributing Co., Inc., was a wholly owned subsidiary of Paramount-Publix when he became trustee, and at the direction of the court the trustees permitted the operation of the subsidiaries and that Zukor remained as president. About May 1, 1933, the trustees directed Zukor to take particular charge of production, although he continued as president, Hilles testified.

He then said that George J. Schaefer was appointed general manager to coordinate distribution and exhibition, adding that Zukor spent most of his time on the coast. "Zukor was never forbidden to carry on the exhibition or distribution business for the company," Hilles said, "but Schaefer had charge of that for the trustees." Asked by Hardy about Zukor's duties, the witness said he was president and chief executive of the company and its subsidiaries, without specific duties, but to act as the directors might indicate.

Hardy Queries On Restrictions

Hardy again sought to find out whether any restrictions had been placed on Zukor regarding distribution. Hilles replied, "We did not specifically advise Zukor not to give any attention to distribution and exhibition, but it was recognized that he would look direct to Schaefer in those matters." It developed that Schaefer reported direct to the trustees, while Zukor reported through Schaefer. Hilles added that as far as the trustees were concerned Schaefer was in charge at the Los Angeles sales meeting in 1934.

In cross-examination, Phillips for Paramount questioned Hilles about the letter from Schaefer to Harry Arthur on April 11, 1935, when Schaefer took the position that Arthur's connection with the actions against Paramount and Schaefer had destroyed the good will between buyer and seller, and that Paramount would not do business with him. Hilles revealed that the letter, prior to being mailed, was discussed by Schaefer with the trustees, who approved it after submitting it to their attorneys.

Schaefer Said to Have Explained

Hilles explained that when the trustees discovered the indictments for alleged irregularities in St. Louis, they asked Schaefer to explain. Hilles said Schaefer gave them the details of the history of the sale to Warners, the fact that Paramount had a long term franchise for films at the St. Louis houses, which terminated with the receivership, and that Paramount later sold films to the receiver and the Skouras Brothers, and that there was no conspiracy.

Hilles said Leo Gottleib, of Root, Clark, Buckner and Ballantine, the trustees' attorneys, had advised them to take no action in the St. Louis matter until the trial. The witness said the attorney saw no objection to the letter from a legal standpoint, and that the trustees saw none from a business standpoint. He said Schaefer told him he wrote the letter.

Prior to adjournment until 10 A.M. tomorrow, Hardy reopened the question of permitting the Government to offer evidence on the profits and losses of the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum. No action was taken by the court today on the matter.

Detroit House Rates Higher at Matinees

DETROIT, Jan. 24.—Detroit is to have what it is believed will be the only film theatre in the country charging a higher admission during the day time than at night.

When Gus Coplan and Max Heine reopen the Lafayette on Jan. 30 with a policy of double bill second runs, they will charge 20 cents from 10 A. M. until 6 P. M. and 15 cents thereafter until closing.

The reason is that the theatre is in the heart of the business section where there is much activity during the day, but which is practically deserted during the evening.

10 per cent—no more, no less—of our income from whatever source and do what we can to increase the power of our local and national group;

"That we recognize the need for two such organizations as the M.P. T.O.A. and our own, and that in all proper ways we support the other organization, morally, in all problems where their aims are not in conflict with ours;

"That we do all we can as missionaries to convert those independents who further by money or influence the carrying on of an association of producer-exhibitors and convince them of the need for supporting our independent group;

"That we do not cease our efforts until in every Congressional district we have a 'Bell Cow' and an advisory committee to carry on either with or without state organization."

Strength Where There Is Unity

Clinton supplements his recommendations with the following:

"Having in mind a recent meeting in northern Wisconsin of a small group of determined exhibitors to which I was invited and where I witnessed the birth of an idea which finally resulted in an order from the War Department debarring the general public from attendance at motion picture shows at army posts and CCC camps throughout the United States, I know that throughout our land other and similar groups may be got together of men, unadvertised and unsung, who can, if united, make their influence felt, not only in their own communities, but in the halls of Congress and the councils of the organization commanded by General Hays and those he so capably represents.

"I have discussed this idea with Abram F. Myers with the request that he present it to the next meeting of his directors with the hope that they will look favorably upon it.

"But whether they do or not, it is my purpose when my successor has been appointed at our district convention next April, to devote a great part of my efforts to speeding the time when National Allied will be strong, west of the Mississippi, and below the Mason and Dixon line, and in all states where it is now nonexistent.

"We are fortunate in the Minnesota district to find our affiliated competition in the hands of such constructive minds as Messrs. Friedl and Ludwig, but the conditions I found in some of the other districts were lamentable and almost unbelievable, and, if I may be permitted to add, there were many other cases of pots calling the kettle black."

To Do 5th "Golddiggers"

Looking 'Em Over

"Freshman Love"

(Warners)

Played against what is virtually a musical background, this mild little comedy of college rowing and romance is apt to prove fair, light entertainment for the younger generation, with a number of laughs, and the comedy of Frank McHugh for its drawing value. He is aided for laughs by Frank Cawthorn and George E. Stone, while Warren Hull and Patricia Ellis take care of the vocalizing and romance.

McHugh, the crew coach, is in danger of losing his job when he fails to turn out a winning crew. Miss Ellis, the president's daughter, seeks to help him by going out to "get" two expert oarsmen and have them enroll at the school. She succeeds. Everything goes well, with the crew training to a dance rhythm when one of the two oarsmen fails in his studies. The other, Hull, learns of the trickery practiced by Miss Ellis and leaves on the eve of the big race, but when he hears that she loves him returns just in time.

The rival coach tries to switch the dance rhythm, but the dear old school wins out in the end, as does Hull in his romance with Miss Ellis, while Cawthorn, Hull's father, is equally pleased. William McGann directed.

Production Code Seal No. 1,710. Running time, 69 minutes. "G."

"Limelight"

(Herbert Wilcox Prod.)

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Arthur Tracy is the box-office value in this first feature of Herbert Wilcox Prod., personally directed by Wilcox and released in England by C. M. Woolf's company, General Film Distributors.

Tracy, singing at the stage door of a theatre, is brought in at the instance of a chorus girl captivated by his voice to take the place of a sick vocalist. The stunt makes him a star. During his absence on a Continental tour, the show flops and, as a stunt, the chorus girl is billed to sing the numbers of the street singer she discovered. Depressed because she thinks the singer has deserted her for a society girl, she "dries up," but the Street Singer walks on from the wings and saves the show.

There are some good ballet scenes, but in the absence of really convincing story values it stands or falls as a singing show by Tracy. His numbers are well put over and balance his lack of screen personality. Anna Neagle has very few chances.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G." ALLAN

"Whipsaw," yesterday's opener at the Capitol, was previewed by wire from Hollywood on Dec. 4.

Early tabulation, he says, shows that Hollywood patrons are three to one for duals. The Roxy, where single bills went into effect about a month ago, is running about even in the voting. Rio patrons are demanding double bills by a vote of almost 10 to one, while in the other three houses the voting is about three to one for duals.

is chiefly due to the fact that affidavits of competent proof must first be submitted to the home office before legal measures are instituted.

In instances where numbers of Warner music subsidiaries are broadcast without consent on a sustaining program the amount of damages sought is $5,000. Where a sponsor is involved, an accounting of the profits is sought in addition to the $5,000. Out of the dozen actions already filed, only one lists a sponsor. This is the suit filed by Remick against Knickerbocker Broadcasting Co., Inc., and Sally Studios for using "Avalon" on the Jan. 19 program.

The Sally Studios complaint was filed Thursday along with three other actions, including Harms, Inc., against NBC and WEAF for using "Where Am I?" on Jan. 1; M. Witmark & Sons against NBC and WJZ for using "Painting the Clouds With Sunshine" on Jan. 1, and the Philadelphia suit.

taxes which would fall directly upon the mass of the voters to whom the President looks for reelection.

Probabilities of an increase in the admission tax are being discounted, but final decision will depend upon how urgent the Treasury's need for money becomes and the availability of other equally productive items. However, it is generally believed that such a change would be left for consideration next year and any revenue bill passed by Congress this session limited to as small a total as will carry the Government through the next few months.

Reliance to Release List Through RKO

Edward Small to Become Associate Producer

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—All Reliance pictures after "The Last of the Mohicans" will be released by RKO instead of United Artists, it was stated Saturday after the closing of a deal by Harry M. Goetz, president, and Edward Small, vice-president of Reliance, and RKO officials.

All future Reliance films will be made on the RKO lot. Small will become an associate producer for RKO and supervise the production of Reliance properties. Among the new Reliance films to be made on the RKO list will be Robert Donat in "The Robber Barons," "Gunga Din," "Son of Monte Cristo" and a series of Jack Oakie starring vehicles.

Harry M. Goetz, president of Reliance, will return from the coast in about a week.

From time to time it has been reported Reliance would be distributed by Twentieth Century-Fox upon expiration of the present U.A. agreement.

Republic to Release 'Frankie and Johnnie'

"Frankie and Johnnie" will be released by Republic, it was stated by the company Saturday. Helen Morgan and Chester Morris have the title roles with Florence Reed and William Harrigan in support.

When originally produced at the Biograph studios, the film ran afoul of the Hays production code and considerable of the story had to be revamped before it was approved by the Hays organization and given code seal No. 851.

At one time RKO Distributing Corp. had a deal on to release the film, but this fell through when the Hays office tabooed the original.

Patron Kicks Cause Resolution on Reels

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—Behind the action of the M.P.T.O. in asking producers to eliminate politics from newsreels is the fact that political material in the reels is putting exhibitors in a difficult spot, with many objections having been registered by patrons.

At the meeting the following officers were elected in addition to Lewen

Delay Hearing

St. Louis, Jan. 26.—Yesterday's session in the equity case here was called off because, Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux informed attorneys through the court clerk, he had a toothache and had to visit the dentist. The hearing will continue Monday, probably with Harry C. Arthur, one of the few remaining Government witnesses, on the stand.

Financing by Pathe Awaits Robert Young

Plans for financing individual producers by Pathe will await the return from Europe shortly of Robert M. Young, partner of Frank Kolbe, president of Pathe and chairman of the First Division board, it is understood.

Officials of both companies have been working the last few months on negotiations which would bring several prominent producers under the Pathe financing. During the absence of Young, Robert McKinney, of the Young-Kolbe office, is said to have taken an active part in discussions on deals. Executives of Pathe and First Division are expected to make a trip to Hollywood within the next few weeks to look over the production situation and confer with a number of producers they have in mind.

Whether or not the name of Pathe will be used in this connection has

Mexico Strike Ends Against U. S. Firms

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 26.—The employes' strike here against eight American distributors, which started Sept. 27, last, has ended. The settlement finally restores to Mexican exhibitors the sorely needed better grade American product, which has been completely shut off since the strike began. The distributors declared yesterday they will have an ample supply of pictures ready on Monday.

Production Gains; 38 Features Going

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—Breaking a four-week production slump, studio activity took rapid strides last week, swelling company employment rosters by several hundred. Nearly every studio registered a gain.

There were 38 feature pictures and five shorts being filmed, compared to 29 features and two shorts for the week preceding.

Warners hit a new high with nine features before the cameras.

Columbia had five features working, four in preparation, and three in the cutting room. Fox had five, two and five; Goldwyn, one, zero and zero; M-G-M, three, zero and 10; Paramount, six, three and 10; Radio, three, zero and four; Roach, one, zero and one; Universal, four, one and two; Warners, nine, one and seven; independents, one, three and one.

"Opera" Made "Opry" For Charlotte Trade

CHARLOTTE, Jan. 26.—Fearing that the word "Opera" would ruin its chances at the box-office here, the Carolina did a little exploiting of its own and changed the title to "A Night at the Opry." The picture had a good run.

"Opera" and things connected with it are not exactly the best box-office attraction for Charlotte, as proven by past experience.

Even pictures starring the greatest opera stars of them all have fared badly here. Lily Pons scarcely got to first base in "I Dream Too Much."

Chicago Cold Hits Grosses Heavy Blow

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—A 72-hour cold spell that threatened to break the 56-year-old Loop record of 23 below hurt theatre business here during Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Loop houses found plenty of seats vacant despite strong attractions. Neighborhood houses were also sufferers and some did not even run the late evening shows.

Increase of 10,828 Is Claimed by Federal Statisticians

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The world total of sound theatres was 51,697 at the end of 1935, or an increase of 10,828 over 1934, according to annual statistics prepared by N. D. Golden, chief of the Motion Picture Section of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The world total of motion picture theatres, sound and silent combined, at the same time was computed by the section at 87,299, or an increase of 26,381 over the Government bureau's own statistics for 1934. While little explanation accompanied the graphs which traced the rising curve, the assumption is the unbelievable increase is traceable to the claims which are made for exhibition in Russia. That country, according to the section, jumped from 9,987 outlets at the end

Directors Increase Guild Roster to 75

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26. — Approximately 125 directors turned out for the first official meeting of the Screen Directors' Guild. The membership was swelled by 35. The total is now 75.

The highlight of the session was a talk by Cecil B. DeMille, who said that any organization that aided directors was good. At the same time he upheld the work of the Academy and urged prospective members to study the purposes of the new organization before signing, it was learned. Spokesmen for the Guild stressed the point that the organization was necessary as a defensive group.

Threaten Grand Jury St. Louis Game Quiz

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 26.—A grand jury investigation of the giveaway situation here is threatened if the practice does not stop, following police orders to enforce a ban ordered by Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller, who ruled giveaways and prizes at theatres illegal lotteries. Miller did not indicate what had caused him to take specific action at this time.

Attorneys for Bank Night are expected here Monday to confer with G. E. McKean, local agent, on Miller's action. The ban was first ordered against Bank Night, then expanded to include all giveaway forms. F. & M. carried through its regular weekly drawing Friday night at the Missouri despite the ruling. R. W. McGowan, Missouri manager, said attorneys had advised the management of the Fox, Missouri and Ambassador that the plan is legal. Beginning Feb. 4 the three houses will give three Ford cars weekly for 10 weeks.

The complaint against Bank Night is said to have been made by Rev. C. O. Johnson, of the Third Baptist Church, adjoining the Missouri, which has been used for men's bible classes through the courtesy of F. & M. On the information that Harold W. Evans, manager of Loew's Theatre, may have induced the minister to file the complaint, Harry C. Arthur, F. & M. executive, wrote to Joe Vogel of Loew's in New York, protesting, since Loew's uses Bank Night in other cities.

of '34 to 29,691 at the end of the following year. This figure, it was pointed out, includes "urban, rural theatres, both those equipped with stationary and portable projectors where motion pictures are shown." In other words, the figures for the Soviets made no claims that they embrace theatres in the accepted American trade sense.

There is another approach by which the staggering increase in world theatres, whether silent or sound, may be explained away. In its 1934 survey, made public early last year, the Motion Picture Section credited the United States with only 10,143 houses, having declared at the time that the estimate was "based on the Bureau of Census survey as of December, 1934." Those within the industry and familiar with its statistical fabric failed to agree.

15,378 in United States

Currently, the section sets down 15,378 for the United States. This coincides with the conclusion drawn by the Film Boards of Trade in its own survey, detail of which was made public in New York on Thursday. However, this total, as explained by the Film Boards of Trade, represents theatres actually open as of Jan. 1, 1936. That authority placed all houses in the United States at 18,508. The Motion Picture Section, at no point, specifies whether its statistics cover theatres light or dark.

A four-year comparison of all theatres throughout the world appears elsewhere in this edition of MOTION PICTURE DAILY. Here is a four-year comparison of sound theatres, the figures, in each instance, being those of the Motion Picture Section:

1934	40,869
1932	36,955

Europe contributed 27,956 sound houses to the international total as against 60,150 theatres in toto in that division, the section points out. The United States, credited with 15,378 theatres, is 100 per cent wired for talkers, this source continues. Here are how the other major world geographical divisions break down:

The Far East has 3,712 sound theatres out of a grand total of 5,185.

Latin-America is listed with 3,338 sound houses out of a grand total of 5,044.

Africa and the Near East have 480 wired out of a grand total of 637.

Midwest's Theatre Changes Continuing

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 26.—Transfers of control and general improvements have been on the upgrade in this territory for some time.

C. A. Schultz, vice-president of Commonwealth Amusement Corp., has acquired the State, Garden City, Kan., from Lester McCoy. W. G. Green, former operator of the Electric, Glasgow, Mo., has leased the Princess at La Platte and is remodeling it. W. G. Waldon has opened the new De Soto at De Soto, Kan. Loew's Midland will soon receive bids for reupholstering and other improvements.

N. E. Changes Numerous

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—Shifts on the New England theatre map are numerous. The Broadway, Chelsea, has been opened by M. & P. with George Friary in charge; Waldron's Casino, an old house, is about to be opened with films and vaudeville. The Strand, Gloucester, also has been opened by M. & P.

Two Maine theatres back on the active list are the Star, West Pembroke, and Wilbur Hall, Phillips.

In New Hampshire the Alley, Groveton, has been reopened. Others just opened are: the Town Hall, Jeffersonville, and Community, Ashland.

Buy Empress at Denver

DENVER, Jan. 26.—Three Denver real estate men, L. F. Eppich, Ed P. Eppich and A. G. Talbot, who formed the Center Investment Co. for the deal, have bought the old Empress. The house has been closed for three years, but is equipped for pictures and vaudeville, and it is planned to reopen it as a first run with a stage show.

Southern Shifts Unabated

JACKSONVILLE, Jan. 26.—Southern theatre changes and new construction continue unabated. In this state Butler Gore has sold the Florida at Haines City to F. O. Mullins of Kissimmee and a new house, the Fain has been opened at Leesburg.

The Leesburg is a $25,000 500-seat structure of brick, with a separate balcony for colored patrons.

Two new North Carolina houses are planned. One will be at Newton and will be erected for G. G. Mitchell. A second will be a $25,000 structure the first there, at Clinton.

At Columbus, Miss., home town of Ed Kuykendall, Solomon Bros., Inc. have purchased the Chevrolet building for the purpose of converting it into a 1,000-seat house.

Acquires London Series

Oklahoma Diplomacy Developing Strains

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 26.—Relations between distributors and the Motion Picture Council here are a bit strained. The council hopes "to persuade distributors to lease the right kind of films to churches and schools."

So far the distributors have more or less gracefully dodged the issue.

A recent meeting called by Mrs. Charles McPherren, to which distributors had been "cordially" invited, she said, failed to attract a single exchange manager.

Mrs. C. R. Loucks, council secretary, says she phoned all the exchange heads the next day and "all eight were out of town."

It was Mrs. Loucks, who, a few days ago, gave out some caustic comment on J. H. Cooper's plan to form a foundation through which all his theatre income would be used to aid destitute children. She called it a plan to "hoodwink" the public.

New Orleans Agrees Gain Will Go On

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 26.—Reports from exchanges here point to one of the best years in the history of the business. Upstate, where in the past theatres have been open only two or three nights a week, a full six-day programs are being given at a slightly advanced range of prices owing to increased employment, both private and on WPA projects.

For the general business outlook the Association of Commerce predicts more than substantial gain in all lines.

New Orleans proper shows big gains in admissions, not in spots, but all through the week, with more than satisfactory gains Saturday and Sunday nights. In the neighborhood houses the gains have more than doubled since a year ago at the same period. This, too, is due to the fact more money is in circulation and there is more sustaining employment.

Downtown houses are not doing so well. They are adhering to a conservative policy, with none of the trimmings so popular in the neighborhoods, such as cash awards, chinaware and the like.

On cash award nights no attention is paid to the feature—any old thing goes. The patrons are after the cash.

Retail Trade Up 30%

As a rule, with the exception of the wash goods industry, which is the largest in the United States, manufacturing industries are not running full time. Canal Street retail stores report an increase of approximately 30 per cent in business over a corresponding period of the previous year. The holiday trade was even greater than during the rush year of 1929.

An official statement from the banks read: "With business and all forms of trade on the increase, particularly during the past six months and the holiday season, bank deposits in New Orleans have jumped up more than $28,000,000 in the past year."

Many attempts have been made to bring vaudeville to the city again, but exhibitors have decided that such a move would be financial suicide in view of the excellence of the films presented. Newspapers shed tears of joy when Major Bowes and his amateurs were billed for Jerusalem Temple at 75 cents top. It is currently reported that the unit went in the red.

Reports are current that the Tulane, only legitimate house in the city, is to be discontinued by the K. & E. main offices.

Favor Action Films

Henry Lazarus, owner of the Wonderland, Newcomb and Coliseum, believes that business will increase from now on, both in independent houses and affiliated. Lazarus says his books show that action pictures will have the call. Lazarus heads Allied in this section.

On the other hand, J. D. Duffy, speaking for Harry S. McLeod of the St. Charles, believes that musical comedy will have the run and quotes figures to show that the St. Charles did better business with this type than with others, with the exception of "Emperor Jones" which broke all house records and came back for a second time.

Philip Sliman, controlling the Laurel, and another in New Iberia, believes that action films are the best bet.

At the Republic-Bromberg headquarters, Leo Seicshnaydre, manager, says country business is improving, the exhibitors buying more and better films. He also notices that theatres are devoting more space to advertising on billboards and in newspapers, lithograph being in good demand, exhibitors endeavoring to reach non-theatregoes, instead of depending entirely on the screen.

Business in Indiana Area Is Improving

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Jan. 26.—Prospects for a bright and merrier New Year are indicated here through expansions of various retail establishments and major manufacturing plants, especially those engaged in making nationally advertised wares.

Business in Terre Haute, as well as the rest of Indiana, is on the upgrade. More money is being spent and bank debits are gaining, according to statistics. Employment is showing gains constantly.

Several major industries here have purchased additional tracts for expansion of their plants, which will require a greater force of workmen. Mines and smaller industrial plants are working steadily.

Stage plays are again becoming popular here with local picture houses offering such attractions on their programs. The city's only vaudeville house has in recent weeks presented a number of prominent plays to a well-pleased audience.

Terre Haute's houses are all in full operation and it is anticipated that several new ones will be planned in the near future.

Bank Night at the Indiana probably has been the most outstanding event in the annals of local theatre history. On various occasions, when the prize ran into the hundreds, traffic near the theatre was practically blocked.

The theatre outlook is brighter than it has been in a number of years. While there are no plans for immediate changes in the local situation neither are there any advances being planned in admission prices. Top prices are 40 cents at night with a 25 cent matinee. Other houses range from 10 cents up and the established admission is likely to hold throughout the coming year.

The year will undoubtedly witness much improvement and remodeling at a number of the leading houses here. During the past several years such remodeling and improvements were scarce. However, the larger theatres are practically new buildings.

Theatre advertising has shown an increase in the past several months in local newspapers. Several recent attractions were heralded by full page copy and the results were packed houses at every performance. Such was the case when "Top Hat" played at the Orpheum and the engagement was held over for another week.

Theatre Gain Is Seen in Virginia

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 26.—While amusement interests in Virginia experienced improvement in business last year, eight or more new theatres having been opened in 1935, many exhibitors predict better conditions in 1936 as a result of increased activity along many lines.

The Lee was among the new houses completed last year. Others have opened in Norfolk, Lynchburg, Hillsville, Martinsville, Stuart and Galax. Another new house is being built at Falls Church, a suburb of the national capital. Plans are being made for the construction of two additional houses in Richmond and building activity is reported to be on the increase in various parts of the state. Several industrial plants have been enlarged and a larger number of textile workers will be given employment this year.

Elmer H. Brient, secretary of the M. P. T. O. of Virginia, Inc., said today 1936 should be a good one for the industry.

"Better products are being offered and they will produce better business," he said. "We felt the depression later than other businesses and will be later in getting back to good times again."

Former State Senator Edwin S. Reid, director of the State Division of M. P. Censorship, reports improvement in the types of films now being offered.

Gilbert Greentree, president of the Retail Merchants of Richmond, reports 1935 the best year since 1929 when the Wall Street collapse marked the beginning of the business depression which led to the national bank holiday of 1933.

Sweepstakes Sued in K. C. by Bank Night

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 26.—Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., has filed an equity suit in Federal district court here against E. S. Young, theatre owner; Frank Bowen, supply man; W. Edgar Orndorff, attorney, and members of the I. T. O. operating a Sweepstakes Night pool, charging unfair competition through the resemblance of Sweepstakes to Bank Night. An accounting, damages and a restraining injunction are asked.

It is charged the methods of Sweepstakes are so similar to Bank Night as to confuse persons intending to patronize the latter. Sweepstakes Night is not to be confused with Movie Sweepstakes, it is pointed out. The former is said to have been developed locally by Young, Bowen and Orndorff.

Reade Will Extend Use of Bank Night

With Bank Night playing in a number of his theatres in New York and New Jersey, Walter Reade intends to adopt the game in practically all of the 35 theatres in the circuit.

Reade pointed out last week that the results of the game in the Peekskill, Peekskill, have convinced him of the desirability of the move. The theatre, which usually grosses about $80 on Tuesday, one week jumped to a take of $500, which Reade attributes directly to the game.

Steady Trend Upward Noted In Hartford

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 26.—Theatre managers think 1936 will be a good year. Business, they say, showed a steady improvement in the latter part of 1935.

"More people are going to the theatre this year than last," says Lou Cohen, manager of the Palace. "The pictures are better, too." These sentiments are echoed by all the managers, who find a growing satisfaction on the part of their patrons with the type of picture coming out of Hollywood. "The producers seem to have hit on the kind of entertainment the public wants," they say.

Deposits in Connecticut savings banks are up $11,000,000 over last year. Manufacturing activity in Hartford jumped from 60 per cent of normal in August and September to 75 per cent of normal in November and is still climbing.

Employment in Hartford has shown steady gains from 82 per cent normal last January to 96 per cent normal. Graphs showing employment and manufacturing activity laid over box-office receipts would almost coincide, a survey reveals.

Insurance Field Gains

Insurance, the main industry in Hartford, made a gain of $150,000,000 in assets during the year. Payment of bonuses to employes at Christmas, while not general, was sufficiently widespread to promote confidence in the future on the part of the working classes, who make up the bulk of the theatre patronage.

Business is really good in Hartford—not just around the corner. G. Fox & Co., leading department store, has just completed an air-conditioning and modernizing program that cost a million dollars.

The Board of Education voted yesterday to restore 10 per cent pay reductions to teachers in city schools. All city employes will receive at least five per cent of 10 per cent pay cuts which have been in force for three years.

Manufacturers of machine screws and parts for automobiles reported sharp upturns in activity following fall automobile shows.

Theatres Brushing Up

Theatre improvements, which had been at a standstill, have resumed on a modest scale. The Princess has new carpets, the Allyn is having murals painted on the walls by a local artist, the large lobby of the Poli has been redecorated. There has been talk of installing new seats at the Palace.

Perhaps one of the most significant signs that Hartford theatremen are not worried about 1936 is the lack of opposition which greeted the announcement that a PWA civic repertory company would be operating soon at Parsons. Managers downtown feel that a return to legitimate drama in Hartford, even at competitive prices, would increase attendance, rather than cut in on it. Hartford's best days, they recall, were when the Parsons was running. Anything that might tend to revive the spoken drama and again place Hartford in the top rank among show towns, would be welcome now.

Short Subjects

"Between the Lines"

(Vitaphone)

A strikingly novel theme and deftly handled touches of satire make this a genuinely entertaining musical offering. With the flash-back technique it fancifully presents the real life of magazine story characters and how they visit their colleagues on other pages. Modern life and the Civil War period provide some excellent singing by Bernice Claire. Centering about her, the story has an intruder from a night club yarn on another page coming over and introducing her to modern times. In a night club, modernly gowned, she is enjoying herself when the place is held up. At that point her southern brother, a Civil War army officer, comes to the rescue, saving her from the "rebels." A great piece of burlesque. There is a Lindy Hop sequence at the finish. Tuneful, witty, old-fashioned and yet sophisticated, this will be well received. Production Code Seal, No. 0638. Running time, 22 mins. "G."

"Steel and Stone"

(Vitaphone)

This number of the "Our Own United States" series covers the construction of bridges and tunnels. It is finely done photographically, and the dialogue by Milton J. Cross is a genuine blend of scientific fact with the correct shading of humor. The piece skips about the country showing to their best advantage bridges on many rivers, their purposes and the fine points of their architecture. There are excellent views of the Key West spans, the Pulaski Skyway, the Huey Long bridge in New Orleans and others. Aside from its educational angle the film is both interesting and entertaining. Should be well received. Production Code Seal, No. 0764. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"The Cat Came Back"

(Vitaphone)

A cartoon in Technicolor that should be well received by children and adults alike. It concerns the rivalry between cat and mouse family. Mother cat teaches her kittens the art of catching mice with football tactics and the mice are schooled in eluding them. A friendship between a kitten and a mouse springs up and ceases when the kitten is beaten up, only to resume again. The mothers do some quarreling and the two go off and dance to phonograph music. The kitten falls into a sewer and the mouse goes to the rescue. Rescued, all is serene again until mama cat remembers and the struggle is on again. Production Code Seal, No. 1882. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Wild Wings"

(Vitaphone)

Beautifully photographed on the island of Laysan in the Pacific, this is an interesting and amusing pictorial record of sea bird life. The island is a natural bird sanctuary and flocks of albatross, rails, terns and frigate birds winter there. Exceptional shots reveal mating habits and others in slow motion show the poetry of their effortless flight. Should please. Production Code Seal, No. 0652. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Milky Way"

(Lloyd-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—With uproarious comedy and to the tune of a thousand laughs, Harold Lloyd returns to the front rank of screen funmakers. Farce and hokum, moving with speed and holding a sock in every sequence, the film is a credit to everyone connected with it and should prove one of the season's ace attractions. An indication of what to expect is the reaction of the preview audience, which giggled, guffawed and roared at the nonsensical action and clever dialogue.

With the exception of a few suggestions of romance, which in themselves are funny, the film ignores everything but laugh-provoking comedy. Protecting sister Helen Mack, Lloyd, a milkman, whose fighting ability is confined to a knowledge of how to duck, is accused of knocking out William Gargan, middleweight champion. Shanghaied by chiseling manager Adolphe Menjou's gang, including Gargan, Veree Teasdale and Lionel Stander, Lloyd is taught, but never learns, ring craft.

Wading through a series of framed bouts, the stage is set for the big Milk Fund bout with Gargan, sponsored by Marjorie Gateson, socialite. In a ridiculous single round, Lloyd wins, when Gargan's desire for revenge is licked by his affection for Lloyd's sister, and a dose of insomnia medicine administered by Stander gets in its work.

The entire cast does a fine comedy job, their performances leaving the audience limp. Based on a play by Lynn Root and Harry Clork, the screenplay by Grover Jones, Frank Butler and Richard Connell is a masterpiece of farce comedy. Leo McCarey's direction takes full advantage of all the opportunities and maintains a continuous fast pace. E. Lloyd Sheldon supervised. The picture looks to be a sure winner wherever it is played, on the basis of word-of-mouth advertising alone.

Production Code Seal No. 1,735. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"Tough Guy"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—Designed for general audiences, this picture will fit nicely on most programs. Jackie Cooper and Joseph Calleia head the cast of all male players with Rin Tin Tin, Jr., the dog star.

Jackie and his dog run away from home, stowing away in a truck which Calleia is using in a bank holdup. Delivered at the gangster hideout, Jackie and Calleia are separated from the mob when the police close in and they camp out in the mountains. Calleia softens by his association with the boy and they form a deep attachment for each other. Later the mob is tempted by the reward to kidnap Jackie as Calleia is taken into custody. Allowed to escape, Calleia and the dog find Jackie and release him in a fight which results in Calleia's death.

Skillful direction by Chester Franklin builds the situations for suspense, nicely shading the sequences which otherwise might have appeared as hokum. The production by Harry Rapf, made mostly outdoors, offers opportunities for good photography which are all capitalized.

Supporting performances by Harvey Stephens, Robert Warwick as Jackie's father, and Jean Hersholt as a veterinary, are best. Florence Ryerson and Edgar Allan Woolf wrote both the screenplay and the original story.

The lack of love interest should not prove a handicap and the picture should be well received as good action entertainment.

Production Code Seal, No. 1851. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Every Saturday Night"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—Striking a new and popular chord in entertainment values and meeting pronounced approval at a neighborhood preview, this film has a typical American family in typical home situations. Wholesome and sincere elements make up the picture.

In the family is Jed Prouty, father, who lectures and loves his brood; Spring Byington, mother, understanding and kindly; June Lang, daughter, in her first feature role, and a youthful romance; Florence Roberts, grandmother, keeping Prouty in his place; Kenneth Howell, 17, with his first tuxedo; George Ernest, 12, a cold-eyed banker, and little June Carlson, with a yen to be Garbo.

All these everyday folks under one roof develop the story of young people, with their joys, sorrows and happiness. James Tinling directed with understanding from Katherine Kavanaugh's play. It is Max Gordon's first as an associate producer and it clicks in a refreshing manner. It should do well in the general field, particularly with the family patronage. It is the first of a new series, called "Our American Family."

Production Code Seal, No. 1,908. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Defense Wins Vital Points At St. Louis

Arthur's Conversations Are Eliminated

St. Louis, Jan. 27.—The question of whether Warners, Paramount and RKO had conspired to violate the anti-trust law in their alleged refusal to supply films to the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central here was almost entirely confined to correspondence between officials of the various companies involved in connection with commitments and actual contracts for Paramount and RKO films to the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum for the 1934-35 season, by a series of rulings in the equity case here today by Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux.

Shortly before 12 noon the court sustained a defense objection to Government introduction of documentary evidence on the financial operations of the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum under Warner management since March 31, 1934. Russell Hardy, chief

Blank Resumes Bank Night in Des Moines

DES MOINES, Jan. 27.—Judge Russell Jordan has dissolved a permanent injunction issued last fall by District Judge Jordan which enjoined the Tri-States Theatre Co. and A. H. Blank, Pres., from conducting Bank Night at five theatres here.

The recent ruling of the Iowa Supreme Court in a Newton, Ia., case to the effect that Bank Night is not a lottery under the Iowa statute prompted the action of Judge Jordan, on motion of attorneys for the theatre company after the county attorney had approved the dismissal.

Bank Night will be resumed tomorrow in the five theatres here, the Des Moines, Paramount, Roosevelt, Strand and Uptown.

George P. Hundling, manager of the theater at Newton, whose appeal to the Iowa Supreme Court resulted in the ruling, states that definite plans for resuming Bank Nights in Newton await action of the Jasper County Attorney, P. Defense Wins Vital Points At St. Louis

Government attorney, argued at length, declaring the evidence would show the theatres were "fighting" properties, operated to furnish unfair competition to the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central under F. & M. operation.

Ex-Senator James A. Reed and Frederick H. Wood, Warner counsel, argued that if the court went into the financial question evidence would have to be heard on the entire exhibition situation, pointing out that on the basis of their complete St. Louis operations, Warners made more money since opening the two theatres than in any similar period in the past.

Judge Rules Out Talks

Judge Molyneaux sustained defense objections later, ruling out conversations with Herman Starr, Gradwell Sears and Abel Cary Thomas of Warners by Harry C. Arthur, F. & M. executive, and the Government's star witness. Included were other conversations with Ned Depinet of RKO and George J. Schaefer of Paramount. The Government had been depending on that testimony concerning alleged statements attributed to Depinet and Schaefer to make its point that Warners brought pressure on RKO and Paramount to force them to sell first run films here to Warners instead of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central.

Arthur completed his direct testimony at 3:55 P. M., after taking the stand at 12. His actual direct testimony was less than two hours. He repeated the story of his career as in the criminal case and gave details of his business connections here. He told how he was invited by John S. Leahy, Allen L. Snyder's attorney, to become interested with Snyder in the three houses, F. & M. putting up $55,000 of the $105,000 guarantee fund posted for the reorganization of the properties, including $5,000 for Harry Greenman and Charles Kurtzman. He said that Harry Koplar has one share of stock in each of the leasing companies, while his brother-in-law, Dr. J. G. Probstein, posted $25,000 of the fund.

Tells of Jeffries Meeting

He recited a conversation with Sam B. Jeffries, local Warner counsel, in a New York hotel sometime between Feb. 20 and March 6, 1934, when he said he informed Jeffries that Harry Koplar had advised him to explain that F. & M. were not considering acquiring the St. Louis Amusement Co., but were interested solely in the leases for the three houses. He said Jeffries asked him to tell it to Thomas as he (Jeffries) would have no chance to see Thomas. Arthur said he could get hold of neither Thomas nor Major Albert Warner that day, and that Major Warner's secretary told him to take the matter up with Sears.

With little change from his criminal case testimony, Arthur told what transpired at the March 6, 1934 meeting of himself, Jack Partington, Sears, Starr and Thomas in the Warner office, including the "You are the lambs to be slaughtered" phrase. The court permitted the Government to introduce copies of MOTION PICTURE DAILY and Film Daily of that date, "merely for the purpose of showing what they were talking about, and not as proof of anything that was printed."

Arthur Tells of Phoning

Arthur mentioned a phone conversation and later personal conference with Schaefer about March 19, 1934. He set a date different than that in his criminal case testimony. He quoted Schaefer as saying: "They put the pressure on me and were threatening to upset our reorganization plans in Detroit," and so on. Objection by Louis Phillips, Paramount attorney, caused the elimination of the conversation.

Judge Molyneaux sustained objections by George S. Leisure for RKO against conversation with Depinet in the RKO offices the week of March 19 and also the meeting in the Plaza Hotel April 7, at which Leahy discussed the Warner film deal with Depinet. Also ruled out were conversations between Arthur and Sam Dembow of Paramount, and another with Ralph Kohn of Paramount. In both instances the court held that either the subject of the talk did not relate to St. Louis or the company officer was not acting within the scope of his authority, his statements not binding the company.

Agnew and Cresson Talks Admitted

The judge permitted to stand Arthur's testimony on talks with Neil Agnew and Cresson Smith, of Paramount and RKO, respectively, about second run films for the Missouri and New Grand Central.

In cross-examination, Wood asked Arthur whether he had gone to Warners on March 6, 1934, to buy films, to take over the Shubert-Rialto or to sell out to Warners his interest in the St. Louis houses. To each query Arthur responded with a negative.

Then Wood succeeded, on the basis that Arthur was not transacting business with Warners, in having all of the conversation eliminated from the record, with a similar ruling applying to the previous testimony of Jack Partington about the same conference. A motion by Phillips to extend the ruling as to the conference with Schaefer and Partington's testimony on the same meeting, will be decided tomorrow, when Phillips will present to the court notes on what Partington said. The court could not recall Partington's testimony this afternoon.

Son Ill, Sears Asks Excusal

Due to the illness of his son, Richard, and a desire by Gradwell L. Sears to remain in New York until the boy recovers from rheumatic fever, efforts will be made by Warner counsel in St. Louis today to have Russell Hardy, chief Government counsel, accept Sears' testimony in the criminal trial as that for the civil proceedings now in progress.

If this stipulation is agreed to by the Government, the Warner sales executive will not have to take the stand.

Sears arrived from St. Louis on Sunday with Harry M. Warner. The latter returned yesterday to the Mound City with Herman Starr, who flew in Sunday morning. As one of the excluded witnesses who cannot appear in court until he is called by Warner lawyers, Sears spent the whole of last week at the Park Plaza Hotel constantly in touch with his home. In the event Hardy does not agree to the stipulation, Sears will depart for St. Louis today.

Collins New Hardy Aide

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 27.—Harold F. Collins, a special assistant to the attorney general, is here assisting Russell Hardy in the civil proceedings against Warners, Paramount and RKO. He replaces Walter Rice who returned over the week-end to Washington to take part in arguments before the U. S. Supreme Court on the Sugar Institute anti-trust case.

the end of 1934, the Government bureau states this figure had increased by 4,476 to 27,956 by the end of last year. The chief impetus came from Russia which gained 1,200, according to this authority, to a total of 3,000.

The Far East, which appears in the Section's analysis as one division, stepped from fourth to third place in 1935, outdistancing Latin-America. Total sound installations are placed at 3,712 as against 3,362 in 1934, comparing with 3,338 for Latin-America last year as against 2,783 by the end of 1934.

It was pointed out that, although the study of Atlas is almost certain to involve its film operations, it will not be an investigation of picture companies as such, nor is the inquiry an investigation in the usual sense of the word as used here. The purpose of the study is to determine whether any legislation is needed to control investment trust operations.

Short Subjects

"Double or Nothing"
(Vitaphone)

Phil Harris resembles a current champion fighter and, being friendly, both play practical jokes on each other. Falling for Leah Ray, Harris is bamboozled into posing as the champ and goes to the training camp to bear out the impersonation. Miss Ray visits him and they do a couple of songs and windup at a party on the eve of the fight where he becomes aware that he has been kidnapped by gangsters. The real champ wins and, speaking over the radio, explains that it was another joke. Harris, of course, wins Miss Ray. This has its moments. There are some clever tunes which help put it over. Production Code Seal, No. 0682. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

"Beautiful Blue Danube"
(J. H. Hoffberg)

The Strauss waltz is played again to support a weak theme. The melodic twists of the music are not fully utilized. However, there are some interesting newsreel clips woven into the narrative which portrays Vienna and Austria in calm and strife. Happy peasants, cafe life and realistic revolutionary turmoil contrast with the peaceful stream which continues to flow like an "Ol' Man River." It is a routine offering, the overplayed theme has little that is novel to impress audiences. No production code seal. Running time 9 mins. "G"

"Vitaphone Troupers"
(Vitaphone)

Made up of four vaudeville acts this will entertainingly fill in a few minutes of any program. The Four Trojans do a snappy tumbling act; Aunt Jemima sings about "Clementine," Ross and Stone do their familiar turn and The Buccaneers vocalize effectively with "Got the Jitters." Production Code Seal, No. 0628. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Ithaca to Study Screen

ITHACA, Jan. 27.—Ithaca College has introduced in its curriculum courses in screen writing, acting technique, microphone practice and film laboratory work. The courses are arranged for those who wish intensive training in these fields without taking a general four-year course. As the project progresses the production of shorts will be made part of the course.

Pick Robinson's Next

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 27.—Edward G. Robinson will make "Ballots or Bullets" for Warners before sailing to fulfill a commitment in England. Humphrey Bogart and Barton MacLane will be heavies in the picture, and Robinson will appear on the side of the law. Production is scheduled to start in March.

Lugosi Out of Cast

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 27.—Bela Lugosi has been withdrawn from the cast of "The House of a Thousand Candles" at Republic, because of illness. He will be replaced by Irving Pichel. The picture had been in production for five days, and all scenes in which Lugosi had appeared will be remade. Arthur Lubin is directing.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"It Had To Happen"
(20th Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 27.—Built on a popular, semi-topical theme, this is a comedy-drama with all the earmarks of an attractive feature. Premised on the idea of an immigrant's rise to wealth and political power, the picture vividly combines drama, romance, comedy, political intrigue and excitement. The action and dialogue are blended nicely with these elements. It is well acted by all, with George Raft and Rosalind Russell contributing swell performances.

With Leo Carrillo as a comedy partner, Raft, a city laborer is brought effectively to the attention of Miss Russell when he flags down a car carrying her political boss fiance, Alan Dinehart, and Mayor Paul Stanton. Patronized by Stanton as a result of this incident, Raft becomes a political power in the Italian section. A bank fails, and he forces Dinehart, who has married Miss Russell, to make good the losses to his countrymen. Raft's affection for Miss Russell is growing meanwhile.

She distrusts a political intrigue of Dinehart's by which he attempts to convict Raft as a bribe taker. Since this menaces Raft's romantic, political and business career, he appears before the investigating Grand Jury and convinces it that he has acted to protect the depositors and rout the political leeches. With this victory under his belt he has no difficulty in convincing Miss Russell that she should divorce Dinehart.

The story is based on "Canavan" of Rupert Hughes. Howard Ellis Smith and Kathryn Scola did the script, which, together with Roy Del Ruth's direction, adhere closely to the original theme as it concentrates on understandable and believable entertainment.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Swifty"
(Walter Futter)

A routine western, this rates as average or less compared with others of its kind. It may do for the youngsters, played in the week-end action position, or as the second half of a dual bill, if the top half is strong. It tells the usual story, of the murder of a rancher, the framing of a stranger for the killing and the successful uncovering of the real murderer and the men behind him, with the aid of a friendly and clever sheriff.

Hoot Gibson plays the lead, as the suspected stranger, while June Gale, as the daughter of the murdered rancher, takes care of the romantic angle; George F. Hayes is the elderly, smart sheriff, and Ralph Lewis is the brains behind the murder of his stepfather, the motive being the victim's money. A second will, sought by Lewis after the murder, is the focal point about which the action moves, as he and his men try to take the will from Miss Gale.

The action often lacks reality and performances are only fair for the most part.

"Between Men"
(Supreme)

This is a Johnny Mack Brown western, cut pretty much to the standard western story patter and without any distinguishing virtues of its own. It offers a nominal amount of gun fire, jaw and shin bruising, pony riding and a slim and self-conscious romance between the hero and the rancher's daughter, played by Beth Marion.

The story centers on Brown's search for his guardian's granddaughter, who has disappeared with her parents in the western badlands following a family estrangement. The search not only leads him to the girl but to his own father, who had disappeared as a fugitive from justice years before after murdering a man whom he believed had killed the son. William Farnum plays the part of the father. This one requires a second feature for support.

Interesting

"The Seeing Eye" (Treasure Chest-Educational release) is a well-done and interesting 10-minute short sketching in highlight form the workings of the nationally known institution in Morristown, N. J., where dogs are trained to aid and lead the blind.

Alexander Woollcott, some months ago, devoted one of his "Town Crier" talks to the institution over the radio. Now comes the picture to depict in pictorial form for those who can see what is being done for those who cannot. Training of man and animal is shown and the very effective results accruing from both.

Production Code Seal, No. 0835. "G."

"Soldier" Big In Storms at Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—Old Man Winter stepped in this week to knock some potentially high grosses into a cocked hat. The worst snowstorm of the season hit the city Sunday and ruined Sunday business. Wednesday night brought another snow gale.

At that, some strong figures were registered. In its first Aldine week, "Strike Me Pink" knocked off a good $13,000. Nine days of "Professional Soldier" at the Fox rolled up $22,000 and would have hit much higher had it a good second Sunday, while "Magnificent Obsession" got $16,500 at the Boyd and stayed a second week. A surprise hit was the second run engagement of "Bride Comes Home" at the Arcadia, which was beating out "Mutiny on the Bounty" at this house until the weather overtook it. It got $4,800 for nine days.

Total first run business was $90,000. Average is $86,760.

Charge on Passes to Pay Insurance Fund

SEATTLE, Jan. 27.—A five-cent "service charge" is being added on to all passes by Hamrick-Evergreen here. The money thus collected is diverted into a fund which will be used to offset the two per cent state unemployment insurance charge assessed against all employers of labor.

The five-cent charge is in addition to the two-cent state tax on amusement admissions. Even employes of individual Hamrick-Evergreen theatres are taxed the five cents when they attend another house of the same circuit.

St. Louis Case Blows Up; Hardy Requests Dismissal

Assert Phila. Duals Ruling Hits Control

MPTOA Sees New Blow To Self-Regulation

A new obstacle to local self-regulation on trade practices is viewed by the M. P. T. O. A. as having been raised by the recent decision of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia holding the exhibition contract clauses restricting double featuring to be illegal. In the national exhibitor organization's latest bulletin, released yesterday, the decision is characterized as "another legalistic obstacle in the way of constructive plans for self-regulation and self-discipline."

Pointing out that M. P. T. O. A. favors double featuring for any locality where a majority of the exhibitors indorse the policy, the organization's bulletin asserts that if a majority of exhibitors oppose the practice they should be permitted to ban it by majority vote.

"We do not favor the unrestrained and arbitrary control of double featuring by the producers," the bulletin states. "But the Philadelphia decision

MPTOA's Board to Pick Meeting Date

With the arrival here of Ed Kuykendall on Monday, plans will be mapped for the annual meeting of the officers and directors of the M.P.T.-O.A. in late February or early March, probably in Miami.

There will be no convention this year, but one will be held in 1937 in San Francisco, according to current plans.

Fawncy!

Hollywood, Jan. 28.—Believing that exhibitors and picture patrons in England resent the American accent in films, Ashton Dearholt, vice-president in charge of production for Burroughs-Tarzan Pictures, will record a separate sound track for films which his company will release in Great Britain. Actors will not be asked to simulate British pronunciation, but will accent syllables in a manner familiar to British ears.

Mexico's Film Industry Had Biggest Year

By JAMES LOCKHART

Mexico City, Jan. 28.—During the year just passed, Mexico enjoyed the biggest theatre building and opening boom in the 30-year history of the industry here. Ten new houses, four of them first class theatres, were opened and work was started on five others. Films developed a new popularity. The Federal District, including this city, had 63 theatres in operation at the end of the year.

Exhibitors had a more prosperous year than in a long time, at least up to Sept. 27, when the strike of employes of the eight major American distributors here cut off practically the entire supply of better American product. With the settlement of the strike it is expected that the better product from across the bor-

Mexico Is Drafting Cut in Import Duty

Mexico City, Jan. 28.—The Federal Government is drafting a modification of the film import duty regulations, which, it is understood, will be highly favorable to American companies. It is learned the Finance Ministry's action is in connection with the emergency measure adopted during the recent strike, cutting the import duty to $9.72 per kilogram, which expires Jan. 31. It is understood modification of duties is to be effective next week.

Disney Talking New United Artists Deal

United Artists' negotiations for a new distributing deal on Walt Disney productions are proceeding directly with Disney, it was stated officially by the company yesterday. The present distribution agreement with Disney expires in about a month.

Disney's attorney, Gunther Lessing, who is now en route to the coast, did not discuss the new distribution deal with home office executives during his visit, it was stated at U. A.

May Be Precedent

St. Louis, Jan. 28.—This town's legal lights say Federal Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux probably set a precedent when he stopped the big film trial because of a toothache, because a 73-year-old judge with a tooth to ache is rare.

New Pickford-Lasky Finances About Set

Hollywood, Jan. 28.—Final details of the plan for $2,000,000 of additional financing for the Pickford-Lasky Co. will be completed by the end of this week, it was stated today.

The principals in the deal are Guy Carey, the Pickford representative on United Artists board of directors, and Robert W. Goelet, New York real estate man and a director of the Union Pacific Railroad. It is understood that several other California and New York financiers are also interested. The belief here is that Carey will be made a member of the Pickford-Lasky board as well as legal advisor to the company. Goelet is en route for San Francisco tonight and will leave for Manhattan in a couple of days. Carey will remain here to conclude the negotiations.

The company announced that the new financing in no way alters the plans adopted at the time of its formation.

Canadian Theatres Dark to Honor King

Toronto, Jan. 28.—With the proclaiming of a Day of Mourning today, across the Dominion for the burial of King George V., practically all theatres closed for matinee performances. The closing was first announced by Famous Players Canadian Corp., and other proprietors took similar action. It was the first time on record that film theatres had ceased operation to mark a national occasion, although theatres in various centres of the Province of Quebec have followed the custom of remaining closed on Good Friday each year for religious reasons.

In a considerable number of smaller cities and towns, local memorial services were conducted in theatres through the cooperation of exhibitors with civil and military authorities,

Intimates He May Renew Case Later — Court To Act Today

St. Louis, Jan. 28.—The Government's long drawn out litigation against major distributors blew up today.

Russell Hardy, special assistant attorney general, exploded the legal bombshell at the morning session by requesting the court to dismiss the case without prejudice, so that, if he decides to do so, he can file a new suit joining a number of individual officers of Warners, Paramount and RKO as co-defendants.

Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux indicated he might grant the motion, but gave defense counsel until 2 o'clock tomorrow to present their opposition.

In asking the dismissal Hardy said: "After serious and mature consideration of the rulings of the court yesterday I wish to state with the greatest deference and respect to the court that we feel an adequate and complete exposition of the facts in this matter requires that many individual actors

Livingston Opposes Lincoln, Neb., Suit

Lincoln, Neb. Jan. 28.—A separate denial that the cause for action is sufficient has been filed in Federal Court by R. R. Livingston in the State Theatres $444,000 suit against himself, the Lincoln Theatre Corp., J. H. Cooper, Fox, M-G-M, Universal, United Artists, Paramount, RKO and Vitagraph.

Livingston is also defendant with the same companies in a suit for $1,353,000 filed by Independent Theatres. Both actions charge collusion and conspiracy to force the plaintiffs out of business.

Season's Supply

Montreal, Jan. 28.—Deep snow between this city and Clark City, a pulp and paper company town, can't affect the film supply there even though travel will be blocked for four months.

Before cold weather set in 40 features and 80 shorts were shipped in by Royal Films, Ltd.

On Feb. 1 the March of Time celebrates its first anniversary, the first issue having opened at the Capitol on Broadway on February 1, 1935. During the year, the March of Time editors declare, the theatres showing the reel have increased from the original 400 to 4,500, with worldwide distribution now through RKO. The editors are Roy E. Larsen, John S. Martin and Louis de Rochemont.

In all, 10 issues have been released. Special foreign editions are now prepared in French and Spanish and an English edition is made up for countries of the British Empire.

The monthly meeting of the Paramount board, postponed from last Thursday, was held yesterday. Only routine business was transacted, according to Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board. Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

BACKED by little or no fanfare and dismissed airily as a return to normalcy in expansion and progress, the major circuits, almost to a man, are beginning to step out. Theatres are being annexed. Where not acquired, plans are cooking for brand new ones. As a case in point, and only that, there is Wisconsin Amusement Enterprises, arm of National Theatres and so of Twentieth Century-Fox. Harold J. Fitzgerald, the boss in that area, discounts any special objective, although reports had it hovering around one hundred houses. He says whatever growth may come will be governed by appraisals of likely situations and the breaks as they develop. . . .

What he says represents the general comment. Yet, from the grist of the news as it showers upon New York from various quarters of the nation, the conclusion turns more decisive that the move to make major circuits more major is gaining impetus. Conditions are better and about it the chorus of agreement is more and more rising in pronounced crescendo. If the major circuits held on by whatever grit and sacrifice necessary during depression and bankruptcy times, obviously the to-be-expected policy now is to expand. We are reminded and thus remind you, in turn, of comment in this very space several years ago. . . .

You may recall that it was our observation, based on considerable and careful probing of the then directional signs, that the structures built by the bigger companies would undergo no drastic change; that those producers and distributors who had completed the triangle with far-flung theatre holdings would go very far indeed along the road to complete oblivion before they conceded any withdrawal from the exhibition business. True and essential was the necessity for pulling in horns, for retrenching, for rewritten deals with bondholders and landlords, for the elimination of bad leases made in the exciting days when money was plentiful. But early in the bankruptcy era did it become evident that producers who were also exhibitors would continue to be both. . . .

It is merely the fact to observe that this, exactly, has taken place. Now come bolstered spirits, abetted by better box-offices and sturdier financial statements, to do and dare along lines already well marked. With no desire to turn sage, this forum, nevertheless, believes there is substantial merit in dangling a warning finger against too great an enthusiasm and too much overextension. The lessons which, it is to be hoped, were learned from '29, '30 and thereafter were expensively acquired. Or is it necessary to explain in more detail? . . .

The deal which takes Reliance from United Artists to RKO, thereby presumably opening the doors at Radio to outside producers, may not be that at all. Currently, assurance is readily available that there are no similar schemes hatching, although it does not follow other producers will not be added to the ranks. As a matter of fact, others are expected to join up, not as self-contained units but as RKO units swelling an already sizable film-making fraternity. The plan for Reliance, as a matter of reasonable conjecture, fits into this general scheme. For the present, Harry M. Goetz and Eddie Small will maintain their trademark identity. Later and gradually, Reliance, the guess is, will blend with the Radio studio. . . .

The major, meaning Albert Warner, has a neat method of conducting business. He gets a number of calls for this and that. If it's theatres, the caller is shunted to Joe Bernhard. If it's distribution, the petitioner goes to Andy Smith where the east is concerned and to Grad Sears when the problem concerns the west. That leaves Warner in the clear and makes it possible to forsake icebound New York for sunny Miami which is exactly what happened yesterday. . . .

Nate Spingold is back from the coast. Reported in and out of Columbia, the word now is that he may stay. After all that has been said and written. . . .

Dramatists' Guild Pact Comes Up Soon

The contract committee of the Dramatists' Guild will meet early in February with representatives of the League of N. Y. Theatres on proposed changes to be made in the present minimum basic agreement with the managers which expires March 1.

The proposed changes will cover revisions in the procedure on bidding for film rights to plays and are expected to embrace changes in the participation of dramatists and managers in sums received for the picture rights. Under the present agreement the usual participation is 50 per cent to the dramatist and 50 per cent to the manager. Changes in the basic agreement are being sought by the dramatists as a result of the entry of film companies into play production. This development, the dramatists believe, tends to restrict competitive bidding for picture rights and consequently curtails the dramatist's income.

Columbia to Engage In Play Production

Columbia plans to produce plays on Broadway, and has named Richard Aldrich, of Richard Aldrich and Alfred de Liagre, Jr., producers, as play editor and producer. He will serve under William C. Lengel, former associate editor of Liberty Magazine, who was appointed eastern story editor this week. Aldrich will join Columbia following the opening of a new play, "Fresh Fields," scheduled for Feb. 10 at the Empire.

Aldrich will present several plays for Columbia this season, and produce at least one during the spring. His partnership with de Liagre is being terminated. Aldrich served for a time as manager of the Laboratory Theatre for Richard Boleslavsky.

"ROSE MARIE I LOVE YOU!"

—that's what your patrons will be singing and your box-office will be SHOUTING!

BOX-OFFICE SWEETHEARTS! JEANETTE MacDONALD and NELSON EDDY!

There were cheers in the M-G-M Home Office Projection Room at the conclusion of the "Rose Marie" screening this week. We knew from Coast reviews and word-of-mouth that another great M-G-M hit was on the way. We sincerely believe it is even greater than "Naughty Marietta," the triumph that introduced MacDonald-Eddy, the screen's greatest singing sweethearts. And now as "Rose Marie" leaps into the box-office headlines we lift our hats to its stars, its director, W. S. Van Dyke, and its producer, Hunt Stromberg. Together they made "Naughty Marietta." And now they have repeated! And the M-G-M torrent of hits rolls merrily on!

Government's Counsel Asks For Dismissal

in the conspiracy must be made defendants in the case.

"Therefore, I move the court to dismiss this case without prejudice, so that a new suit may be filed joining these individual actors as defendants."

In a series of rulings yesterday Judge Molyneaux eliminated a number of statements attributed to various officers of defendant companies and virtually reduced the conspiracy evidence to the correspondence that had passed in connection with commitments of Warners, of Paramount and of RKO pictures.

Judge Molyneaux is expected to grant the Government's request for a dismissal after court reconvenes tomorrow morning.

Just before adjournment at 2:20 P.M. today, Judge Molyneaux said from the bench: "I am of the opinion that they will have the absolute right to dismiss, but, of course, I will hear you."

Judge Asks Brevity

The court then ordered counsel for both sides to present their arguments tomorrow morning and to make them as brief as possible "because if I do grant the request for dismissal I want to catch the 2 o'clock train back home."

When the court sessions were resumed at 2 o'clock this afternoon Frederick H. Wood of Warner counsel addressed the court as follows: "Your honor, while I have not had the opportunity for conference with other defense attorneys, it would seem from the studies of various authorities that I have made, and which others of my associates have made, that there is no absolute right of dismissal with or without prejudice—and that whether such right shall be granted rests entirely within the discretion of the court."

Wood Requests Recess

At this point Wood requested a recess until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, so that the defense may prepare affidavits to establish the hardships and injustices that may be imposed upon the defendants if the case is dismissed without prejudice.

Defense counsel indicated they had no objection to taking the case out of court, provided that the Government is not permitted to bring new proceedings based upon the same facts and circumstances.

Hardy indicated the Government may institute a new suit against the same defendants. He said that if the present case is refiled under an amended petition it will be brought in this Federal court district, as the venue lies here, since the affected properties are located in St. Louis.

Anticipating that Harry C. Arthur probably was the last Government witness, and that his cross-examination would end today, defense attorneys had wired for numerous out-of-town witnesses, and some were en route here when Hardy filed his surprise motion.

In his argument supporting his motion this morning Hardy admitted none of the cases he cited probably had proceeded as far as this one, but he added he did not believe that could alter the fundamental universal rule that the plaintiff retains the right to dismiss without prejudice, except under extraordinary circumstances, until the very time the court passes on a suit.

He contended that in the absence of many of the important actors in the alleged conspiracy, he felt the Government will not be able, largely for technical reasons, to obtain the relief to which it is entitled "from this oppressive gigantic combination," if it had to proceed with the present case, and that it will deprive the public of its trade free of restraint. He insisted the defense would lose none of its rights if the Government is permitted to withdraw the present suit and bring a new one.

Judge Molyneaux is said to have ruled in another case under somewhat similar circumstances that the dismissal request be granted, and was upheld by the higher courts.

Fox Midwest Spots Will Suspend Gifts

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 28.—The Kansas City district of Fox Midwest has stopped advertising gift stamps, and in April will discontinue giving them with tickets. The houses will put them back in the box-office, however, again in the fall. The idea is, not to wear out their effectiveness as an attendance stimulator.

A variety of gifts has been offered. The stamps were introduced about 18 months ago, and the gifts have been displayed in foyers. On Jan. 1, the circuit discontinued gifts, but made all stamps redeemable in theatre tickets.

Script book tickets at 10 per cent off admission price still are being effered, but are not being heavily promoted in this district. Their use is circuit-wide. Use of stamps is confined to the Kansas City district.

Milwaukee Giveaways by Fox

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 28.—Impetus has been given to giveaways at neighborhood houses here by introduction of grocery nights and Hollywood at practically all Fox neighborhood houses in the city. Almost all of the Fox neighborhood houses are now using some type of giveaway several times a week.

In addition, there are a score of independent houses also featuring giveaways in the form of giftware and glassware nights or charging 10-cent admissions one or two nights a week. No efforts to clamp down on this type of promotion have been made by the local police following a district court verdict in December acquitting Norman Haacke, manager of the Grace, charged with the holding of a "manufacturers' ad show" at the house.

Missouri Expects Court Test

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 28.—Banning of Bank Night by Franklin Miller, circuit attorney, is expected to lead to a test case which will be carried to the Missouri Supreme Court. Promoters of the system say they are anxious for the test, because of their recent victory in the Iowa Supreme Court.

Fred Wehrenberg has discontinued the giveaway at the Cinderella, Melba, Michigan and Virginia, but other houses still using it were visited by the police Saturday night. No arrests were made, however.

Delay Bank Night Case

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—The case of Bank Night vs Buck Nite, which was scheduled to come up before Judge Leon R. Yankwitch in Federal Court here today, has been postponed for one week at the request of Bank Night attorneys. Fay Barnes, president of Buck Nite, is here with his attorneys, G. B. Ross and Judge Bledso, to fight the case.

Commonwealth Expands

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 28.—Commonwealth Amusement Corp. has taken over the Gillioz, Monett, Mo., from L. L. Lewis of the Lewis circuit.

Jack Stevenson, who has been manager, will continue. Lewis will retain an interest in the house.

This gives Commonwealth 23 houses in Kansas, Missouri and Iowa.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Next Time We Love"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28.—Brilliant in its dramatic power to stir the sincerest of human emotions, this is a story of a beautiful love brought face to face with life's sternest realties. Tastefully produced, intelligently acted and directed, the dialogue is the sole interpretive medium. Nevertheless, the gripping quality of the story held the attention of a preview audience in hushed silence throughout.

Following a charming courtship, Margaret Sullavan, student, and James Stewart, reporter, marry. The joy of their honeymoon is shattered when Stewart gets a foreign assignment and Miss Sullavan, under Ray Milland's patronage, embarks on a stage career. A baby is born to them. Stewart quits his job and rushes home. The happiness of the little family is that of all those who have only faith and love while enduring poverty, as Stewart is blacklisted.

Backed by Milland, Miss Sullavan returns to the stage and triumphs. A rift is created as Stewart resents the fact his wife is supporting him. Miss Sullavan's plea to Editor Robert McWade reinstates Stewart. There follow years of separation with both going on to great success in their professions in which there are only occasional happy meetings. Though faith endures, Miss Sullavan finds her love for Stewart is not strong enough to answer Milland's plea for divorce and marriage. Going to Europe to talk it over, Stewart runs away from a planned happy reunion. Following him, Miss Sullavan finds him mortally ill, but love triumphs as she goes with him to keep the pledge of their marriage vow.

Miss Sullavan's, Stewart's and Milland's performances are artistic to the last degree, a quality vividly substantiated by McWade, Florence Roberts, Ann Demetrio and Christian Rub in support.

Based on the novel "Say Goodbye Again," by Ursula Parrott, Melville Baker's screen play is a faithful transcription of the original's sincere, human interest character. Director E. H. Griffith's job is a fine example of understanding craftsmanship. Paul Kohner produced.

Certain to click with women patrons, the show is a valuable asset in any theatre where fine screen merchandise is appreciated.

Production Code Seal No. 1,912. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"The Return of Jimmy Valentine"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28.—This is a worthy sequel to the original Jimmy Valentine story, well produced as average entertainment.

Roger Pryor, a newspaper reporter, conceives the idea of finding the reformed Valentine as a circulation-building scheme. Robert Warwick, as Valentine, is discovered as the president of a small town bank, happily married to Lois Wilson and the father of Charlotte Henry. Pressure is brought on Pryor to let the matter drop, as Warwick's past is unknown to the community and his daughter. Complications are added by J. Carroll Naish, a gunman, who is seeking vengeance for a wrong allegedly done to his father by Warwick.

When Pryor establishes his identity, Naish attempts to make Warwick open the bank vault before taking his revenge. In the safe-opening scene, almost as thrilling as the original, Pryor reaches the alarm at the critical moment, foiling Naish's plans. Later Wade Boteler, Warwick's friend, claims Valentine's identity and all is saved on all sides.

Jack Natteford and Olive Cooper, who fashioned the screen play from the original story by Scott Darling, Wallace Sullivan and Paul Armstrong, Jr., have added comedy to suspense and written in two good characterizations which are well played by Edgar Kennedy and James Burtis. Lewis D. Collins directed and Victor Zobel supervised the production.

The picture should please in all family and neighborhood houses.

Production Code Seal No. 1,924. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

"Woman Trap"

"MUSIC GOES 'ROUND" BIG BOX OFFICE FILMUSICAL BET

Direction, Richman, Cast All Deliver "THE MUSIC GOES 'ROUND"

(Columbia)

Direction ----------Victor Schertzinger
Story ----------Sidney Buchman
Screen Play----------Jo Swerling
Music and Lyrics: Harry Akst, Lew Brown and Victor Schertzinger.
Photography ----------Joe Walker
Supervision ----------Max Winslow
Cast: Harry Richman, Rochelle Hudson, Walter Connolly, Douglass Dumbrille, Etienne Girardot, Lionel Stander, Henry Mollison, Victor Kilian, Wyrley Birch, Dora Early, Walter Kingsford, Peppino and Rhoda, Gene Morgan.

This is the filmusical that, with the addition of new sequences and the services of Edward Farley and Michael Riley, composers of "The Music Goes 'Round and Around," is to become "Music Goes 'Round." As seen in advance of these changes it shapes up as a highly diverting and fast-paced musical [illegible] well up the current scale. Even as it is, it looks like a strong b.o. offering that will hold its own up and down the line.

An important feature [illegible] Harry Richman, who has verve and adroitness and sings well. He is a good picture bet.

The story is a wow for comedy, smooth-running and snappy and its main idea is fresh.

This yarn is neatly interspersed with songs and dance numbers both on the boat and on Broadway. "Roll Along" is the song hit and two others promise success.

Richman's support is a constellation of names and a galaxy of good performances. Rochelle Hudson playing opposite him, does not sing but she is charming, clever and animated. Walter Connolly gives one of his fine character performances as the show's proprietor, and especially helpful portrayals are contributed by Douglass Dumbrille, Etienne Girardot, Lionel Stander and Henry Mollison—altogether an outstanding cast.

Victor Schertzinger's direction is admirable in its handling of broad comedy and the burlesqued dramatics. He deftly keeps things moving every minute. The story of Sidney Buchman is brightly dialogued by Jo Swerling for every laugh there is in it and a hearty romance as well. The music [illegible] lyrics are [illegible] by Harry Akst, Lew Brown and Mr. Schertzinger, who is no mean composer. The picture is handsomely set throughout and in toto a production that reflects credit on Max Winslow and all his people.

Bitter Cold Wrecks Takes In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 28. — Business here last week was just what everybody expected from the coldest spell Pittsburgh has had since 1898. With the thermometer registering around 15 below zero and heavy snow delaying traffic, grosses skidded.

It was the Stanley which felt the blow worst of all. After a start with "I Dream Too Much" and Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels on the stage that threatened to reach record-breaking proportions over the week-end, the storm hit town and dropped takings to almost nothing. Even so, the house managed to do around $17,000, which is remarkable in the face of existing conditions. The Alvin had "Magnificent Obsession" for a second week. It did only $4,000, but the management decided to hold it for an extra five days, figuring that it would get even more than that in the extended session with any kind of break from the elements.

"The Bride Comes Home" couldn't better $7,000 at the Penn, while both double-feature houses also took it on the chin, the Fulton at $3,000 with "Paddy O'Day" and "Whispering Smith Speaks" and the Warner at $3,800 with "The Perfect Gentleman" and "Fang and Claw."

Total first run grosses were $34,800. Average is $45,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Jan. 23:

sinister character, highly reminiscent of Holbrook Blinn's "Bad Man." Motivated by the action, the romance, comedy and melodrama are well balanced.

Set in Mexico, Gertrude Michael, girl flyer, and George Murphy, reporter, are kidnapped by Sidney Blackmer and his mobsters. Stranded in the desert where the party has been led by Akim Tamiroff's minion, Julian Rivero, Blackmer gets the ransom from the girl's father, Samuel Hinds. Planning to kill Miss Michael, Murphy and Tamiroff, Blackmer is shown that such an act would be fatal to him as he would die in the desert. Consenting to split with Tamiroff, Blackmer's gang is led to a hut on the desert's edge which, to the tune of shrieking sirens, proves to be a Mexican calaboose. As the gangsters are turned over to the United States officers, Tamiroff reveals himself as "the best damn G man in all Mexico."

Tamiroff's work pleasantly dominates the show, though realistic performances are given by Blackmer, Ed Brophy and Bradley Page, with the youthful David Haines good in a bit as an amateur radio operator. The romantic contrast is capably handled by Miss Michael and Murphy.

Based on the original story by Charles Brackett, the screen play by Brian Marlow and Eugene Walter, with the direction by Harold Young, concentrates on letting the action and situations tell the story. Harold Hurley produced.

Looking 'Em Over

"Road Gang"

(Warners)

Partaking somewhat of the nature of "I Am a Fugitive," but basically stemming from the activity of the late Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, this picture emerges as active, occasionally exciting, melodrama, with, however, a bit too much of prison farm brutality for the youngsters. The dictator, the unnamed southern state, the implied domination of the forces of law and order, all are of obvious origin. On the whole the film is lively entertainment, with pronounced exploitation possibilities.

Donald Woods writes an expose of the dictator and is offered a Chicago newspaper job. En route north with a friend, after taking leave of his fiancee, Kay Linaker, whose stepfather is connected with the dictator, Woods is arrested for speeding, framed in a local jail break and sentenced to a prison farm with his companion. There brutality is shown in all its phases. Woods is strung up by his hands and, when his companion tries a getaway to help him, the boy is electrocuted on the prison fence. Attempting to smuggle out a story of the prison, through Miss Linaker, Woods is sent to the dreaded prison mines.

When the Chicago managing editor, with Miss Linaker, seeks his release on a court writ, the warden attempts to hold him underground. The prisoners mutiny, hold their guards, find a way out and confront the warden. His records are taken, Woods is cleared, and with the fall of the prison system the distator's regime collapses. Although a grand jurv fails to indict him, he is assassinated and the romance of Woods and Miss Linaker completed.

Production Code Seal No. 1,752. Running time, 61 minutes. "A."

"Blazing Justice"

(Spectrum)

As usual with westerns there is the required quota of fights, shootings and hard riding that make for good juvenile fare. Adults will be entertained too.

The story has Bill Cody whooping it up with the boys in a saloon where he is drawn into a fight when a raiding sheriff is shot down by a rustler who escapes in the melee that follows. Cody subdues the rest of the gang and is given a reward. He starts out on a long desired vacation. An interesting plot weaves its course and he is picked up by Gertrude Messinger, who thinks he killed her father. Back in town he clears himself and has another fight with Gordon Griffith, who again gets away. A trap is set and with much riding, shooting and more fighting the film comes to its finish.

Miss Messenger gives able support, as does the rest of the cast, com-

Tax Reduction Attempted

Mexican producers are making stic efforts to increase their out- : during 1936. The totals for 1935 re about 40 features and 22 shorts, ile it is estimated the 1936 total ll be 60 to 80 features and about shorts.

There is a movement afoot to bring out a reduction in Federal, state and nicipal taxes on the industry, the gument being that films are today exico's most popular amusement l should not be so burdened with es.

Cinematografica Latino Americano, A. (Clasa), most enterprising of exican producers, has just com- ted the largest studio in the Fed- l district. The company is headed Alberto Ricardo Pani, one of the ntry's leading capitalists. It plans features and 24 shorts this year. oduction costs are expected to set Mexican record on Clasa's first a, "Vamonos Con Pancho Villa" Let's Go with Pancho Villa").

"Koenigsmark"

(Capitol Prod. of London)

LONDON, Jan. 15.—An English-language version of the boomed French production. Directed by Maurice Tourneur with Elissa Landi, Pierre Fresnay, John Lodge and Frank Vosper, it is a true version, not a dub. Accent and recording are satisfactory.

Where they like the background of one of those German principalities bordering Ruritania, plenty of uniforms and a melodramatic plot with a princess falling for a simple French civilian and helping him to put it across a murderer-duke, audiences may overlook the extremely slow tempo and weak dialogue. Pictorial values are decidedly good and a real mediaeval chateau makes a fine exterior background for scenes of military pageantry. Some of the court scenes also are photographically excellent.

Pierre Benoit's story turns on the discovery, by the French tutor of a German princeling, that his pupil's father killed his brother, the grand duke, and walled up his body in a tower, as in the original story of Koenigsmark. The Princess Aurore, widow of the grand duke, helps the tutor to search for proof of the crime, but the duke blows up the tower and takes advantage of the outbreak of the war to discredit the princess. She appeals to the Kaiser and the murderer shoots himself.

The greatest weakness here is the extremely slow pace, but this can be remedied to a large extent by cutting; the footage leaves plenty of opportunity for this. Even so, the entertainment values will be those of the Ruritanian melodrama so popular in silent days.

Running time, 100 minutes. "G."

Zero Weather Bumps St. Louis Theatres

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 28.—Sub-zero weather, accompanied by almost six inches of snow, has played havoc with theatres. First runs have been from 30 to 40 per cent off, and on some nights subsequent runs have reported a 75 per cent drop.

Only on such nights as individual houses have Bank Night, or some other giveaway, has business been close to normal

Aside from unfavorable weather, there are many indications that theatre business should be good when the weather improves. General business is decidedly on the upgrade. Retail sales are running ahead of last year. Freight car loadings are running ahead, while motor truck lines report decided gains over the similar period in 1935. Private industries are putting on more workers, although the percentage of gain is rather slight. Other concerns have increased the hours of work for individuals and their payroll volume is up from five to 10 per cent.

Goetz Arrives to Plan Production

M-G-M production plans for England will not be set definitely until Ben Goetz reaches Hollywood. Goetz arrived yesterday on the Ile de France after a stay of six weeks in England, during which time he made a survey of studios and talent. He will leave for the coast the end of this week to confer with Nicholas M. Schenck, Louis B. Mayer and other M-G-M executives. Hugo Bryk, European representative of Ascap, is known as an expert on international copyrights. He stated to a representative of MOTION PICTURE DAILY, "Europe is not concerned with what the Warners do about their music catalogs. European composers are protected for 50 years following death and have no copyright problem to bother them."

Mrs. Roach and daughter will leave for the coast immediately.

Jack Alicoate, who was away four weeks, said he was very glad to be back.

places an obstacle in the way of a distributor who wants to cooperate with the local exhibitors in such matters."

"However," the bulletin comments, "the court's opinion should have no immediate effect on the business. The distributors have almost uniformly declined to attempt to enforce the double feature clauses in their own contracts and such clauses have been generally disregarded in actual practice."

The bulletin notes that the court's decision holds the restriction of double features to be injurious to the interests of independent producers, but "ignores the fact that the spread of double features tends to destroy the market for short subjects. Have the short subjects producers no right to exist?" the bulletin asks.

EQUITY CASE DISMISSED; GOV'T PLANS NEW MOVES

Fight Brewing Upon Laws for Film Matrons

Additional Censorship Also Is Opposed

Violent opposition is predicted for any efforts to force the passage of a new law requiring exhibitors to have matrons for unattended children and to submit to a new form of censorship to be controlled by the city.

Since the recent police raids which have resulted in the arrest of about 300 managers and their staffs statements have been issued by Mayor LaGuardia and others to the effect that this was a move to get rid of an old unpopular law by enforcing it and then introducing a new one in the Legislature.

The new one, it turns out, holds a variety of disturbing possibilities that have stirred exhibitors' ire, as well as protests from the National Board of Review and other workers in behalf of

Three Bills Affect Bay State Theatres

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—Exhibitors are watching three bills now before the Massachusetts House.

One, sponsored by Robert Watson of the Lord's Day Alliance and before the Legal Affairs Committee, would bar Sunday vaudeville until 7 P. M. Programs now open at 1 P. M.

Another, introduced by Millard H. Stevens, and sent to the Committee on Mercantile Affairs, regulates resale of tickets.

The third, favored by Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield, provides for revision and codification of the Boston building laws. This also is before the Committee on Mercantile Affairs.

Hollywood, Jan. 29.—More M-G-M executives are here at one time than probably any other period in the company's history. The group from New York includes Nicholas M. Schenck, J. Robert Rubin, Al Lichtman, Felix F. Feist, E. M. Saunders and Howard Dietz.

Leopold Friedman is in from the east in connection with legal detail involving Loew's State, downtown Los Angeles.

ITOA to Seek Stay On Sales Tax Here

Applications for restraining orders to prevent both local exchanges and the city comptroller's office from collecting the two per cent city sales tax from local exhibitors until such time as the validity of the assessment has been passed upon by the courts will be filed in the Supreme Court of N.Y. county by the I. T. O. A. today, according to Weisman, Quinn, Allen and Spett, attorneys for the exhibitor organization.

Briefs attacking the validity of the sales tax levy on film rentals were submitted to the city comptroller's office early this week by I. T. O. A., Keith-Albee-Orpheum and Allied of New Jersey. The city now has before it the complete testimony of the local United Artists exchange attacking the validity of the city's assessment against its entire film revenue. The United Artists contest is regarded as a test case and will be carried to the appellate court if the city's decision, expected within a few days, is unfavorable to the exchange.

Congress Probe Into Music Costs Hinted

A Congressional investigation of the score charge and of music taxes paid both for recording in film and reproduction in theatres may be undertaken in connection with hearings on the Duffy copyright bill, which was tabled by the Senate late last week when called in the regular course of business, according to Motion Picture Herald.

It was also stated that the House

Defense Suggests Hardy Amend Complaint To Get a Decision, But He Talks of "Great Generic Conspiracy"

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 29.—The equity proceedings of the Government against Warners, Paramount and RKO came to an undecided, but quite abrupt termination at 10:20 A. M. here today, when Judge Joseph West Molyneaux, presiding, sustained the motion of the Government for permission to dismiss the case without prejudice. His action was indicated at yesterday's session, when Russell Hardy, special assistant attorney general, made the motion. The case began Jan. 6.

The dismissal without prejudice leaves the way open for the Government, if it so desires, to bring the same defendant corporations and various of their officials into court on the same issues anywhere that the Government decides it has a right to do so.

The case involved charges of conspiracy to interfere with the movement of interstate commerce in films for use at the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, operated by Fanchon & Marco. But, it is pointed out, that does not necessarily mean that the jurisdiction rests solely with the U. S. District Court here. Since conspiracy is alleged, the litigation may be brought in any place where a part of the alleged conspiracy took place, or even where any of the defendants do business.

While Hardy could not say here today what the next move of the Government will be, latest advices from the Capital indicate quite definitely that a move is already under way to institute another action. Hardy had also been in charge of the prosecution in the criminal action against the three companies and various of their officials, which ended in a jury vedict of not guilty on Nov. 11 last. Hardy and other Government attorneys expected to remain here for several days, and probably will confer with their superiors in Washington before any decision is made.

When court convened at 10 A.M. today, Frederick H. Wood of Warner counsel, on behalf of all the defendants, informed Judge Molyneaux that to meet the issues raised

New Strategy At St. Louis To Be Hurried

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Department of Justice here today planned immediate institution of a new equity action in St. Louis, naming many additional defendants. The planned action is seen as ending rumors that the dismissal of the case today without prejudice, on motion of Russell Hardy, chief Government counsel, was sought as a "graceful out." Department officials called it a technical move designed to overcome difficulties which arose as a result of a series of rulings Monday by Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux barring certain evidence.

Contrary to the situation prevailing at the conclusion of the earlier criminal action, when dissatisfaction was voiced over the attitude of the presiding judge, George H. Moore, there is no criticism of Judge Molyneaux, and it was indicated the new suit will be brought before him. Hardy will remain in St. Louis for a few days to handle the filing of the new case, it was said.

The naming of others as additional defendants is for the purpose of getting before the court by direct evidence the testimony which was barred, it is indicated.

Department officials expressed confidence in the case, and said there is no intention of abandoning any of the Government contentions. No estimate was made as to when the new case would be brought up, but it was indicated every possible step would be taken to expedite it.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Garden Murder Case"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—This is a typical S. S. Van Dine murder mystery given many novel and intricate twists and nicely flavored with romance, comedy and contrasting drama. Edmund Lowe is featured as Philo Vance.

The plot moves quickly and logically, effectively establishing, but, at the same time, concealing clues that might lead to a possible easy solution of a series of killings in which many are suspected. The story blends dialogue, action and situations to build strong suspense. The atmosphere created is one of sophistication.

The unexplainable, seemingly accidental death of Douglas Walton leads to circumstances which result in the murder of Gene Lockhart. As Lowe is investigating the case, the police summon for questioning Benita Hume, with whom Lockhart had been having an affair. Before leaving, accompanied by Virginia Bruce, she talks with H. B. Warner. Later she is killed, apparently accidentally, and Miss Bruce, to whom Lowe has become attached, is arrested and charged with the crime.

Convinced of her innocence, Lowe goes to work to clear her. In the smoothest Vance manner he unearths clues proving that Warner has a hypnotic influence over both Walton and Miss Hume and that this influence caused their deaths. He also proves that Warner's wife, Frieda Inescort, who later was killed by him, had reason to, and did, slay Lockhart. The innocence of Miss Bruce having been established, the stage is set for her romantic fadeout with Lowe.

The players mentioned handle the romantic character of the story very nicely and are ably assisted by Nat Pendleton and Grant Mitchell in the dumb cop comedy parts. Intelligent direction by Edwin L. Marin packs plenty of realism into the Bertram Milhauser screen play.

Production Code Seal No. 1,956. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Itto"

(Eureka Prod.)

This latest French importation is a superior travelogue of Morocco and contains a weak story upon which the direction of Jean Benoit-Levy and Marie Epstein is lost. The film may be acceptable for "little theatre" audiences with its high technical skill and photography which is a treat to the eye.

The story concerns a tragic tribal romance of Itto, a chief's daughter, and Miloud, her lover, whom she marries. Their love is hampered by their parents' differences in regard to hostilities against the French. Miloud is shot by Itto's brother and is saved by the skill of a French medical officer. He is grateful and joins up with them. Events bring him together again with Itto. A baby is born to them. The medical officer and his wife make up another part of the story with their baby. The wife is fed up with Africa and when her baby is ill with diphtheria, Itto comes to the rescue with serum and she becomes reconciled in a manner.

The thread of the story is entangled with the pageantry of life in the Moroccan Atlas and intermingling with a smattering of French colonial propaganda, is quite buried. However, the realism of the native language, the marvelous sound recording and the customs of the people make up in interest what is otherwise lost. It has the knack of taking the audience to the country.

No production code seal. Running time, 90 minutes. "A."

"Pasteur"

(Lenauer International)

This French production, interpreting the highlights of the life of Louis Pasteur, the great French scientist, and appearing almost coincidentally with the American film on the same man, is considerably more the delineation of the character of an individual in a character study, than an active, stirring story of a fight against disease.

The characterization of Pasteur is ably portrayed by Sascha Guitry, with a good supporting cast, but since the film is almost wholly composed of lengthy speeches by Pasteur and comparatively little action or

"King of Burlesque" at the Fox was close to average with $11,350 and was held over for another week. "Riff Raff" and "The Calling of Dan Matthews" at the Poli, dipped $600 under the $7,000 par. The Paramount went under the $4,800 mark by $800 with "Her Master's Voice" and "The Great Impersonation," while the College dropped "The Invisible Ray" and "First a Girl" after six days and a take of $3,600.

Film Upturn Is Predicted In New Haven

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 29.—In general New Haven echoes the national feeling that the film business will definitely show an uptrend in 1936. Exhibitors generally concede an increase in grosses of from 10 per cent to 20 per cent, at the end of 1935.

"We are definitely on the way back so far as New England show business is concerned," states Harry Shaw, division manager for Loew's-Poli New England Theatres, and this optimism, contingent upon the continuation of better product, is voiced also by Dr. J. B. Fishman, Connecticut M. P. T. O. president, and by many other executives in the territory.

B. E. Hoffman, Warner Theatre executive, predicted only a slight improvement for 1936 over 1935, stating that he was more optimistic about business from the first of September through Thanksgiving than since.

George Cruzen, division manager of M. & P. Theatres, termed the outlook "most encouraging." He sees an apparent general uptrend in all business through the Connecticut and Massachusetts valleys, where for years he has "looked at silent factories, which are now turning their wheels with from one to three shifts a day." Mr. Cruzen said, "Our business through December was excellent and this is a period which we always fear. Evidence of the upswing is expressed definitely by the fact that our own grosses are 20 per cent above those for the same period last year, referring both to the past three months and currently."

2,000-Foot Reels For Houses on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—San Francisco fire laws will be revised to permit the use of the 2,000-foot reel, it was agreed upon today by the Board of Supervisors of that city. Laws now in force forbid the use of more than 1,000 feet at a time. Today's meeting was attended by Fire Marshal Frank Kelly and George Ballentine, manager of Twentieth Century-Fox Exchange, and Gordon S. Mitchell, manager of Academy Research Council.

This action, together with similar law revisions in Portland, removes all obstacles to the use of the new reel on the Pacific coast.

dramatic movement, other than that inherent in the man's fight for recognition, it is likely that only those with a knowledge of French will find the picture especially appealing. There are, however, sufficient English subtitle translations to make for ready understanding of the story, and the film is interesting.

Highlighting the picture are Pasteur's defense of his work before the Academy of Medicine, his action in saving the life of a boy bitten by a dog through the use of his hydrophobia serum, and finally the honors which are heaped upon him by the country, in the person of the President of France, in the closing years of the scientist's life.

better films who think more can be accomplished by cooperation with the industry than legal and political bludgeoning from without.

Under the terms of the bill introduced by Assemblyman William T. Andrew, Democrat, of New York City, a matron would be required for each 200 unescorted children under 16. She would have to be certified by the board of health and also be approved by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Censorship in addition to the state regulations already imposed would include appointment of a new censorship commission by the Mayor to decide what films were suitable for children.

Another bill by Assemblyman Breitbart would authorize the state censors to decide whether films are suitable for showing to children.

More bills are in prospect, it is said.

patents committee, to which the Duffy bill has been referred, plans an inquiry into copyrights involving every phase of the film industry.

Executives familiar with legislation affecting the industry, when questioned by MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday, expressed doubt as to the probability of the reported Congressional investigation of the score charge and music taxes. They advanced the opinion that these charges comprised so incidental a part of the objectives of the Duffy bill that they doubted whether a Congressional committee would make them the subject of an investigation.

Short Subjects

"Finer Points"

(Paramount)

Hunting dogs are featured in this "Sportlight" and as they go through their paces they give an entertaining few minutes. The film shows a pack of young dogs flushing quail and other game birds and excellent closeups achieve a fine quality in artistic photography. Of course, there is a human element interwoven and Ted Husing's narrative is fitting in its mixing of the serious with the humorous. Natural surroundings of the Carolinas form a perfect hunting setting. A good sporting, outdoor offering. Production Code Seal No. 0811. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Movie Milestones No. 2"

(Paramount)

The milestones in this effort are "The Ten Commandments," an old Beery-Hatton, "Behind the Front," and "The Way of All Flesh," an Emil Jannings drama. The sound has been dubbed and the narrative aptly covers the history of each episode. The parting of the Red Sea in "Ten Commandments" is again seen and retains its spectacular impact after all these years. The highlights of the others are shown and go to make an historical film study that should entertain. Production Code Seal, No. 0843. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

AT HOTEL ASTOR

. . . . NOTE THE CHANGE

Reopenings in Portland Area Stir New Hope

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 29. — Interviews obtained from representative film men of this trade area, show there is practically a unanimous opinion that business will continue on the upward turn, at least for the first six months of 1936. This optimism is reflected in the modernization of a score of houses, and the opening of several which had been closed for the past few years.

Conservative estimates indicate that business at both the downtown and suburban spots has shown an increase of from 20 to 40 per cent, and it is believed this will continue in 1936. Where last year at this time there were some 13 theatres closed, they have all been reopened and modernized, with a corresponding increase in the equipment business. There are now some 213 theatres operating in this area, which includes Oregon proper, the southern counties of Washington and a few in Northern California. Contracts have been let for another three houses in the outlying sections of Oregon which will be completed during the next three months.

The brightest spot just now is the great Inland Empire adjacent to and including Spokane, having three sources of income, both Ft. Peck and Coulee Dam, the returns from the wheat harvest and the rich mining sections.

Statistics in Ohio Reflect Heavy Gain

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29. — Improved statewide conditions are reflected in the tabulation just released by Samuel Squire, state superintendent of banks, based on reports made by 467 state-supervised institutions in answer to a call as of Dec. 31.

The compilation, prefaced by the statement: "Business generally has emerged from the shadows, and there is every good reason to believe that 1936 will bring still further improvement in economic conditions," the figures show that total resources were $1,305,023,327, an increase of $61,667,547 since the call of Sept. 30, 1935, and an increase of $147,435,861 since the call of September a year ago.

Total deposits at the end of 1935 were $1,139,516,792, an increase of $64,141,001 since September, and a gain of $149,673,192 over September of 1934.

Savings deposits totaled $551,669,181 on Dec. 31, 1935, which is $53,023,384 greater than the final report of 1934.

Equity Case Is Dismissed At St. Louis

by the Government's dismissal motion, the defendants were willing to allow the Government to amend its petition to join as defendants all the individuals who had been defendants in the earlier criminal trial, and to enter an immediate appearance of the additional defendants, "in order that this case may proceed as we think it should."

Hardy had said yesterday that, "in the absence of many of the important actors in the conspiracy the Government feels that it cannot proceed to a final determination of the case in view of the court's ruling of Monday eliminating conversations with some of these alleged conspirators."

Wood Guarantees Appearance

"If the Government thinks others than these persons should be made party defendants, I am authorized to state we will be able to say promptly if it will be possible to enter their appearance. Of course it is for the Government to say whether this offer of ours will be accepted or not."

Wood pointed out the desirability of carrying the case through now, adding that the same defendants had been acquitted in the criminal action on the same issues, and that the equity case had apparently proceeded to a point where the Government was about to rest its case. He contended the naming of additional defendants could not change any material facts in the case, and it was in view of this that the defendants were making their offer to the Government.

Hardy declared he regretted the offer could not be accepted, since it did not meet the situation with which the Government was confronted.

The Government chief attorney thereupon launched into a bitter attack on the defendants, accusing them of being an oppressive combination that was crushing hundreds of small and medium-sized competitors, and that the local situation was "but a small segment of this great generic conspiracy." He charged that even during the hearing on the case they were extending their conspiracy "to every place in which the complaining witnesses do business."

Phillips Scores Hardy

Louis Phillips of Paramount counsel rose and sharply scored Hardy for rejecting Wood's offer, saying:

"Hardy closes this case as he started, by assuming a conspiracy without proving it." He accused Hardy of making "foul and villainous attacks on the defendants in the press. He has been clamoring for his day of justice," said Phillips, "but when the opportunity is afforded him he does not accept it, but continues his attacks."

Judge Molyneaux intervened then to say he would rather counsel would abstain from personal characterizations, adding that he realized it is possible for feelings to enter a case, but that it is possible to control those feelings.

William S. Leisure, of RKO counsel, declared he thought the trial had moved to a point where res adjudicata had been reached and asked for a dismissal of the Government's motion. The court then heard Wood on whether it had discretion to dismiss without prejudice. Wood declared that in view of the circumstances surrounding this case and the criminal action, there were grounds for denial of the motion, although he admitted expense or annoyance to the defense were not sufficient. He pointed out that in every similar case the dismissal was at the cost of the plaintiff, and that since the Government cannot be charged with the cost, the court should consider that point. He said further that the equity could not be completely divorced from the criminal case, which resulted in acquittal. "Despite that acquittal," said Wood, "we have been branded as criminals even today in this very court."

"Plaintiff's Right" Says Judge

Judge Molyneaux declared:

"I am of the opinion, not only from my personal knowledge of the law and previous court decisions, but also from the expressions of counsel in this case, that the court is without discretion. The plaintiff has the absolute right, if he chooses, to dismiss. This is the decision of law, not of this court. The court is only the instrumentality of the law. Therefore, I will sustain the motion to dismiss without prejudice."

After the court and counsel had exchanged the usual compliments, the defense attorneys took the customary legal exceptions to the court's ruling.

Judge Molyneaux returned to Minneapolis at 4 P. M.

Exhibitors to Battle Motors' Film Caravan

Plan Is for 20,000-Mile Tour of Country

Exhibitor leaders yesterday prepared to protest vigorously the free film show caravan which General Motors Corp. plans to start on a 20,000-mile itinerary through the country early in the spring.

The motorized show, dubbed a "science-circus" of 28 motor vehicles by General Motors, will set up a tent accommodating several thousand in each stop on its itinerary. In the language of the motor company, it expects to reach "many millions of people" through the thousands of free shows which it plans to give in almost as many cities and towns. "Continuous motion picture performances from 9 in the morning until 10 at night" are planned, according to a statement from General Motors.

Programs will include dramatic, recorded film narratives featuring Ed-

Enjoins City From Levying 2% Sales Tax

Stay Effective Pending Injunction Hearing

A temporary stay enjoining the city from levying the two per cent sales tax on film rentals and enjoining distributors from collecting it was granted yesterday by Justice R. P. Leyden in the N. Y. Supreme Court to two exhibitor plaintiffs on the petition of Weisman, Quinn, Allen & Spett, attorneys for the I. T. O. A.

The stay is effective pending a hearing to be held Feb. 7 on the plaintiffs' motion for a temporary injunction, pendente lite. It enjoins Frank J. Taylor, city comptroller, from levying the tax against films prior to the hearing and restrains Columbia, Twentieth Century-Fox, M-G-M, Paramount, RKO, United Artists, Universal and Vitagraph from collecting it.

The action applies only to the two

Film lawyers in New York yesterday speculated over whether or not Judge George A. Welsh within his authority as a Federal judge in appointing Benjamin M. Golder special investigator to determine if anti-trust laws had been sufficiently violated in the Philadelphia area to warrant grand jury investigation.

Opinion was mixed and, while no one would submit to a quotation, the majority viewpoint was that he had not.

Double Bill Truce Urged By Laemmle

In an open letter to producers, especially those who own and operate theatres, Carl Laemmle yesterday suggested a truce on the double feature question. The Universal president admitted frankly in this open letter, which will be published as a Straight-from-the-Shoulder-Talk in Universal Weekly dated Feb. 1, that double features hurt Universal just exactly as much as they help.

"I quote a paragraph," says Laemmle, "from Motion Picture Herald."

"The right of an independent exhibitor to show two pictures on a single program without contractual interference from the large destributors was upheld for the second time within a year by a decision of the United

Court Orders New Probe in Philadelphia

Picks Attorney in Dual Feature Litigation

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—Benjamin M. Golder, who represented the independents in the Perelman double feature case, in which the standard contract clause prohibiting dualing was called a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, today was appointed special investigator by Federal Judge George A. Welsh to determine whether there was sufficient evidence of trust law violations on the part of major companies to warrant a grand jury investigation.

Welsh was appointed amicus curiae (friend of the court) to study block booking and other trade practices. Golder will serve without pay and will have no power to subpoena witnesses. On the basis of his unofficial report, Welsh will decide whether a grand jury investigation is warranted.

The action of the court follows a visit yesterday by prominent independent exhibitors, who claimed that evidence of criminal conspiracy was obtainable. Welsh did not agree their evidence was strong enough to warrant an immediate grand jury study and named Golder.

Kansas City ITO Suggests City-Wide Giveaway Ban

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 30.—About three-fourths of the members of the I.T.O. met this week and voted to eliminate all cash giveaways and premiums, providing other independent and circuit theatres in Kansas City, Mo., do likewise.

The vote resulted from an effort on the part of E. Rolsky, president, in the direction of complete giveaway elimination. Most of the independents are agreeable to the move, but agree it will be abortive unless elimination is 100 per cent.

The independents have word from Fox Midwest that Fox houses will go along with such a move, providing it is complete.

Hopes for the success of the movement are not high, as it is expected some of the independents will not go along. Rube Finklestein of the Belmont and William Parsons of the Aladdin have already indicated their unwillingness. Parsons is willing to eliminate cash giveaways but not premiums.

Rolsky will, however, continue his efforts and call a meeting next week to apprise I.T.O. members of the situation.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

LESSON for those modest enough to learn: Editorial and word-of-mouth comment on "The Informer" will swell Radio's domestic distribution gross by $150,000 through repeat and new bookings and swing the picture from red to black in this market. Internationally, there never was any doubt about the final outcome; domestically, there was plenty. You may conclude from this that it is only the rare attraction capable of reviving itself when general distribution had virtually played itself out except in the smaller situations. . . .

That's quite true, but not all the truth. It has long been an idea, not quite so screwy, we think, as some of our others, that the rapidity with which the release schedules of all majors move makes it impossible generally to give proper attention to adequate merchandising. Couple with this the unsound, but again general, practice of theatres at large changing program every seven days because it seems more the custom than anything else and you find a situation against which meritorious product successfully batters its head. There was the case of "Top Hat" which did not make a fourth week at the Music Hall because bookings prevented. And so it gave way for something else, despite a third week which finished somewhere in the neighborhood of $90,000. . . .

It is our opinion that, in lesser degree probably but there to conjure with, the current case of "The Informer" can be duplicated if distributors put in the required effort. The question of whether or not the commercial usefulness of product is entirely exhausted once it passes through the routine machinery of distribution continues to be an open and an argumentative one. The piling up of one release after another to meet what the distributor views, or is told, or has come to imagine, is the demand of his theatre customers admittedly makes the time to ponder further possibilities fleeting and yet we believe the subject rates reflection since it may reflect better grosses. . . .

MEMO TO MR. EDITOR:

Don't miss Harold Lloyd's "The Milky Way." Paramount will have to pass out pills to stop audiences from laughing after every showing.

Some of the women at a projection room showing yesterday were nearly hysterical, and some of the men—well, they were just limp.

There's no art—none of that balancing of pathos and comedy stuff; it's just a mass of gags that break down one's reserve and then trample on it. How they ever got so many of them into one feature only Lloyd and Leo McCarey can tell—and they probably won't.

M. E.

MR. MANAGING EDITOR:

That makes two raves for Harold. First was the Hollywood preview.

Circuit operators and some of the big boys in competitive companies must have seen the Lloyd comedy, or else they've had grapevine information from the coast. They all agree that this is something.

We're tickled. For the sake of the business. For the sake of theatre operators. For the sake of Paramount.

So much has been said and written about Ray and Johnston and Republic, that this ought to be said:

Johnston holds a five year contract with the company.

He had it when the company monicker switched from Monogram.

He has had it since that time.

There has been no change in its status and so none in Johnston's.

This ought to bring loose conversation to an abrupt end. . . .

Ryan Withdraws As E. M. Loew Attorney

BOSTON, Jan. 30.—George S. Ryan has filed in Federal court here his withdrawal as attorney for E. M. Loew in his $5,000,000 anti-trust suit against Paramount and subsidiaries. The litigation started in 1931, with hearings before Elias Field, appointed by the court. An agreement was signed calling for a settlement. It was understood Loew increased his demands several times until at the peak he would have received $200,000.

It is understood Loew's refusal to accept a settlement was behind Ryan's withdrawal. The most recent ruling in the case was by Federal Judge Coxe in New York, who ordered that actual damages should be fixed and reserved the right to decide whether single or triple damages should be assessed.

Cantor Picture Does $59,000 at the Hall

"Strike Me Pink" at the Music Hall garnered $59,000 in its second and final week. For the first seven days, the Eddie Cantor film got $78,000. MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Captain January"

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 30.—Another Shirley Temple vehicle and certain to rank very high in her list of successes. There is expert blending of warm and human drama with real humor, plus Shirley's accomplished singing and dancing. In a manner seldom achieved by a picture, the audience is given everything it looks for in the way of entertainment and the exhibitor offered all that he needs for salesmanship.

The story is treated in sane, sensible fashion, even to the introduction of the specialty interpolations. Its appeal is universal to any audience, anywhere, any time. Using Laura E. Richards' down east classic, the screen play of Sam Hellman, Gladys Lehman and Harry Tugend faithfully retains all the original comedy, drama, sentimentality and thrills in a manner which evokes plenty of laughs and occasional tears. Dave Butler's direction uses dialogue, situations and characters in a manner which preserves all of their fundamental values in transition to the screen.

Among the highlights of the picture are the scene in which Guy Kibbee, as Captain January, rescues Shirley from the sea, the sympathetic and sincere manner in which he shares her training with Slim Summerville and the rest of the fisher folk, the heart-rending situation in which Sarah Haden, truant officer, contrives to take the child from her protectors, the twist of pathos as Shirley's relatives, Nella Walker and George Irving are discovered, the vivid suggestion of tragedy as the waif is separated from Kibbee and Summerville, and the fairy story ending in which she finds them skipper and mate on the yacht which Miss Walker and Irving have provided for her.

Miss Temple's acting, talented as it is, is exceeded by the artistry of her singing and dancing performances. Her rendering of "Early Bird" and "At the Codfish Ball," among other musical numbers, and her spiral staircase dance with Buddy Ebsen, as well as her solo multiplication table tap dance, are features which place the picture among the few best she has done.

Previewed without code seal. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Don't Get Personal"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 30.—A bright, resourceful little story filled with sparkling gags, this newest Sally Eilers-James Dunn comedy is a very good bet for any dual bill location.

College graduates James Dunn and Pinky Tomlin, being broke, resort to the public auction of their talents. Miss Eilers, also flat, bids spiritedly in order to jack up the price for the boys' benefit. She is horrified when she gets them herself with her last five dollars and demands that they drive her home.

The cross-country trek is enlivened by furious squabbling between Dunn and Miss Eilers, songs by Pinky, and a series of really comic mischances culminating with Dunn's kidnaping of Sally at the very altar of her spite marriage. The Dunn-Eilers combination is excellent, as usual. Pinky Tomlin is hitting his stride and makes an engaging comedy foil. George Cleveland and Lillian Harmer, as a farm couple, draw plenty of chuckles and the competent cast is rounded out by Spencer Charters, Doris Lloyd, Charles Coleman and George Meeker. William Nigh directed and Dave Diamond produced. The story, by William Thiele and Edmund Hartman, is slightly implausible but none the less funny. It is helped by a good script, the work of George Waggner, Clarence Marks and Houston Branch. The play angles are those of human auction and the comic adventures of love at first sight—or perhaps "fight."

Renaldo Is Pardoned

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Justice Department said today that Duncan Renaldo, actor accused of making false statements on his passport when he left this country with the "Trader Horn" company, has been pardoned by President Roosevelt. It was indicated, however, that this might not save him from deportation orders based on improperly entering the country originally.

Production Code Seal No. 0801. Running time 21 mins. "G."

"You Can Be Had"

There is fair entertainment in this subject, featuring a group of monkeys and baboons in a takeoff on a Mae West picture. All credit to the producers and Sam Newfield, the director for the smooth performances of the "players." Ray Knight, as a passer of bad checks pursued by a detective, finds his way into a radio station where he changes clothes with a newly arrived announcer and substitutes for him. Some of his comments are amusing as he introduces a group of acts, including Lois Ravel, Mabel Pearl's Chansoneers, the Zeb Carver Troupe, the three Brodell Sisters, Joseph Wilton Harry Ackerman and Marshall Grant. The result is a lively group of turns which should do to fill a spot on most bills. Production Code Seal No. 085 Running time, 19 mins. "G."

Oswald, the animated hero, is entered in the big dog team race, which the walrus is the heavy favorite. Oswald's sole motive power is his dog, Pooch. The difficulties the pair encounter until they finally win by suddenly becoming a rolling and continuously growing snowball make up a cartoon subject of average quality, or a shade better. Double Bill Truce Urged By Laemmle

States Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia late last week in the so-called Perelman case.

"In other words, the court upholds double features.

"Why quarrel about it? Why quibble about it? Why not be decent about it?

"Forget your hatred of certain exhibitor organizations and I mean even such organizations as are headed by men who make a fat living out of stirring up trouble between producers and exhibitors.

"Why not forget greedy men? Why not deal, for a change, with plain principle?

"Practically, you realize that there is no real argument against the use of double features. If fans want them, they are going to get them, no matter what any court says. If fans don't want them, they won't live, still regardless of court decrees.

"What Would You Do"?

"Just pretend that you own only one theatre. Pretend that your opposition gets the very best of the first run pictures. Pretend that you cannot get any of these first runs. In such a case, what would you do? The chances are a million to one that you would jump to double features to save your hide.

"And that would be a pretty smart thing to do.

"Now then, you have tried to lick the independent theatre by gobbling up all the first runs. He licked you with double features. Then you tried to lick him by running double features yourself. In many cases you amazed yourself with excellent results. In others you flopped. Then you tried to get help through the courts and you tried to outlaw double features.

"Why not admit that the other fellow has as much right to live as you have?

"Lick your competitor if you have brains enough, but don't rely on brawn. Play fair. In these days the courts won't stand for anything else. Don't lead with your chin. Be humble. Live and let live. Don't be too darned smart.

"Universal is hurt as much as it is helped by double-featuring; but it still feels that the exhibitor who wants to run double features has a right to do his damndest to exist."

Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Near

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 30.—Feb. 24 has been decided upon as the date of a tribute to Carl Laemmle, Universal resident, on his thirtieth anniversary in the industry. The date is that on which Laemmle opened his White Front Theatre in Chicago.

The feature of the event will be a luncheon on the "Phantom of the Opera" set at the studio, to which 200 executives, stars and present and former employes of Laemmle have been invited. After the luncheon the guests will see special reels from "Show Boat" and "Sutter's Gold" and the first Laemmle film, "Hiawatha," made by the original Imp company.

The present B preferred, it is said, may be converted into a new preferred issue of $4 interest instead of $5, as at present.

I.E.P.A. adherents imply the Department of Justice in Washington is familiar with the development; that it may lend its cooperation and that it may have prompted the action in the first instance.

Exhibitors to Battle Motors' Film Caravan

win C. Hill, commentator for Hearst Metrotone News; Lowell Thomas, commentator for Fox Movietone News; John S. Young and John B. Kennedy, radio commentators, the motor company's announcement says. In addition, there will be a feature length picture which, the company says, "will depict General Motors scientific research achievements," and considerable footage made and developed locally with "hometown crowds" in each city on the itinerary. The company also promises "various thrilling films of the motor world" for its free programs.

Screen on "Theatre" Truck

The motor show caravan will include a specially constructed truck for sound and camera equipment, projection and sound reproduction equipment and developing equipment. A feature of the tour will be the filming and screening of pictures made in each stopover. The silver screen will be dropped from the stage of a specially constructed "theatre" truck within the show tent.

Another truck, leading what the company says will be a "two-mile-long procession," will be equipped with a public address system to broadcast music and announcements. The motorized theatre will spend several days in each city on its itinerary and as much as a week in some.

Exhibitor representatives, acquainted with the G. M. plan, were quick to characterize it as "unfair competition" with every established commercial theatre and made plans at once for organized protestations. The M.P.T.O.A. undoubtedly will take the initiative in the move, representatives of the organization said, recalling how it was successful, last year in having the free shows sponsored by Standard Oil and featuring Guy Lombardo discontinued, and its further work against free entertainment sponsored by Goodrich Rubber Co. and others.

Representatives of Hearst Metrotone and Fox Movietone were unable when questioned yesterday to explain the parts in the "motor circus" to be played by Hill and Thomas. It was their belief, however, that the General Motors material in which the two appear must have been made several years ago as contracts between the newsreels and the commentators specify their exclusive services in short film material.

Comeback to 1929 Is Seen In Pittsburgh

Sunday Films Called an Important Factor

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 31.—In Pittsburgh the film men see for 1936 a prosperity second to none since the boom days of 1929. It's a spirit that's reflected in the theatres, in the executive offices and in the exchanges.

There are at least three reasons for the optimism. The first is the legalization of Sunday films, a factor that theatre men confidently feel will pull them out of the red for the first time in several years. So far, the seven-day week has meant little, but with managers introducing more showmanship in their Sunday ideas, and with the public getting used to the idea, Sundays are expected to be important.

They point to the good years when there didn't appear to be the remotest possibility that Pittsburgh would get Sunday pictures. Even without Sunday, some executives have said, 1936 would show a profit.

The second reason is the pickup in industry. At Christmas a dozen firms

John J. Friedl, operating executive of the Minnesota Amusement Co., Paramount theatre subsidiary in the Northwest, arrived in New York from Minneapolis yesterday to confer generally on the program of expansion announced by his company recently.

Blow to Film Music Seen In Pending Copyright Bill

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Hearings on the new copyright legislation will be held during the coming month by the copyright sub-committee of the House Patents Committee, it was indicated here today. A stiff copyright measure is expected to be introduced by Representative Daly of Pennsylvania, who, it is believed, will head the sub-committee. While this bill deals chiefly with copyright problems involved in broadcasting, it also affects the film industry in that it differentiates between the right to produce and the right to exhibit. This opens the possibility of royalty demands from exhibitors. Further, the bill provides copyright protection for the performer and specifically authorizes the copyrighting of interpretations.

Newsreel producers would be affected by the bill, which provides that even the innocent or incidental inclusion of copyrighted music shall be considered an infringement.

In the penalty provisions of the measure the $250 minimum is retained, but no injunction clauses are included.

Hearings on Federal Licensing Scheduled

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Federal licensing of all corporations engaged in interstate commerce will be considered at hearings to be held during February by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on a bill introduced last year by Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming. This bill calls for the creation of a national corporation system controlling interstate commerce and providing for the issuance of charters and licenses, the protection of labor and collective bargaining, hour and wage restrictions and prohibition against child labor. While the bill would give the Government full control over corporations, its proponents maintain that it would end bureaucracy and "confine the Government to its proper sphere."

Bank Night Battling Widens in Bay State

BOSTON, Jan. 31.—The Bank Night battlefront is widening in this state. The giveaway has just been banned in Lowell, Reading and Stoneham. It is already out of Boston and Medford, while appeals are pending from Superior Court convictions on a lottery charge in these municipalities.

In an infringement suit brought by Bank Night against Parlay Cash Night here the judge told both sides neither had any standing in court, but reconsidered when Attorney George S. Ryan told the court that participants did not have to buy theatre tickets to win.

"Whipsaw" Is Weak Capitol Attraction

"Whipsaw" at the Capitol tallied a mild gross of $25,400. "King of Burlesque" at the Center garnered approximately $18,000 in its second week, a nice take. The Rialto with "Dangerous Waters" ended in the neighborhood of $7,000, while the Palace with a dual feature program consisting of "Captain Blood" and "Freshman Love" took in about $8,500. Cold weather and slippery streets were a drawback to Broadway box-offices.

"Ceiling Zero" in its second week at the Strand held to a $28,000 take. The second stanza of "The Ghost Goes West" at the Rivoli ended with around $20,000.

It is understood Spingold was given a new contract to run one year.

Majors Avoid Quiz Fight in Philadelphia

Question Court's Move, But Take No Action

Major company attorneys indicated yesterday that despite their belief that Federal Judge George A. Welsh of Philadelphia may have exceeded his authority in designating Benjaman A. Golder a special investigator to determine whether there is sufficient evidence of anti-trust law violations in the use of exhibition contract clauses designed to restrict double featuring to warrant a grand jury investigation, no action to contest the appointment of Golder will be taken.

Golder was attorney for the exhibitor plaintiffs in the Perelman case which resulted in a decision by Judge Welsh holding the clauses to be illegal. The decision was upheld recently by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia, but an application for leave to reargue the case will be made by the defendant distributors in the near future. If it is

Pizor Says MPTO Will Aid

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31.—Lewer Pizor, president of the M.P.T.O. o Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware, today voiced a spirit of cooperation regarding any investigation into alleged unfair trade practices on the part of major companies.

"Any inquiry which is for the best interests of everyone is to be welcomed. We never have and never will cooperate with any movement which are instituted for selfish reasons," Pizor said. "We believe Federal Judge Welsh is sincere in his efforts to get at the truth of any charges. While conditions are no perfect here or anywhere else, we have always found that most film men are reasonable and are ready to work out their problems through an arbitration method. Any sincere effort being made to help the industry will naturally help our members. Any impartial investigator will find us ready to cooperate."

voted sizable bonuses to their employes. In some cases pay cuts were restored. Steel orders have been growing, the beer can demand has placed at least two important local firms back on their feet and other allied factories have shown similar signs of new life.

The third reason is the increase in available WPA money here. For some time differences have existed over relief money between the city authorities and the state and Federal, but these have been straightened out and several millions have been made available for the unemployed. Theatremen feel that some of this money will go to entertainment.

There are several other purely local indices of a boom in 1936. There is some theatre construction under way again, and architects and builders claim they haven't had any inquiries along these lines for years. Another optimistic sign is the ease with which test price lifts have been made in certain territories.

This would seem to indicate that 1936 will find some scale-tilting in the downtown sector, particularly since downtown Pittsburgh has the lowest first-run price in the country. Then, too, double features aren't so prevalent, another healthy sign, and houses that have been dark for years are set for reopening.

gross income for the year was estimated at $89,146,147, compared with $78,756,994 the previous year. Net income for 1935, before interest, depreciation, amortization of patents and Federal income taxes, totaled $10,254,267, compared with $9,490,455 in 1934.

Kennedy Plan Approved

A plan of financial reorganization for RCA proposed by Joseph P. Kennedy, former SEC head and film executive, was approved yesterday by the RCA board and will be submitted to a meeting of stockholders for ratification in the near future.

The plan provides for the calling of the entire issue of 495,597 preferred A shares at $55 per share, plus accrued dividends, and the conversion of 767,275 shares of preferred B into new preferred and common. The cash requirements of the plan are estimated to be approximately $27,000,000. While RCA has sufficient cash on hand to meet this outlay it would borrow $10,000,000 at 2½ per cent, payable within five years, in order to maintain a comfortable cash balance, the Kennedy plan proposes.

The conversion of the B shares involves an exchange of 1 1/5 shares of new $3.50 cumulative first preferred, entitled to dividends from April 1, 1936, and callable at $100 par and one share of common, for each share of the present B stock.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Desire"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—For half its length this Lubitsch production is a laugh-packed comedy full of bubbling gayety. It is lively fun as the glamorous Miss Dietrich ludicrously outwits Ernest Cossart, merchant, and Alan Mowbray, doctor, to steal a string of pearls.

It's funnier when she makes a sap out of romantically inclined Gary Cooper, to smuggle her loot across the French-Spanish border. It's still funnier when she and her confederate, John Halliday, work a fake magic trick on Cooper to recover the swag. In the midsection when Miss Dietrich falls in love with Cooper, it seethes to torrid sex.

The quality is vividly evident in the dialogue, action and situation when both succumb to the spell of moonlight and isolation in an idyllic mountain retreat. From sex it turns to ponderous drama as Miss Dietrich, breaking with Halliday and her fence, Zeffie Tilbury, decides to go straight and make a full confession to the now wise Cooper. It turns funny again in the climax when Cooper outsmarts the desperate Halliday. Cossart gets his pearls back and, by an illusion, Miss Dietrich is cleared of the crime charges to go to America as Cooper's bride.

Miss Dietrich and Cooper are expertly comic when the story calls for them to be so and expertly sexy when the yarn demands it. The Cossart-Mowbray sequence is a howl of laughs. Halliday is determinedly suave. Practically all of Zeffie Tilbury's work is irrelevant. Akim Tamiroff and William Frawley have bits.

Based on a story by Hans Szekely and R. A. Stemmle, the Edwin Justus Mayer-Waldemar Young-Samuel Hoffenstien screen play mingles the qualities mentioned. Frank Borzage's direction concentrates on fun, sex and drama in turn.

Production Code Seal No. 1,831. Running time, in present shape, 95 minutes. "A."

"Love on a Bet"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—This romantic farce, loaded with situation and dialogue laughs, rates as splendid family entertainment. Smoothly acted by a cast headed by Gene Raymond, Wendy Barrie and Helen Broderick, the picture will serve to increase the prestige of these players.

Raymond bets his uncle, William Collier, Sr., that he can leave New York clad only in his underwear and arrive in Los Angeles 10 days later with a new suit, a sweetheart and $100 in cash. After this premise is planted the action picks up rapidly as the adventures of the cross country trek begin. Raymond first meets Miss Barrie motoring with her aunt, Miss Broderick. Suspense is added when the travelers encounter Eddie Gribbon and Morgan Wallace, escaped convicts. One by one the conditions of the wager are fulfilled, but as Raymond is also racing time there is no letdown until the final surprise twist when a decision by Miss Barrie indicates that both Raymond and Collier are winners.

Credit for the picture's excellence can be shared with the cast by P. J. Wolfson and Philip Epstein, who adapted the original story by Kenneth Earl, and Leigh Jason, whose direction drew every laugh from the script. Lee Marcus also rates praise for the topnotch production, while Robert De Grasse can take bows for the good photography.

The picture should be sure-fire in all but de luxe houses.

Production Code Seal No. 1,864. Running time, 79 minutes. "G."

Golder Takes Data Along on Southern Trip

Philadelphian Is Already Busy on Trust Probe

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—Benjamin M. Golder is taking to Florida a mass of data which he will submit to study and from which he will draw conclusions as to whether or not, in his opinion, there are grounds for anti-trust action against major distributors.

Announced as a vacation solely, MOTION PICTURE DAILY learns this is the plan of the attorney who was appointed amicus curiae (friend of the court) by Federal Judge George A. Welsh on Thursday to determine if anti-trust laws had been sufficiently violated in this area to warrant a grand jury investigation.

The origin of the court's action continues to be clouded in doubt. One angle insists the Independent Exhibitors' Protective Ass'n. which on Friday voted to drop its old name for the Independent M. P. T. O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware is not behind the move. It appears to be definite that Judge Welsh made the Golder appointment following the submission by a group of independent exhibitors of correspondence from various major exchanges. Whether or not those unnamed exhibitors are members or sympathizers with the aims of the I. E. A. is not conclusively known.

The two-month total was somewhat lower than the high marks chalked up during the first few months of the code administration's work.

Since July 15, 1934, 1,102 features and 705 shorts have been okayed for distribution.

The titles and releasing companies for films passed during the two months are as follows:

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—Completion of a deal whereby Twentieth Century-Fox will purchase from Chase National Bank the stock in National Theatres has been delayed until a suit by T. L. Tally and Cobar Corp. to have the bankruptcy of Fox West Coast set aside is disposed of by the Federal Court.

Hearing on the Tally-Cobar action is slated before Judge Fee of Portland on Feb. 6.

Before F. W. C. went into bankruptcy, Fox Film owned the controlling stock. As the largest outstanding creditor, Chase National assumed control when the bankruptcy proceedings were cleared by the Federal Court.

Appeal Allowed on Lotteries Decision

Leave to file an appeal with the Court of Appeals from a decision of the Appellate Division of the Brooklyn Supreme Court in connection with lotteries was granted Weisman, Quinn, Allen & Spett on Saturday by Chief Judge Crane.

The case which is being appealed has to do with a Farmer Miller game at the Winthrop, Brooklyn. On Jan. 20, the Appellate Division of the Brooklyn Supreme Court held that prizes awarded as the result of spinning a wheel in a theatre are in violation of the lottery law.

No date for the Albany hearing has been set.

Motor Caravan Effects To Guide Action

A thorough study of the film and stage program to be offered by the General Motors "science-circus" without an admission charge during a 20,000-mile tour of the country will be made by Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, on his arrival here on Thursday, it was learned over the week-end.

National exhibitor representatives are already investigating the free show project with a view to protesting to its sponsors in the event it is revealed to be unfair competition with established theatres. Indications are, however, that organized exhibitor action will be held in abeyance until the effects of the free performances on theatre attendance have been observed.

The motor caravan opens with its first free tent show Feb. 17, in Miami. The 28-car unit, carrying complete facilities for making and exhibiting sound pictures, left Detroit late last week and was in Nashville over the week-end. It is booked for one, three and four-day stands in more than 20 Florida cities following its Miami opening. From Florida it will work northward through Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia on the first five months of its itinerary, which will bring it to Washington on June 15. The balance of the itinerary has not been completed yet, but will probably call for continuation of the show through the east.

Wilmington Theatres Fight New City Code

WILMINGTON, Feb. 2. — Theatre men are putting up a stiff battle against proposed new building regulations now before the City Council for second reading. Some of the independents claim they wouldn't be able to stay in business.

One of the drastic features of the new code is that seats shall not be less than 20 inches wide. Several theatres have seats measuring 17, 18 and 19 inches. Under the proposed code every aisle shall lead to an exit door, or to a cross aisle, an aisle running parallel with the seat rows and leading to an exit door.

New fireproof curtains would be required with a rigid framework of steel, covered with asbestos on both sides and in no case with a thickness of less than four inches. Rewinding of film would have to be done in a room separate from the projection booth and film storage vaults could not communicate with the booth.

The new code would effect new theatres and theatres rebuilding or remodeling.

by the President that he will propose any "new" taxes, but he has stressed that funds must be raised to finance both the new farm program and the bonus payment. The former, it is expected, will be dealt with by seeking reimposition of the processing taxes; the latter is up in the air.

Any move to impose new taxes will be strongly fought by powerful interests in Congress, particularly by members of the House, who will seek reelection next fall.

At the same time, the President's distinction between new taxes and "substitute" taxes is seen as an effort to take the tax question out of the coming campaign. In view of the anxiety of the Administration not to have taxes made an issue, it is anticipated no move will be made which would disturb the present tax structure of the film industry.

New England, central and middle west during the summer and fall and heading southwestward about Oct. 15.

The show was planned by the G. M. home office advertising department, which is being assisted by the Arthur Kudner advertising agency. General Motors states that the film program, except for pictures of local residents to be made in each stand, is solely commercial and scientific. It includes a two-reel Audio subject with narration by Edwin C. Hill of Hearst Metrotone, Lowell Thomas of Fox Movietone, John B. Kennedy and John S. Young, radio commentators.

Revamping of Film Center Is Aimed At

A reorganization of Film Center, Inc., lessee of the building which houses most of the local film exchanges, is being sought by bondholders under the New York state reorganization laws, following the institution of foreclosure proceedings by Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., trustee under a first mortgage on the property.

The Film Center is in arrears on a semi-annual interest payment, due last Oct. 1, on the $1,900,000 first mortgage. On the due date two per cent of the Oct. 1 installment was paid. Semi-annual interest on the first mortgage is six per cent. A plan of reorganization sponsored by the bondholders will be submitted in the near future to Referee David L. Weil, who was appointed for that purpose by State Supreme Court Justice Church on Saturday.

Cleveland Battles New Bank Night Ban

CLEVELAND, Feb. 2.—Theatre owners using Bank Night will fight the recent order of Police Prosecutor Perry A. Frey to end its operation. William E. Minshall of the law firm of Minshall and Mozier, who successfully defended Bank Night in a previous court action seeking a permanent injunction to stop it, will again oppose the charges of lottery.

Twenty-seven theatre owners and managers will appear before Police Prosecutor Frey today.

Officials of East Cleveland and Lakewood, suburban sections, state they will take no action against Bank Night unless it is ruled a lottery by the courts.

Skouras Seeks Majestic

George Skouras is understood to be negotiating for the Majestic, Jersey City, closed last week after an unsuccessful venture by Elias Mayer and Lou Katzman.

The proposed deal with the owners of the property calls for keeping the theatre dark to protect Skouras' Capitol.

Kansas City Uptown Drops Double Bills

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 27.—After double billing three months—from Oct. 25 to Jan. 25—the first run Fox Uptown has returned to single bills and has reduced admissions from 25c-40c. to a straight 25c.

A trial of the new policy will determine its permanency.

The policy is not expected to have any effect on other first runs. The Uptown is viewed as non-competitive with downtown first runs because of the distance between their locations.

With the announcement of the 25-cent single bill policy, the Uptown introduced a free dancing school for children under direction of a dancing master. Though free, a "registration fee" will be required—purchase of a $5 book of admissions, good any time but only at the Uptown. The 12 lessons in any sort of dancing will cover three months, at the end of which time a recital will be given on the Uptown stage, and the classes will change.

Fox Midwest has used the idea in other spots and is now using it at the Granada, Kansas City, Kan.

Duals at K. C. Apollo

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 2.—The Fox Apollo, special run house, introduced double bills for the first time this week with "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo" and "Little America," two pictures doubled on first run some weeks ago at the Fox Uptown.

This may indicate what other Fox houses will do with pictures that have played double at the Uptown during the past three months, although the Plaza is singling "Littlest Rebel," a double at the first run theatre. Other exhibitors are expected to double except in the case of outstanding hits.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—M-G-M has acquired screen rights to "The Unguarded Hour," a play by Bernard Merrivale. Loretta Young, who has a commitment for one picture, will play the leading role. Horace Jackson and Howard Emmett Rogers are now working on the screen play. Sam Wood will direct under the supervision of Lawrence Weingarten.

To Film "Suicide Club"

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—M-G-M will make a screen version of the "Suicide Club" stories by Robert Louis Stevenson. Rosalind Russell, recently signed to a new term contract will play the feminine lead, and Robert Montgomery will play opposite. Louis D. Lighton will produce.

Pick Grace Moore Title

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—Columbia has definitely set "The King Steps Out" as the title for the new Grace Moore picture. It was known while in work as "Cissy." Josef von Sternberg directed.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Voice of Bugle Ann"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—This film is exceptional in many ways, not the least of which is the opportunity to bring to the theatre the large number who seldom patronize films, by playing up the remarkable shots of hunting dogs.

Lionel Barrymore is a backwoods Minnesota farmer, whose chief diversion is the raising of a pack of hunters. His love is lavished on one dog in particular because she has a voice which earns her the title, Bugle Ann. Dudley Digges, a sour and spiteful neighbor, puts up a woven wire fence around his sheep pastures over the reasonable protests of neighbors who fear their dogs may be strangled when hot in chase of foxes at night. Digges not only insists upon erecting the fence but threatens to kill any dog seen on his property. Things come to a showdown when a faint yip of pain is heard from Digges' farm and Bugle Ann disappears. In a grim group the neighbors demand an explanation. In the following quarrel Barrymore shoots Digges and, although 71 years old, is sentenced to serve 20 years.

The value of this film lies not so much in the story as in the appealing characters and the convincing portrait of rural sportsmanship. Barrymore will have a large appeal for dog lovers in the heavily accented portrayal which will linger in the memory. Maureen O'Sullivan and Eric Linden are excellent as the young lovers parted by the feud, but joined in an unexpected climax.

Telling and sympathetic direction by Richard Thorpe gives Spring Byington, Charles Grapewin, Henry Wadsworth, William Newell, James Macklin, Jonathan Hale and Frederick Burton opportunities to shine brightly in the acting of the supporting parts. The screenplay by Harvey Gates and Samuel Hoffenstein, from the book by Mackinlay Kantor, has a number of thin spots, but is none the less interesting in its character drawing. The photography by Ernest Haller is exceptional. John Considine produced.

Play up the angle of an old man's unwavering love for the greatest dog of his pack, the remarkable hunting scenes and the early portrait of sport loving farmers.

Production Code Seal No. 1,988. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Here Comes Trouble"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—With a capable cast and an interesting story of international jewel thieves, this production should please in the subsequent runs for which it is aimed.

The action is concentrated aboard a liner plying between New York and Havana. Rival crooks, one pair consisting of Halliwell Hobbes and Mona Barrie, the other of Andrew Tombes and Edward Brophy, are after a gem carried by Gregory Ratoff. Paul Kelly, the ship's engineer, becomes involved in the plot when Miss Barrie uses him to carry the stone, stolen from the ship's safe, through the customs. At the finish, Sammy Cohen, Kelly' buddy, leads the rescuers to the crooks' hangout in time to save all the situations. Interwoven in the main theme are counterplots which carry the story into the stokeroom of the ship, include a near boiler explosion and other elements which are nicely woven in by the clever direction of Lewis Seiler. The love plot is also well handled by Arline Judge playing opposite Kelly.

In the supporting cast Ernie Alexander gives a standard performance of the inevitable drunk and Granville Bates does well as a ship captain.

The screenplay is by Robert Ellis, Helen Logan and Barry Trivers from John Bright's and Robert Trasker's original. The production by John Stone reflects intelligent preparation.

There is enough action probably to recompense for the shortage of marquee names.

Production Code Seal No. 1,910. Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

Para.-Skouras Close Deal

After weeks of negotiations Paramount late last week signed a two-year product deal with the Skouras circuit. The arrangement calls for 100 per cent of the distributor's output for the balance of the current and all of next season.

This is the second two-year deal closed by Paramount in this territory within the past few weeks. The first was the Century circuit. The reason for the two-year pacts is due to the Loew franchise which has another year to run after the current season. The two circuits follow Loew.

Neil F. Agnew and Milt Kusell acted for Paramount and E. L. Alperson represented Skouras in the latest deal. The only independent circuit which has not purchased Paramount this season in the local area is Prudential. No negotiations have been started as yet.

Expect More Delay On RKO Allowances

Further postponement of the Federal court hearing of the RKO trustee's exceptions to the allowance of the Rockefeller Center claim against RKO at $8,207,000 was granted on Saturday by Judge William Bondy. The hearing, which was scheduled to be held tomorrow, was postponed to Feb. 18.

Indications are that additional postponements will be sought by both Irving Trust Co., trustee of RKO and Rockefeller Center, pending efforts to work out a compromise or settlement of the claim either in part or in its entirety. The settlement negotiations are reported being held in abeyance until a plan of reorganization for RKO, now in only the formative stages, is further advanced.

Topping Previous Highs 20 Percent

New York.—"Magnificent Obsession" is doing the biggest business throughout the country of any Universal picture in four years.

The film has played two weeks or is in a second week in these cities: St. Louis, Los Angeles (two houses), Richmond (two houses), Chicago, San Francisco, Minneapolis, Boston, Washington, Cleveland, Kansas City, Salt Lake City, Hartford, Indianapolis, Detroit, Baltimore, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Louisville, Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Toledo and St. Paul.

In Minneapolis the picture registered nearly four times the business of "Imitation of Life," previous high grosser. In Houston, Grand Rapids, Cleveland, Seattle, Syracuse and Rochester, "Obsession" did better in three days than "Imitation of Life" or "Diamond Jim" did in a week.

New Exchange Union Strikes at Republic

the A. F. of L., which was recently organized in this territory.

Questioned about the walkout Saturday, Gluckman explained that he was called on the phone at his home by Bob Murray, president of the union, at 11:45 Friday night and advised the strike would be called unless he (Gluckman) immediately came to his office and signed a contract.

Gluckman refused, he said.

The local Republic exchange head said he could not understand why he was the target of the union, since this is the first open move on its part. Gluckman denied he had ever refused to recognize the union.

Strike Halts Greenwich Work

Construction on the new Greenwich in Greenwich Village was abruptly halted last week when unions affiliated with the A. F. of L. walked out. The house, scheduled to open on Lincoln's Birthday, will not be ready for several weeks, as a result.

Although Ben Knoble, who is erecting the theatre, is not at odds with the building trades' group, the root of the trouble is said to be his refusal to sign a contract with Local 306. Delegates from the operators' local are understood to have insisted on the contract before the house opens.

Local 306 is affiliated with the I.A.T.S.E., a unit of the A. F. of L.

The company's suggestions will be considered at a Commission meeting on Wednesday.

City Sales Tax Is Applied to All Contracts

Exchanges Preparing to Contest the Ruling

The city comptroller's office yesterday made known its formal decision holding local film rentals to be subject to the city's two per cent sales tax, including even the rentals derived from theatres located outside the city or state if serviced by the local exchanges.

The decision related only to the assessment which had been made against the United Artists exchange, which, however, is recognized as a test case and was opposed at formal hearings before representatives of the city comptroller's office. The exchange, through United Artists' attorneys, O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, will take an appeal from the decision to the appellate division of the state court. The city's decision was not unexpected and the United Artists' attorneys are prepared to move today

Sound Suit Motions Off Until March 12

Preliminary motions in the recovery actions brought against A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi by a score of local theatre operating companies and sound equipment manufacturers which were scheduled for hearing in Federal court here yesterday were postponed to March 13.

The actions allege that provisions of the Erpi contracts made it necessary for the theatre operators to pay more for replacements and servicing of their sound equipment than was necessary and seek recovery of the alleged surplus charges. The bulk of the exhibitor plaintiffs are represented by Weisman, Quinn, Allen and Spett, which is also counsel to the I.T.O.A.

Loew Erpi Pact Calls for $100,000 Yearly Minimum

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The contract which Loew's, Inc., parent company of M-G-M, has with Erpi, runs for 15 years and calls for a minimum royalty of $100,000 a year, it was revealed here today when Loew's filed with the SEC a registration statement in connection with a debenture issue.

The contract with Erpi, the first agreement for the use of sound to be made public by the SEC, provides for charges of $500 per 1,000-foot reel or fraction thereof of the negative production of features, with a provision that the charge shall apply to all reels in excess of 5,000 feet only if the additional footage exceeds 200. On newsreels a charge of $100 per 1,000 feet is provided. The charge is to apply whether all or part is made with sound. On master records made independent of specified pictures a charge of $500 for each 10 minutes of playing time is made.

The contract also provides that Loew cannot make sound records for radio, although it may broadcast sound from pictures which it makes. It also prohibits the company from producing sound for other companies unless licensed by Erpi and in the case of licensed companies, it may not produce more than five features or 12 shorts a year.

A supplement to the contract carries a schedule of the charges for sound on pictures for foreign distribution, as follows: United Kingdom and Ireland, $100 per reel; Canada, $75; Australasia, $62.50; Germany, $50; Central Europe, $35: France and Belgium, $25; South America, $40; Scandinavia and Denmark, $20; China, Japan and Italy, $15; Spain and Portugal, $12.50; South Africa and Holland, $10; Cuba, Mexico, India and Indo-China, Turkey, Egypt and Asia Minor, $7.50.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Six executives of Loew's, Inc., and M-G-M who share in the profits of the company received nearly $2,000,000 during the fiscal year ended Aug. 31 last, it was revealed today in a regisitration filed with SEC to cover the issuance Feb. 15 of $15,000,000 in 3½ per cent sinking fund debentures to fall due Feb. 15, 1946.

The six are Nicholas M. Schenck, president; Louis B. Mayer, vice-president; Irving Thalberg, in charge of production; J. Robert Rubin, vice-president; David Bernstein, vice-president, and Arthur M. Loew, also a vice-president.

The Loew statement called for a filing fee of $1,485, and requiring two large valumes, carried copies of a large number of financial statements required under the law and of contracts with various organizations.

Accompanying the statement were copies of option contracts with Mayer, Rubin and Thalberg, under which Thalberg is to purchase up to 100,000 shares of unissued common and Mayer and Rubin up to 50,000 shares each. The three options may be exercised between Dec. 31, 1934, and March 1, 1935; Dec. 31, 1936, and March 1, 1937, and Dec. 31, 1938, and March 1, 1939.

During the first of these three periods Thalberg was entitled to 27,780 and the others to 13,890 shares at $30 per share. During the recent period they may take similar amounts at $35 and during the final period Thalberg may take 44,440 shares and Mayer and Rubin 22,220 shares at $40. As an alternative, if they do not take the stock in this manner they may obtain it between March 1, 1935, and March 1, 1937, at $35

Trade Plans Shifted By Passing of King

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The death of King George V led to considerable revision of trade plans in England. Apart from the fact that all theatres were closed the days of the death and funeral, arrangements for trade screenings and first nights were considerably modified.

General Film Distributors postponed trade shows of three films and a Carlton reception to signalize the first "Cecil" production.

The council meeting of the K.R.S. was put back a week.

The inaugural meeting of the C.E.A. London Luncheon Club was deferred.

An issue of £1,000,000 debentures by Associated British Pictures was held up and the Sound City (Films) Ltd., issued of 130,000 six per cent participating preferred £1 shares and 135,000 5:0 ordinaries was delayed to Feb. 4.

An official statement was issued that King Edward VIII desired as little interference as possible with normal business and formal restrictions on trade activities ended on the day of the funeral.

New Roumanian Tax Rate Now Effective

He also reports that a total of 86 pictures were imported into Roumania in 1935, compared with 948 in 1934 and 647 in 1933. Of the 1935 total, 360 were features, 350 shorts and 150 newsreels. The feature totals for 1934 and 1933 were 340 and 331, respectively.

Loew-M-G-M Heads' Profit Is 2 Million

per share, or between March 1, 1937, and March 1, 1939, at $40. If any of the three quits Loew's before Dec, 31, 1938, the option is canceled. A similar option contract was made with Bernstein, calling for 50 shares on the same terms. All the options were entered into Dec. 15, 1932.

Under other contracts, Mayer receives $2,500 weekly, Thalberg $4,000 and Rubin $1,000. In addition, the three are to divide 20 per cent of the first $2,500,000 and 15 per cent of any excess of net profit after the deduction of dividends on preferred stock and $2 per share for common dividends with a guarantee of $500,000 a year. The contract was written April 7, 1924, and runs to Dec. 31, 1938.

Bernstein's contract calls for $2,000 a week, plus 1½ per cent of the net after dividend deductions; the agreement to be terminated only by death or permanent disability. Arthur M. Loew's contract, running from Dec. 1, 1935, to Sept. 1, 1945, provides he is to act as general manager at $3,500 weekly plus five per cent of the profit from foreign operators in excess of $3,640,000.

Salaries Itemized

A schedule of salaries and other compensation to officers for the fiscal year to Aug. 31 last reveals that Schenck received $265,173, which included expenses and 2½ per cent of the profits after dividend deductions; Bernstein, $182,711; Arthur Loew, $182,170; David L. Loew, $74,766; Leopold Friedman, $53,342; Isadore Frick, $31,694; Rubin, $93,888. In addition, Rubin, Mayer and Thalberg received $1,013,058 under their profit-sharing contracts.

The company reported that it employed 184 actors, writers, directors and others not officers of the company, whose salaries during the year totaled $11,303,773. The statement also said that a number of suits are pending and that approximately $30,000,000 in damages is asked in anti-trust suits which have been brought. The liability under these suits, however, it was said, will be negligible.

A statement of the Loew corporate setup shows the company has 58 wholly owned and 23 partly owned subsidiaries. These in turn have 26 subsidiaries. The schedule shows that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer owns Metro-Goldwyn Pictures, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures Corp., Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corp., Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corp., Forty-Fifth and Broadway Corp., Robbins Music Corp., Moredall Realty Corp., and the Culver Export Corp. Culver in turn has 50 domestic and foreign subsidiaries. The company operates 105 wholly owned, 15 partly owned and 37 affiliated theatres. Seventy-three of its houses are in the Metropolitan district of New York and 17 are in other countries.

The company is providing for sinking fun additions of $500,000 a year to be applied to the purchase of old debentures, the amount to be increased up to $1,000,000 by the addition of one-half of the dividends on common in excess of $3 per share.

Dillon, Read & Co. are to be the principal underwriters for the new debentures, which are to be offered the public at not more than 99 per cent of par, but no commitments have been made as to who will take the debentures. That information, together with commissions to be paid and other data, is to be filed later.

The company reported that the proceeds from the new issue will be used as follows: $8,171,812 to retire on April 1 next the balance of 7,972,500 outstanding 15-year six per cent gold debentures due in 1941; $3,564,824 to reimburse the treasury for the retirement of Metro-Goldwyn Pictures' seven per cent cumulative stock; $1,860,420 to reimburse for the retirement of New Broad Co. first mortgage and $270,300 to reimburse for retirement of Loew's St. Louis Realty and Amusement Corp. six per cent notes.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Amateur Gentleman"

(Criterion-United Artists)

LONDON, Jan. 20.—This is the first feature of Criterion Film Prod., Ltd., the Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.-Marcel Hellman company. Fairbanks co-stars with Elissa Landi and specially featured is Gordon Harker, low-comedy specialist loaned by Gaumont British. Thornton Freeland directed and Jeffery Farnol's novel was adapted by Clemence Dane and Sergei Nolbandov, with dialogue by the former.

A costume drama, of the Regency period in England, it has good story values and plenty of dramatic action. Backgrounds are varied and picturesque. Fist fights, coaching scenes and court scenes of ball and pageant provide color and contrast.

The story deals with an innkeeper wrongfully condemned to death for theft from guests. His son, posing as a rich young "buck" with the aid of money borrowed from the inn hostler, breaks into society in London, discovers the real thief in a fortune-hunting nobleman, falls in love with the girl, who has agreed to a marriage of convenience with the adventurer, schemes his father's escape and neatly exposes the criminal after a helter-skelter coach chase back to the inn.

Outstanding incidents are a fight in which the hero, as an unknown amateur, knocks out a professional and an effective scene of his escape from police officers by forcing them to pose with him in a tableau before the Regent, whose presence allows him to escape. Grim flashes of a public hanging and scenes of Newgate in the days of the treadmill are incidentals helping to create realistic atmosphere.

Trimmed 10 per cent from its present 9,000 feet, this will offer definite entertainment values for American audiences.

Running time, 100 minutes. "G."

WCAU, Philadelphia, on Jan. 25, Warners assert.

The action was brought by Wattenberg & Wattenberg, attorneys for the Warner music companies, and will be followed by the filing of individual suits in the jurisdiction of each infringing station. Short Subjects

"Idol of Millions"

(Noel Pictures)

The "idol of millions," we are given to understand, is Jack Dempsey, once of the ring and today chiefly of the restaurant business, and this subject is, according to a foreword, offered in memory of the late master promotor, Tex Rickard. It was compiled by Lon Britton, and the narration is supplied by Thornton Fisher, sports writer and cartoonist. As he tells stories to his small "son," there are reproduced the original screen records of the battles of Dempsey, ranging all the way from 1919, and Jesse Willard to 1927, and Gene Tunney, and including en route Tom Gibbons, Georges Carpentier, Firpo and Jack Sharkey. The famous "long count" of the first Tunney bout as seen by the camera is little short of startling, and the whole subject is a rather interesting highlight review of the fistic career of Dempsey. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 20 minutes. "G."

Warners Ask Details In Suit Over Title

An application for a bill of particulars in connection with a suit brought by Mary Esmond McFadden, executrix of the estate of Edward Esmond, against Warners and First National, was filed yesterday in Federal Court by counsel for the defendants.

The complaint calling for the payment of $15,000 damages sets forth that on Feb. 7, 1934, the estate of Barry Connors transferred and sold a play entitled "Girl Trouble" to Edward Esmond and that in 1934 the defendants produced a picture called "Girl Trouble" in violation of the plaintiff's rights. The complaint also charged unfair competition.

The answer of the defendants was a general denial of the allegations.

Houston Men Oppose Use of Bank Nights

HOUSTON, Feb. 3.—Protests against Bank Nights at downtown theatres were lodged with the City Council last week by independent owners and operators of suburban theatres here. They charged the Bank Nights are lotteries and therefore illegal in Texas, and that their operation constitutes unfair competition for the small suburban theatre.

Mayor Holcombe said he would "see what other cities" are doing before replying. Bank Nights are operated in many larger cities of Texas. Recently Brenham in East Texas and El Paso on the extreme west, stopped the practice.

Houston independents at the meeting were Sam Kirscheimer, owner of the North Side Terrace; Robert Wygant, Heights Theatre; L. E. Newton, the Blue Bonnet; F. D. Wilke, Boulevard, and O. B. Bridges, Midway.

The Kirby has one Bank Night per week downtown, and Will Horwitz's Uptown, a new subsequent run, has drawings two nights per week.

Postpone Hearing On Sunday Film Arrests

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Harry J. Friedman and Joseph Goldberg, managing the Academy and Cameo here, were released today for hearing next Monday, following their arrest yesterday on a charge of opening their theatres one week before a new Sunday opening ordinance became effective. Friedman had said he understood the ordinance, passed last Monday, was effective with passage, but city officials contended it is not effective until Feb. 9.

Friedman also has obtained a show cause order against ordinances regulating operators and creating a license board for operators. He has accused Mayor James Tweed, business agent for the operators' union, of discrimination against three local non-union houses.

This was the order of Circuit Judge Otto H. Bredenbach when Evans complained he has been refused possession of the building by the brothers. Evans purchased the structure at a sheriff's sale following foreclosure of a mortgage.

To Reopen in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 3.—Remodeled at a cost of more than $25,000, the old Harris Theatre will be reopened Feb. 7 by George Jaffe as a combined vaudeville and picture house. Jaffe, who operated burlesque houses here for a score of years, has taken a three-year lease on the spot and has renamed it the Casino.

The Latest

Lincoln, Feb. 3.—The latest idea here is Bank Night absentee insurance, which for 10 cents each bank night insures a registrant against losing in case of inability to attend the theatre. It was developed by Abe and Louis Slusky, park operators. It is used in Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Missouri.

"Ceiling" Big In Cleveland; Gets $14,000

CLEVELAND, Feb. 3.—Continued bitter cold weather hurt business. "Ceiling Zero" was the big new attraction of the week, grossing $14,000 at Warners' Hippodrome, which was $6,000 above par.

"Magnificent Obsession," playing its second week downtown at the Allen following a first week at Warners' Hippodrome, more than doubled the usual take, going to $6,500, as against a $3,000 average.

"Strike Me Pink" beat the Loew State average of $12,000 by $2,500 and moved over to Loew's Stillman for a continued run.

"Charlie Chan's Secret" at the RKO Palace, with Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" as the stage attraction, got by with an average $15,000.

A legitimate performance of "Personal Appearance" at the Hanna offered only mild competition.

Wilmington Awaits Extension of Gain

WILMINGTON, Feb. 3.—Wilmington experienced its steadiest improvement since 1929, with substantial increases in basic indices each month over the corresponding month of the previous year, the Chamber of Commerce reports. Officials take the view that recovery has developed a momentum which should carry 1936 through to real prosperity in 1937. Continued and greatly accelerated industrial expansion and more vigorous activity in home building are among the prospects foreseen.

Since last spring, there has been a marked increase in inquiries received from manufacturers in other parts of the country investigating the possibilities of Wilmington as a site for plants, and it is predicted that some of the inquiries will materialize during the year.

Circuit and independent theatres throughout the state and eastern Maryland predict 1936 will be a banner year for the industry. Loew's point out that pictures lined up for 1936 will bring a big year for the box-office. Warners and the independents throughout the peninsula reported an increase in 1935 over the previous year and look for a greater show season in 1936.

Bank Night and Jack Pot Night are still going strong in down-state theatres, but have not yet made their appearance in Wilmington. Double features continue to aid the box-office in down-state theatres.

Film, theatre, amusement and radio charters for 1935 at Dover showed an increase over the previous year. Charters rescinded during the past year for failure to pay taxes numbered 119 as compared with 138 the previous year. Certificates of dissolution issued to theatre and film companies showed a large decrease.

City Sales Tax on All Contracts to obtain a writ of certiorari for the appeal.

The comptroller's decision held that the assessment of $21,188 against the exchange's receipts for a period from Dec., 1934, to May, 1935, was valid and must be paid by the exchange. The assessment applied to all revenues of the exchange except those obtained from Government sources. On this basis it is estimated that the tax, when applied to all local exchanges, would approximate between $900,000 and $1,000,000 annually. Exchanges have already served notice that they will pass the tax on to exhibitors if its validity is upheld by the courts.

The I. T. O. A. last week obtained a restraining order prohibiting the city from levying the tax and exchanges from collecting it until a hearing on an application for a temporary injunction against the city and exchanges has been held. This hearing is scheduled for Friday.

Erpi Talking New Deal for Loew's Sound

Reductions To Be Made, It Is Understood

A new recording license agreement will be entered into between Erpi and M-G-M in the near future and will incorporate reduced rates for the domestic recording of dubbed versions, foreign versions and trailers, such as have been made available by Erpi already to Warners and Paramount.

This was learned yesterday following the publication of the basic provisions of the present contract which Loew's, Inc., parent company of M-G-M, has with Erpi. The existing 15-year pact, expiring in 1945, was the first agreement for the use of sound to be made public by the SEC. It had been filed with that agency at Washington in connection with Loew's registration covering the issuance, Feb. 15, of $15,000,000 of new sinking fund debentures.

The new contract with Loew's has been in negotiation for the past year

Hoffman to Set Up His Own Exchanges

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—M. H. Hoffman has completed the minimum of six pictures called for in his contract and has severed connections with Republic.

It is understood here that under the new setup Republic franchise holders have to get home office approval before they can take on the distribution of any independent product. This, it is said, gives Republic practical control over independent distribution in a number of territories.

Hoffman plans to set up his own exchanges to handle a complete program which he intends to produce. While working out the details of his plans he is making his headquarters at the RKO Pathe lot.

David Loew Quits Roach; Joined Oct. 1

No Explanation Given; Departs Feb. 8

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—David L. Loew has resigned as vice-president of Hal Roach Studios, effective Feb. 8.

It is understood Loew has been awaiting action on his request for release from a three-year contract for several days. Neither Roach nor Loew would comment on the reason for the withdrawal. Loew stated, however, that he expected to make California his permanent home and would continue in the industry.

Speculation here points to the possibility that he will affiliate with the M-G-M studio.

Loew's connection with Roach was dramatic in its brevity. He resigned as vice-president of Loew's, Inc., on Oct. 1. At the time it was stated that plans for a heavy expansion of Roach production were under way and that the studios would be greatly enlarged after the first of the year.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

COMES The Pilot, a Catholic paper, it so happens, published in Boston, with editorial commendation for "The Story of Louis Pasteur." Praise for such an interesting and emphatically worthwhile effort rests pleasantly with the Warners, as naturally it would. But this department's current interest in the matter has to do with the last two paragraphs which have this to say for themselves:

Will the picture "succeed"? There is a general feeling that the motion picture industry has cooperated honestly with the purposes proposed by the Legion of Decency, and that productions such as this are an effort to provide honest, truly high-class entertainment. That effort certainly deserves generous public support.

This story of a thrilling scientific achievement has all the elements of authentic drama. It is presented by actors of genius, and lavishly. It is the kind of thing for which the vast majority of our people had waited. This picture, and others like it, present to the public a chance to prove their sincerity. Do we want real art, or the tawdry frivolities which once infested out theatres? A great industry waits for our answer.

Does the public want "real art or the tawdry frivolities which once infested our theatres?" The unfortunate answer, backed by too many proofs in the past, appears to be that generally it does not. That fastens attention, again as many times before, on the great difficulty which constantly confronts Hollywood in this year, as in all years gone by. The inisistence of the Legion of Decency, principally, that producers go in for less of the tinsel and more of the worthwhile is directly responsible for the better things which are being shipped out of the coast these days. Nobody has been more surprised than the men who make pictures at the success which has crowned such outstanding efforts as "David Copperfield." . . .

Yet that has not been quite enough. While the public response to the higher level in production, taken by and large, makes it decidedly worthwhile to continue the effort, the gains to be achieved and the virgin ground to be covered, are formidable by comparison with that which have been chalked up so far. The rapidity of any new steps will be clocked in direct ratio to the support extended by the public. Producers, as a group, need make no apologies for their endeavors. Years before the present excitement over the transfer of classics from page to screen there were occasional films such as "Peter Pan" and "Broken Blossoms." There would have been others coming along at more frequent intervals if theatregoers had hoisted a solitary directional sign in the breeze. . . .

The willingness of the public now to accept and to pay for that which it would not in an earlier day, at the same time, is one of the most hopeful signs for the future that this commentator knows. It is probably a waste of your time and our space to blindly hope for more of the same thing but without suggesting a method by which this might be hastened. And yet, although the method may be lacking, the fervency of the wish does not become less dimmed. We're told keeping the fingers crossed and hoping like hell sometimes brings results. . . .

Dave Loew's resignation from his Roach vice-presidency comes as no particular surprise. From what is known of that situation, Henry Ginsberg's withdrawal several weeks ago was far more dramatic. The latter's friends, which means a lot of people, are singularly lacking in dope on the inside. Our friend, the little bird, whispers to us the break came when Ginsberg, who has been sharing in the Roach profits, failed to agree—in fact, it was all sharp and to the point—with Roach on the type of features which the comedy producer planned for next season. Loew joined Roach largely at Ginsberg's behest. With Ginsberg out, the rest is plausible enough. . . .

A heart-warming, human and understandably emotional quality runs through "Next Time We Love." Its principal performers—Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart, of whom much should be heard one of these minutes, and Ray Milland—under the able direction of Edward H. Griffith—deliver quiet and able characterizations which are one of the highlights of what we regard as a generally superior attraction. So far garnering less mention than he deserves is Robert McWade, who essays the role of the managing editor of a metropolitan daily and thereby emphasizes the point, frequently overlooked in Hollywood, that a man can be a newspaperman and a human being for all that. . . .

Fitelson Settling Detail of New Unit

Final plans for the formation of a new producing organization backed by American and British capital were discussed here yesterday following the return from the coast of William Fitelson, New York film attorney representing the plan's backers.

While in Hollywood Fitelson discussed with established producers the possibilities of their making one or two pictures a year outside of their regular contract schedules for the new organization. Such participating producers would own 50 per cent of the new company, which would sponsor a list of six to 12 features annually, budgeted at from $200,000 to $250,000 each. Distribution would be by a major company.

The eastern arrangements may be completed today, in which event additional details on the new organization's plans can be disclosed, Fitelson said.

Schines Discussing New Paramount Deal

Indicating an early trend in negotiating for 1936-37 product, Louis Schine and George Lynch of the Schine circuit today will meet with Milton Kusell, New York State district manager for Paramount, to discuss terms for next season's output.

The circuit heads feel the weather now is much more comfortable for arguing rentals now than it is in the warm months.

Meyer Schine, who usually sits in on film deals, has gone to Miami and will probably return after preliminary details have been set.

Kusell recently signed two-year deals with Century, Loew's and Skouras which include next season's output of 70 features and 100 single reel shorts. Whether the Schine agreement will run for a year or longer will be determined later.

and when completed will incorporate the basic rate provisions granted to Warners and Paramount. These rates will also be made available to other Erpi licensees as rapidly as negotiations can be concluded. These include Columbia, Universal, United Artists, Twentieth Century-Fox and Educational.

The new rates were first incorporated in the agreements with Warners concluded late in 1934 following upon the adjustment of the long disputed claim controversy between that company and Erpi. They were next made a part of new domestic recording license agreements executed with Paramount a year ago in conjunction with the compromise and settlement of Erpi's $1,800,000 claim against Paramount under the latter's bankruptcy proceedings, as published in MOTION PICTURE DAILY of Feb. 4, 1935. The negotiations with M-G-M were begun shortly thereafter and are now in their final stages.

U. A. Pays $21,188 Tax

United Artists yesterday paid to the city $21,188, representing the assessment for the two per cent city sales tax on the company's local exchange revenue for the period from Dec. 28, 1934, to May 31, 1935. The city comptroller's office ruled on Monday that the assessment was valid and should be paid, despite testimony presented by the exchange at two hearings to show that film rentals are not subject to a sales tax.

A motion for a writ of certiorari to bring an appeal of the city's ruling before the appellate division of the state court is in preparation and may be filed within a day or two. It was necessary to pay the tax in advance of the filing of the appeal motion. The city's assessment against United Artists, recognized as a test case by local exchanges, applied to all rentals except those from government agencies.

THE CREAM OF COMEDY!

"There's no top milk in 'The Milky Way'. It is pure cream of the comedy crop, traveling at a fast pace through a series of hilarious situations. The best Harold Lloyd picture to date, it will stand one hundred per cent behind the Paramount slogan, 'It's the Best Show in Town'."

"The picture emerges on the screen as one of the funniest comedies since the advent of talkers. It should prove a money picture everywhere. Writing trio have taken a good play, made it near perfect screen fare. Everyone connected with the picture has contributed to its success. Picture can live up to most anything zealous press agents will say."

SEASON'S ACE ATTRACTION!

"With uproarious comedy and to the tune of a thousand laughs, Harold Lloyd returns to the front rank of screen funmakers. Farce and hokum, moving with speed and holding a sock in every sequence, the film is a credit to everyone connected with it and should prove one of the season's ace attractions."

LAUGHS TWO A MINUTE!

"Harold Lloyd's new one is a gag-bejeweled farce of the prize ring. It registers a laugh-count of about two a minute for its entire length and that is something of a record, even for Lloyd. So there should be nothing but smiles at the box office wherever it goes."

Big Insurance Fund Ordered Distributed

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 4.—Exhibitors, distributors, and allied tradesmen of Missouri are interested in a Federal district court decree handed down here.

The decree ordered distribution of approximately $10,000,000 in fire, windstorm, and hail insurance premiums impounded between June, 1930, and November, 1935. Twenty per cent of this amount goes to policyholders of the state, plus a fifth of the earnings of the impounded fund.

Insurance companies asked 16 2/3 per cent rate increase in 1930, which was refused. They secured an injunction against the insurance commissioner, and since then the rate increase has been collected by the companies, but has been impounded under court jurisdiction. Most of the companies—137 of the larger ones—took their case to the Federal court. More than 70 of the smaller companies went into the state court. It is the Federal court case that was finally wound up here Saturday. The state court cases probably will be settled soon.

Last May R. Emmett O'Malley, present insurance superintendent, and the insurance companies reached a compromise settlement plan. It is this plan, with a few minor changes, which has been made effective.

Fox Sales Sessions Are Set for Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—About 35 home office executives and district and division managers of Twentieth Century-Fox will convene here for two days starting Feb. 22 for the annual mid-winter sales pow-wow.

The sessions will be held at the Congress with John D. Clark, general sales manager, presiding. He returned to New York yesterday from a Miami vacation.

Discussion of next season's program is expected to be left to the annual sales convention. The two-day meetings here will principally concern current sales progress. S. R. Kent is not scheduled to attend.

Kent Returns Next Week

Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, is due from the coast next week, following which he will go to Boca Grande, Fla., for a vacation.

Kent will sail for London the latter part of April to confer with Walter J. Hutchinson, recently appointed foreign sales head.

Jersey Allied Will Meet Twice a Month

Two meetings a month, instead of four, one to be held at the unit's headquarters at the Lincoln here and a second in a New Jersey city is the new plan of Allied of New Jersey.

No meeting was held yesterday, the schedule for the month of February not having been completed. The last session was at Camden on Jan. 28 when the southern New Jersey group discussed topics pertinent to exhibitors in that sector of the state.

Lee Newbury, president, is on a vacation. It is expected a meeting schedule for the month will be set following the return of Sidney E. Samuelson from Washington, where he is attending a two-day Allied directors' conclave.

Hearing Set Today Upon Alien Talent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The House Immigration Committee tomorrow will hold a hearing on the resolution introduced last month by Representative Dickstein of New York to place alien actors and musicians under the contract labor provisions of the Immigration Law.

The measure would bar such aliens unless they secure the consent of the Secretary of Labor for their admission prior to embarkation, unless of distinguished merit. Where actors or musicians are permitted to enter, the number admitted from any country will depend upon the number of American professionals admitted to that country.

The hearing was called at such a late hour that it is not expected that any representatives of the industry from the west coast can reach Washington in time.

Meeting to Be Held By Academy Council

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—Academy Research Council subcommittee on studio theatre coordination will meet here tonight under the chairmanship of Franklin Hanson for further discussion on the compilation of questionnaires received from theatre managers and projectionists as a result of the survey conducted by the committee some months ago. An effort will be made to better theatre technical conditions and to promote closer coordination between house managers, projectionists and studio technicians.

More Details Asked In Suit at Lincoln

LINCOLN, Feb. 4.—Further details on the amended bill of complaint of the State Theatre and Independent Theatres in the $444,000 and $1,353,000 conspiracy and restraint of trade suits against U. A., Universal, M-G-M, RKO, Vitagraph, Paramount and Twentieth Century-Fox are being sought by the defendants.

Attorneys for the majors want the amended petitions made more specific on whether the plaintiff is alleging renewed conspiracies or additional conspiracies.

Kuykendall to Talk At the Ampa Lunch

Ed Kuykendall, president of the M.P.T.O.A., and Charles L. O'Reilly, head of the New York Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce, will be the principal speakers at the Ampa meeting to be held tomorrow at the Astor. Pete Woodhull, past president of M.P.T.O.A., will act as m.c.

The program, intended for instructors in arts and crafts, social science, manual training and English literature will be spotted with various film cartoons, their technique, educational value and other items of interest to those attending.

Must Walk a Block

Vancouver, Feb. 4.—The boys here will have to walk an extra block for their beer. The campaign of the Capitol, Orpheum, Globe and Maple Leaf theatres against issuance of a beer license to the Palms Hotel which is in the same block with the theatres, resulted in W. F. Kennedy, B. C. liquor commissioner, vetoing the Palms' application.

Church and prohibitionist interests were also prominent in the campaign. As a result, Kennedy announces that no new beer licenses will be issued in Vancouver this year.

Vote Against Sales, Income Tax Repeal

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 4.—The Governor's tax conference here yesterday voted against repeal of the sales and income taxes, which will come up on the November ballot. The film industry has proposed that a gross transactions tax be substituted for the other two levies, if they are repealed. Farmers and small business men are opposed to the gross transaction tax, which was presented by Byron C. Hanna of the M. P. Producers' Ass'n.

The farmers declared the substitute would make repeal of the others possible, but said a tax strike would result. Small business saw harm in the proposed levy through pyramiding, but appeared satisfied with Hanna's answer that it could be avoided by proper definition of the processes through which goods pass. Bud Lollier of FWC is a member of the resolutions committee which will decide on the gross transactions tax.

Exchange Workers Talk Strike Moves

Members of the Film Exchange Employes Union held a closed meeting at the Times Square Hotel last night to discuss the Republic strike called last Saturday.

The reason for picking Republic as the first exchange for a walkout unless a contract was signed recognizing the union is said to be a 100 per cent union membership in this company's film department. However, Republic, which is financed by Herbert J. Yates, called in an emergency crew from Consolidated Film Laboratories to handle both the day and night shifts.

Two pickets continue to parade in front of the Film Center in which the Republic exchange is located.

Pearl Option Taken Up

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—Dick Pearl today had his option exercised for an additional year as general manager of Talisman Studios. John F. Meehan has been added to Pearl's department. New projection and sound equipment is to be installed.

Fairbanks, Sr., on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—Douglas Fairbanks arrived here today by plane for conferences on his forthcoming "Marco Polo."

Warner Music 9.34% In '34, Ascap Says

Warner music publishing companies owned 448 of 4,799 musical works copyrighted during 1934, Ascap reported yesterday on the basis of an analysis made by it of the printed catalogues issued by the Register of Copyrights and the Annual Copyright Index for that year. The Warner copyright entries for 1934 represented 9.34 per cent of the total, Ascap said.

Of the total number of musical works registered 1,432 were unpublished.

Harms Sues CBS and WABC

Harms, Inc., Warner music subsidiary, yesterday filed suit in Federal court against Columbia Broadcasting System and Station WABC of the radio chain, seeking total damages of $895,000 for alleged unauthorized use of Rudolph Friml's "Chansonette." It is claimed the number was broadcast from 89 stations of the network on Jan. 18, and Jan. 23.

This is the 24th suit filed by Warner music companies against networks and individual stations, and brings the total of damages asked to $1,750,000. The Harms suit, filed by Wattenberg & Wattenberg, seeks damages of $5,000 for each of the 179 individual alleged infringements. Damages of $890,000 are asked of CBS for the use of the song by 88 stations, and $5,000 from WABC. An accounting of profits also is asked.

Van Beuren Well Along

Over 80 per cent of Van Beuren's 1935-36 product will be completed and ready for distribution on April 1, the company states. Fifty-two one-reelers will be released by Radio and the current groups of the "World on Parade," "Sports With Bill Corum" and the "Struggle to Live" series will be finished on the date mentioned. Six new "Dumb-Bell Letters" are at the exchanges for the season. Work remains to be done on the "Easy Aces" and "Rainbow Parade" line.

Celler Hits Bill to Bar Alien Actors

Says It Would Restrict Film Production

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Dickstein resolution, which is aimed to bar alien actors from this country unless they are of "exceptional merit and ability," was sharply attacked today by Representative Celler of New York, who declared that the measure would "hamstring" the theatrical industry.

Appearing before the House Immigration Committee, Celler asserted that "passage of the bill would greatly impede not only the motion picture but also the little that remains of the spoken drama." Entering into argument with Representatives Cramer of California and Dirksen of Illinois, who claimed that England bars American artists, Celler insisted that such was not the case. He further asserted that Equity is not pressing for adoption of the measure. Dickstein at this

The chief excitement on Broadway last night centered outside and inside the Rivoli where "Modern Times," the first Chaplin feature in five years, had its premiere.

By J. M. JERAULD

Some openings are different. Last night's start of Charlie Chaplin's "Modern Times" was one of these. The streets were too slippery for the mounted police to get out, and the walking cops couldn't get toe holds to push the crowds back.

As a result, Broadway's restless throngs jostled Commissioner Valentine's shouting minions hither and yon and got closer views of New York's notables than they have had in years.

That short 30 or 40 feet from the center of Broadway to the Rivoli's doors was an adventure for some of Park Avenue's ermine-clad women and high-hatted men. Some made it by elbowing; some dashed through narrow lanes opened by the police. Marcel waves became wind-blown bobs in no time at all.

Somebody started a shout when Edward G. Robinson emerged from a limousine. The crowd closed in on him. He came up for air amid a mass of press photographers. Everybody seemed to know Adolph

Kuykendall Here On MPTOA Board Plans

Final plans for the annual meeting of the M.P.T.O.A. board of directors at Miami, about March 12, will be set by Ed Kuykendall, president, while here from his Columbus, Miss., home. Kuykendall arrived yesterday for a stay of a week or 10 days. The current slate of M.P.T.O.A. officers is expected to be reelected at the annual election to be held in conjunction with the directors' meeting. M.P.T.O.A. will not hold a general membership convention this year.

Kuykendall is scheduled to address the weekly Ampa luncheon meeting today. While here he will also study plans of General Motors for 12-hour daily commercial film shows, beginning at Miami, Feb. 17, and continuing over a 20,000-mile itinerary. If the free commercial shows are demonstrated to be unfair competition for established theatres, exhibitor leaders plan an organized protest.

Allied Union Case Dismissed by Court

Justice Peter P. Smith in Supreme Court at Brooklyn yesterday dismissed the application of Harry Glover, president of Allied Operators' Union, for an injunction restraining Estates Operating Co. from employing others than members of his union as projectionists in the Avon, Garfield and 16th Street, Brooklyn houses operated by Estates, which is a member of the I.T.O.A. Glover's action was based on an agreement between Allied and the I.T.O.A. by which members of the latter were to employ Allied operators at their theatres.

In dismissing the application Justice Smith held that the merits of the case had been covered by previous hearings on similar cases which had been dismissed by Justice James C. Cropsey in Brooklyn.

"U" European Staff Shifted by Manheim

Max Friedland, general manager for Universal in Europe, has resigned and has been succeeded by Sigwart Kusiel, manager of the company's office in Spain, Nate Manheim stated yesterday upon his arrival on the Majestic. No appointment for the Spanish post has been decided, he said.

He said Universal's production plans in Europe await arrival of Joe Pasternack, in charge of production on the continent, and Charles Kosterlitz, director. They are scheduled to sail from London today.

Following the arrival of Pasternack and Kosterlitz, Manheim will go to the coast to discuss European production plans with Carl Laemmle.

Criterion to Do 4 Yearly—Fairbanks

Criterion Film Prod. will produce four pictures a year for international distribution through U. A., Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., general manager of the English company, stated yesterday on his arrival from London. The star said that he will be starred in two.

Production will not be limited to England, Fairbanks said. The company also plans to make some of the films in Hollywood. Bringing with him "The Amateur Gentleman," first of the Criterion group, Fairbanks said the picture has been cut from 9,000 feet to around 8,000 for the American market. He added that English audiences like the pictures long. His second will be "Knights of the Round Table," which will be made in England.

While here Fairbanks will confer with U. A. executives, he said, and in about three weeks he will go to the coast and meet Samuel Goldwyn and Fairbanks, Sr. He expects to remain in the United States for several months. Capt. Cunningham Reed, chairman of the Criterion board, preceded Fairbanks' arrival by a few days.

Production cost of "Knights of the Round Table" is expected to approximate $1,000,000, or about $500,000 more than "The Amateur Gentleman," Fairbanks asserted. He said he prefers to make pictures in England. Comparing the attitude of English producers with American, Fairbanks declared "in Hollywood an actor can't express an idea."

Looking 'Em Over

"Modern Times"

(United Artists)

Charlie Chaplin—you will remember him, no doubt—last night returned to basic fundamentals in story construction, coupling with it an ironic poke or two at the System, as constituted today, and combined with that his great talent in his first screen appearance since "City Lights."

He also dug deeply into his memory, recalled his famous series of two-reelers and, by sometimes twisting the gags to fit the situations, incorporated in "Modern Times" highlights of such classic and historic films as "The Rink," "The Floorwalker" and perhaps others which a faltering memory failed to marshal at the midnight hour.

It failed to matter especially. In the years which have rolled by since his two-reeler days, a new generation has advanced well on its way. Those who may remember probably will recall reminiscent scenes with a pat, self-implanted in tribute to their own mental alertness.

The point about "Modern Times" is simple and this is it: It brings the outstanding film comedian of his time back to the screen after an absence of five years in the type of picture with which he has always been associated. And that means considerable. It is this reviewer's belief that the film will prove a formidable attraction.

Firstly, because it has Chaplin in virtually every scene and because the audiences curious to see him and with their money waiting must mount into the millions. Secondly, because of its content.

The story essence can be boiled down briefly. There is the same old, pathetic Chaplin, this time tightening bolts on a conveyor belt in a steel mill until he cracks under the exhausting strain. He goes to a hospital, is cured and released. Later, when he accidentally picks up a red flag dropped by a truck he finds himself the unsuspecting leader of a labor protest parade. Arrest follows; later a thwarted jail break in which Chaplin is the hero, then prison privileges. Subsequently there is his release and his touching plea to remain just a little longer because he's happy in jail. There ensue efforts to get work, his meeting with the street gamin, played without distinction by Paulette Goddard; their adventures, pathetic and funny, and their final futile attempt to get away from workaday hardship as they walk down a country road into the dawn.

The Chaplinesque antics at the conveyor belt are amusing. The department store sequence wherein he is a night watchman pulls at the heart and the funnybone alternately and that, we think, is a combination achieved only by an approach of genius. The emotional tug which courses through the hut episode where the comedian and Miss Goddard seem to reach out and for once tangibly touch happiness is another place where emotion conflicts with laughter in expert mixture. There is, thinking rapidly now of the high points, the cafe episode where it's all fun, poked at the ribs relentlessly and with fury, and the grand piece of business where Chaplin, carrying a duck to an irate customer, finds himself hopelessly and ludicrously entangled on the crowded dance floor. There is in this part of the picture also a memorable scene when Chaplin sings, or presumably does, a nonsensical ditty with words scrambled and only occasionally decipherable. Here his cleverness as a pantomimist probably reaches its peak.

Perhaps it was because it came well within the opening half hour. Perhaps not. But nowhere did the distinguished premiere audience react as it did to the cruelest jibe of all at big business. This was an automatic feeder for the workers, a patented idea designed to reduce the lunch hour and to increase efficiency. Chaplin becomes the test tube for the experiment. What happens between mechanically contrived soup and meat plates, a revolving ear of corn, a persistent chin wiper and the bewildered Chaplin make for a panic of yells and shouting glee. It is a gem of comedy invention played superbly.

Chaplin, of course, wrote, directed and produced "Modern Times," religiously following the technique of the silent picture, for a silent picture it essentially is. Alfred Newman's musical score, attuned to the action, is splendid. Charlie's old time standbys—Henry Bergman, Chester Conklin, Stanley Sandford, Hank Mann, Louis Natheux, Allen Garcia, Murdock McQuarrie, Wilfred Lucas and Ed Le Sainte—are in the support, but nowhere do they or could they rank alongside Chaplin.

Production Code Seal No. 1,596. Running time, 87 minutes. "G."

Enthusiasm As Chaplin Film Opens

Zukor, but Mrs. Consuelo Vanderbilt and Mrs. Vincent Astor got in without stirring a ripple.

Five years is a long time to wait for a Chaplin picture. The tradition that his work is art has grown in the meantime. The belief that he is funny also has built, so the art-lovers and the laugh-devotees were there, mixed in a mass that had the theatre attaches groggy.

One of them shouted: "Get inside or get outside!" He began pushing in the lobby with the enthusiasm of a football player. A woman screamed: "Let go of my arm!"

It was a big night.

About 9:05 the reserves arrived with a captain at their head. Lined up three deep, with their backs to the crowd, the police pushed north and south until they had an opening about 50 feet wide. It was simple after that. People could get in with their buttons and zippers intact.

Even the start of the newsreel of King George's funeral couldn't get the crowd into its seats, but "Mickey's Polo Team" did. That came close to being the Mount Everest of laughs in Walt Disney's career.

Premiere Has $5.50 Top

Years ago a quarter was a hefty price for a Chaplin picture. Last night top was $5.50, and if there had been another thousand seats they probably would have been filled. Today there will be 11 shows, starting at 9 A.M. and running until 3:30 A.M. This will go on indefinitely. Beginning this morning, the scales will start at 40 cents. They'll run up to 99 for the night shows.

George Skouras and John Wright, acting as a sort of unofficial committee of welcome, ran their enthusiasm high. They predicted, exclusive of the premiere performance, that the picture will do between $90,000 and $100,000 on its first full week which starts this morning.

During the run of the picture the Rivoli name will be missing from the front and rear of the theatre. Huge Charlie Chaplin signs have been erected. The front of the house is covered with cardboard machinery some of which moves. Monroe Greenthal set out to make New York Chaplin-conscious, and he did.

Many Notables Present

Among those who attended last night were: Mrs. Vincent Astor, Harry D. Buckley, Paul Block, Nathan Burkan, Burns and Allen, Eddie Cantor, William A. Curley, Edmond Coblentz, Colvin Brown, Harry M. Critics Speak at Review Board Meet

Ward Marsh, critic of the Cleveland Plain Dealer; Robert Giroux, of the Nation; Cecilia Ager, of Variety; Evelyn Gerstein, of the board's committee on exceptional photoplays; J. K. Paulding, chairman of that committee, and Wilton A. Barrett, executive secretary of the National Board.

Marsh expressed the opinion that films today are nearer to a real motion picture art than ever before, while Paulding pointed to the enormous influence exercised by the screen culturally and socially. Miss Gerstein stressed the fact that the National Board and the exceptional photoplay committee, opposed to censorship from their inception, are concerned with reviewing pictures and pointing out the value in good films, rather than in criticism of bad ones.

At the morning session yesterday, in the Warner projection room, the conference delegates met with the exceptional photoplay committee, with Paulding presiding, to view "The Life of Louis Pasteur." The film was voted as worthy of major mention by the committee after discussion.

The evening session, attended by the delegates, was held at the home office theatre of Twentieth Century-Fox. The Young Reviewers Club of the National Board met with representatives of the 4-Star Club, organization of junior members, the two groups discussing the Twentieth Century-Fox film, "Every Saturday Night," following a screening. The film has not yet been released.

Today's meeting will feature a round table discussion of "Community Activity in Helping to Develop the Motion Picture," with the smaller and larger communities to be considered separately. The resolutions committee will submit resolutions to the conference. The evening session will consist of a demonstration of a university course in the motion picture at New York University. The principal address, on "The Motion Picture's Challenge to Higher Educaiton," will be by Professor Robert A. Kissack, Jr., University of Minnesota director of visual education.

California Taxation Conference Adjourns

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 5.—The Governor's tax conference here adjourned yesterday for not more than 90 days after selecting a committee of three to name a larger committee of 25 to study the proposed transactions tax, the diversion of the gasoline tax fund to pay highway bonds and to decide on the issuance of state warrants. The estimated state deficit at the end of the current two-year period is put at $79,000,000.

The conference unanimously opposed repeal of the sales tax and all except the film industry representatives favored retention of the income tax. The resolutions committee, of which Bud Lollier of F.W.C. is a member, asked the immediate curtailment of state expenses and opposed any new taxes now. It also called upon the Governor to call a special session of the legislature to straighten the state relief question, which is said to be driving the state into the red at the rate of $2,000,000 monthly.

Koplar Warner Suit Gets Started Today

common stock to Renraw, Inc., Warner family corporation.

An accounting is also sought for profits alleged to have been made by the Warners in dealing with the corporation, and the court is asked to appoint a receiver and oust the Warners from control.

Koplar, who has been fighting the Warners on the St. Louis front for years, charges that the stock was issued to Renraw, Inc., in exchange for the services of the Warner brothers to the corporation, and that they were to be paid collectively $10,000 a week. The Warners in their answer have denied that they received that salary, but had "forgiven" the obligation in the interests of the company.

An amendment to Koplar's complaint will be filed tomorrow charging in effect that the corporation transferred to Goldman, Sachs & Co., of which Waddill Catchings, Warner director, is a partner, 50,000 shares of common stock worth $6,000,000 without adequate consideration. Goldman, Sachs, Koplar charges, transferred to McClure, Jones & Co. 15,000 of the 50,000 shares. Henry A. Rudkin, another Warner director, Koplar states, is a partner of McClure, Jones.

Koplar asks an accounting of the value of the stock and also that the individual defendants be held responsible for this value.

point waved a letter in which he claimed Equity asked for enactment.

Celler stressed the fact that had a similar measure been in force 20 years ago, there would today be no Garbo, no Arliss, and added that the fame of the American product rests upon its international character; that it is America's best salesman abroad, and that its essentially American success has been furthered by foreign players who have starred in such of our pictures as "Cavalcade," "Pursuit of Happiness," "What Price Glory" and many others. Such successes, he said, make necessary the continued employment of thousands, by producers, distributors, exhibitors, bill posters, printers, etc.

Bay State's Battle On Billboards Ends

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—An outdoor advertising war, that since its onset in 1925 has had far-reaching effects, has ended, at least on one battlefront, with the withdrawal of an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court. Three separate petitions were filed with that court last June, contending that certain advertising regulations in Massachusetts were invalid. The Massachusetts Supreme Court had previously upheld the acts.

The waiving of the appeal is expected to result in some 10,000 billboards in the Bay State being moved within the prescribed limit from highways and otherwise altered as to position and size to comply with state regulations passed in 1924. No reason was given for dropping the appeal.

Zeidman to Reduce His Schedule to Six absorb the type of product planned by Zeidman.

The decision to reduce the program from 16 to six was made recently at a coast conference attended by Zeidman, Schlaifer and William Fitelson, New York film attorney, who returned from Hollywood on Monday. Zeidman's plan was to budget his productions at from $75,000 to $100,000 each. The six features which he now plans to make will be of the same type, and shooting on the first, "Angels in White," will be begun in a week or 10 days, Fitelson said.

Schlaifer made a national tour of independent exchanges in preparing his report which disclosed that only the New England and Chicago territories could absorb the type of independent product planned at this time. Schlaifer this week assumed a new sales post with United Artists.

Academy Vote Hits New High In Semi-Final

Ballots Name 4 Actors And 6 Actresses

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6.—The Academy today reached the semi-final stage in the eighth annual merit award race for 1935. With the past few weeks marked by unprecedented voting, Academy members have placed four actors and six actresses on the final ballot, instead of the customary three in each group.

Twelve productions have been nominated as outstanding films. They are: "Alice Adams," Radio; "Broadway Melody of 1936," M-G-M; "Captain Blood," Warners; "David Copperfield," M-G-M; "The Informer," Radio; "Les Miserables," Twentieth Century; "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," Paramount; "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Warners; "Mutiny on the Bounty," M-G-M; "Naughty Marietta," M-G-M; "Ruggles of Red Gap," Paramount and "Top Hat," Radio.

Although the selection of more than three artists in the actor and actress groups was unusual, it complied with Section F, Rule 6 for the awards of merit competition, which reads: "If

Detroit Vote Shows Duals Are Favored

DETROIT, Feb. 6.—The final tally in the voting held in six Ben and Lou Cohen theatres here to determine whether patrons preferred double or single bills, resulted in an overwhelming decision in favor of two features. The vote from Jan. 18 to Jan. 31 was: For double bills, 26,866; for single bills, 6,455.

The approximate three to one ratio in favor of duals was maintained in four of the theatres, all of which are important situations in widely sepa-

New Producing Plan Dropped by Fitelson

The refusal of major studios to approve outside production activities by producers under contract to them has resulted in the shelving of a plan sponsored by British and American capital for the making of six to 12 features budgeted at from $200,000 to $250,000 each.

The plan contemplated the lining up of five or six producers under contract to a major company who would

S.R.O. Sign Hung Out for Chaplin By End of 1st Day

"Modern Times," first Chaplin picture in five years, went S.R.O. at the Rivoli last night after an opening morning and afternoon of substantial but not sellout business.

By about 9:30 the house was jammed, approximately 300 waitees were parked in the back of the orchestra and a line strung along the staircase from the lounge to the upper balcony. At the outer box office about 100 were in single file.

A boildown of what New York critics wrote about the Chaplin film appears on page 5.

Because of the intense interest among theatre operators throughout the country, the first day of the Chaplin film was news. Staff members of MOTION PICTURE DAILY clocked the theatre from the opening until 11.30 last night and reported:

Essaness Refuses to Play Warner Product

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Essaness has refused to play Warner product in any of its houses here, following the action of the Warner exchange in giving preference to Warners' Metropolitan over the Essaness-owned Michigan. Both houses are in the same week of release, but the Metropolitan was given one week's protection over the Metropolitan. Both theatres have a negro patronage.

Edward Silverman of Essaness declared, "We will not play any Warner pictures until we get a square deal. Other exchanges do not show preference in this situation and it is unfair that Warners should, despite the fact that the theatre is affiliated."

Film Men in Spain May Move to Madrid

BARCELONA, Feb. 5.—American distribution representatives here are discussing the advisability of moving their Spanish distribution headquarters to Madrid some time this summer. The location there of the Spanish censor's headquarters and American dubbing plants is regarded as making the move advisable.

Foreign distribution managers here said yesterday that the moving of Spanish distribution headquarters from Barcelona to Madrid had not been discussed in the home office.

No Film Levy Seen in New Tax Measure

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—No film taxes will be included in the tax bill to raise $500,000,000 in new revenue to carry out the farm program, suggestions for which will be submitted to Congress by President Roosevelt next week, it was disclosed here today by Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee, following a luncheon conference at the White House.

The new revenue bill will be kept as "light" as possible, and probably will be confined to the reimposition of the processing taxes invalidated under the recent Supreme Court AAA decision. Consideration has been given to making the taxes retroactive, but it was learned today that the Attorney General has held any retroactive

Sales Policy Change Urged By Kuykendall

Little Fellows' Plight Getting Bad, He Says

Pleading the plight of the small exhibitor, Ed Kuykendall, president of the M.P.T.O.A., yesterday urged a change in sales policies by distributors to make things easier for the little fellow. Kuykendall has just returned from a cross-country tour and expressed his views at the Ampa after contacting "hundreds of theatre owners."

"It is becoming increasingly hard for the small fellow to operate at a profit," Kuykendall stated, "because of selling policies. Distributors are making it harder every day," he declared, "and unless something is done to change the trend existing today I wonder where the independent exhibitor with one and two theatres will end."

The M.P.T.O.A. head held that from his survey "the most sound advice was given by fellows who say little at conventions." He also decried the "money moving to one end, the production side of the business." He said he couldn't account for this inasmuch as "theatres receive the brunt of attacks."

Kuykendall paid his respects to the Legion of Decency, asserting: "I was horrified at first when I read about

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

SECOND day thoughts on "Modern Times": There is, as, of course, expected, a tremendous interest in Charlie Chaplin's first feature in five years. The New York trade at large yesterday was inquiring of those present at Wednesday's distinguished premiere how it went. The schools of thought divided themselves into several camps. And that, too, was anticipated. For instance, much criticism was heaped on the attraction because it reminded so definitely of another day in production. Chaplin, ran the comment, had not kept abreast of Hollywood and "Modern Times" was the proof. . . .

We are curious about that. The picture itself heightens that curiosity. In the steel mill sequence, the general handling certainly proved in keeping with this day. Beyond that, it quite definitely reverted back to the earlier Chaplin formula and technique, so much so that, aside from the improved quality in photography, an intervening scissors, doing its work, easily might have snipped out sequence after sequence reminding strongly of other pictures the noted comedian had made. . . .

Our curiosity, however, goes beyond. We have been speculating since the opening whether Chaplin did not deliberately plan it. If, in the same film, an opening series of shots reflected modern production methods and the remainder did not, the assumption seems fair to draw, we think, that there can be no matching of the two parts because the producer designed that there should not be. After all, Chaplin demonstrated rather conclusively with "A Woman of Paris" that there was in him, as of that time at any rate, enough brilliance to fashion a film which ran considerably ahead of its contemporaries. Thinking in print, it is our impression, totally lacking of proof, that Chaplin's intention was to reappear on the celluloid scene in a story, a tempo and a treatment which were close copies of his earlier successes. . . .

The chief disadvantage about "Modern Times," it is this opinion, is that its story construction is so flimsy. The dramatic thread recedes almost into complete invisibility at times, leaving the excuse for each new gag often too trite for a maximum effectiveness. It was argued in one circle yesterday that a sound story would have interfered with the timing or the rapid pace of the gags themselves. We, for one, hold such theory to be fallacious. The combination has been tried before by other comedians and has worked. . . .

Other comment chided Chaplin for reviving many of his old comedy tricks, such as the "dope" episode, the skating business and the escalator. This, we take it, is merely the price which the outstanding exponent in his field must pay for doubling back on ground already trodden.

A Chaplin, by inference, is expected to evolve the constantly new and the forever more entertaining. Why? The laugh inventions of another era were his brainchilds and so his property to bring back at will. It is interesting and the finest kind of tribute to Chaplin's abilities that the recognition is widespread that he does them with artistry and consummate skill. . . .

While we adhere to our original point of view, which is that the automatic feeding machine gag is the most uproariously funny in "Modern Times," the brain invention behind the labor parade sequence is the most clever. This is the point where Chaplin picks up a red flag dropped by a speeding truck and hurries down the street with his funny walk in an effort to return it. As he turns a corner, totally without his knowledge there masses behind him a group of protesting strikers. The police pounce down, assume Chaplin to be the leader and hurry him to jail. It is a gorgeous conception. . . .

Many are the places where Chaplin, relegating direct comedy business into the background, makes scenes notable through his ability in pantomime. One of the most delightful occurs in the cafe where a cuff carrying the lyrics of his song flies to the wall and Charlie is compelled to bluff his way through with jumbled lyrics in his own Esperanto. His interwinding of jargon, funny little dance steps and story planting through gestures is a gem of its kind and Chaplin at his height, which is very high indeed. . . .

"Muss 'em Up" Gets $12,000 at Rialto

"Muss 'em Up" and a three-reeler, "Idol of Millions," at the Rialto garnered a profitable $12,000 for the first week and is being held over by Arthur Mayer. "Professional Soldier" at the Center also ended in the black with a $20,000 take.

"Next Time We Love" at the Music Hall tallied around $60,000, while the Roxy, with "King of the Damned," ended with about $26,500. A Major Bowes amateur unit will make its debut at the Roxy starting Feb. 21. The Palace was off on the five-day showing of "Captain Blood" and "Two in the Dark," grossing under $5,000. The first picture was a holdover from the previous week, while "Two in the Dark" was a new attraction.

The Rivoli wound up the last five days of "The Ghost Goes West" with approximately $13,000.

Mayer claims that the Rialto last Saturday put on 11 shows in the 600-seat house, playing to 5,800 patrons for the day, which is something of a record, he says.

School Films Not Theatre Competition

Developments in visual education at the University of Minnesota have given proof of "the national awareness that films should and can be used in the classroom, and without any suggestion of competition with the theatrical motion picture industry," declared Professor Robert A. Kissack, Jr., director of the visual education department at the university, in an address last night before delegates to the 12th annual conference of the National Board of Review.

The meeting was held at New York University in connection with a demonstration of a university course in motion pictures, and formed the third session of the second day's proceedings of the four-day conference. During the morning and afternoon round table discussions were held at the Hotel Pennsylvania on "Community Activity in Helping to Develop the Motion Picture." The morning session was devoted to the smaller community and the afternoon to the larger community.

Education, in the opinion of Prof. Kissack, is catching up with the tools of civilization, of which the screen is one of the most valuable, since it affects the manners, morals and attitudes of the nation. "The time has even arrived," he said, "when individuals in the film industry are realizing that the educational film field at last shows signs of becoming a money-maker." He expects "startling" developments within the next two years.

"Plan Is Needed"

The field at the moment is in the midst of a hectic controversy. The value of films in education is beyond question, said Kissack, but a plan of organized use is the problem now. Minnesota University's visual education department was pointed to by the speaker as indicating a method of solving the problem. Daily screenings are held to discover educationally valuable films, and a complete service activity is maintained for the entire university, including the maintenance of portable equipment. Special screenings are held at intervals. Because so few films are planned for instruction, his department has a schedule of 13 productions of all lengths and types, said Kissack, and the plans offers a practical model.

The morning session yesterday, conducted by Mrs. Marguerite E. Schwarzman of the executive committee of the National Board, discussed the development of film appreciation work in the schools. P. J. Wood, exhibitor leader, stressed the importance of the theatre manager becoming part of the community and giving it what it wants. The afternoon session was conducted by Mrs. James F. Looram, chairman of the motion picture bureau of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae. Herbert L. McNary, in charge of amusement licenses in Boston, said films are definitely better now than they have been for several years. Among the other speakers was Capt. George W. Cowan, Providence amusement inspector.

Today's session will be on "Cultural and Teaching Applications of the Motion Picture: Progress and Possibilities." Arthur Garfield Hays will speak on "The Problem of the Censors," in connection with a private showing in the evening at the New School for Social Research.

Langdon W. Post is expected to deliver one of the principal talks, on censorship, at the 21st annual luncheon on Saturday. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Tilly Losch are expected to be among the guests.

have been trying to establish the illegality of the games. F.W.C. Bankruptcy Arguments Heard HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6. — With intent only to determine if the court has jurisdiction, and to take up preliminary matters and set the case for trial if such jurisdiction is established, Federal Judge Alger Fee today heard arguments on the petition of T. L. Tally and Corbar Corp. to have the Fox-West Coast bankruptcy adjudication set aside.

Oscar Lawler, counsel for the respondents, opening the argument, stated that the facts of the petition do not entitle the petitioners to proceed since Tally and Corbar are not petitioning as creditors, and all creditors have been paid in full. He added that petitioners had full opportunity to protest during creditors' meetings. He denied all charges "specifically, positively and categorically."

Major Walter K. Tuller, following Lawler, stated that the petition makes no charge of intrinsic fraud, saying that for that reason the law could not reopen a closed bankruptcy.

The case will be continued tomorrow.

Sales Policy Change Urged By Kuykendall

their activities in the trade press." Talking for the industry in general, he said, "We became negligent in our responsibilities to the public. We brought it more or less on ourselves and I am proud of the fact the boys in Hollywood heeded the warnings.

"As a result, there are hundreds of pictures which are good entertainment," he said. "This drive by organizations and newspapers has made many people theatre-minded and has brought back people who had drifted away." He said the classics have been made into pictures with a definite entertainment value "and our obligation is to keep the people coming into the theatres."

Before launching into his lengthy talk Kuykendall subtly ridiculed advertising men, stating: "I don't know why the Ampa doesn't hold its convention at the same time with the cosmetic people. They make so much of so little."

Clarifying a wrong impression he said prevailed due to his being misquoted on his stand on classics, the M.P.T.O.A. president stated: "I never said producers shouldn't make fine pictures. I said classics should be made in reasonable proportion to modern pictures.

Calls For Cooperation

More cooperation between exhibitors and local civic and legislative organizations was propounded by Kuykendall, who declared "one of the greatest obligations of the exhibitor is to cultivate the friendship of organizations which are in a large majority. We need them badly, not so much for patronage as for aiding in combating things inimicable to the industry. We should always stand together and work with them. Their friendship will bring about more goodwill than any amount of money could foster." He added that about 17 states have committees working on legislative taxation moves.

"Outsiders don't understand our problems," Kuykendall asserted in deploring the Pettengill Bill and the St. Louis criminal and civil suits. "The Pettengill bill won't do what its sponsors claim it will and it will be a long time before we will live down the St. Louis litigation."

Continuing his fight against Ascap, Kuykendall declared "the copyright laws should be amended to give exhibitors equal rights." He hit the arbitrary levy by Ascap and hoped to see the time when theatre owners will have a voice in the license levy.

Duals were described as "the third big menace we have." He stated they tended to reduce quality and encourage quickies and held it would be healthier for the business if fewer and better pictures were the rule. Kuykendall also attacked non-theatricals, particularly the policy of some companies which sell schools and institutions when they have been closed out of a local theatre situation.

Culminating his stand for the independent, the M.P.T.O.A. head added that "if the small exhibitor is not protected we are destroying the industry. He is the very foundation of the business and means more in legislative fights than the big boys. The big fellows can well afford to stretch a point for the little man and keep him in business. We need each other," he said.

Estimating that there are from 25,000 to 30,000 theatres in the country which are attended by 120,000,000 people weekly, Kuykendall urged for the elimination of "disgruntled obstructionists, who want what some one else has." He added "they will tear us down and destroy us.

"I'm doing my level best fighting for things for the good of all of us," Kuykendall asserted. "I take no sides. I make up my mind on what I think is right and stand for it. Let's not destroy ourselves by petty jealousies and let's keep our fights within the industry."

Pete Woodhull, whose voice was affected by a cold, was master of ceremonies. Gordon White first introduced M. B. Horwitz, from Cleveland, who took a bow. Walter Reade also stood up for less than a minute. Arthur Mayer, who described himself as "a scavenger who looks around for stuff everyone discards" and "the guy that takes the body odor out of pictures and puts in box-office," told how the Rialto has now become a theatre for all sorts of action pictures.

Pete Wood of Columbus regarded trade papers as a great asset to the industry, but he was inclined to believe they were being censored. James P. Cunningham of the Motion Picture Herald objected to the allegation as far as Quigley Publications were concerned.

Max Stern described the early days of motion pictures.

O'Reilly Hits Giveaways

Charles L. O'Reilly, head of the T.O.C.C., lambasted the trend the industry has taken on giveaways and games. He said "had theatre organizations made as much progress as pictures the theatre today would not be semi-gambling houses and grocery stores.

"If the industry can't survive on what it is predicated upon, it can't survive at all," he stated. "The time has come when organizations must get together and bring back showmanship and eliminate gambling."

Discussing the two per cent sales tax on rentals, O'Reilly recommended that exchanges open offices in New Jersey to get around it. He declared the tax doesn't seem much, but will amount to $1,000,000 a year. "There is no place for a sales tax on a disappearing service (leasing of films), but a 10 to 20 per cent tax should be imposed on games," he said.

Election of Nathan Yamins as head of Allied was highly approved by the T.O.C.C. president, who worked closely with Yamins on the Code Authority. O'Reilly's appearance yesterday was the first since the demise of the code. He recommended a working harmony between Allied and the M.P.T.O.A. on things "which affect us all."

Walter Vincent, chairman of the Republic board and a prominent exhibitor, was brief and read several notations relating reactions of patrons who had visited theatres in his circuit. He appealed to Ampa to soft pedal blurbs and "tell the truth about pictures." Remarks, he said, from patrons in Allentown, Reading, Harrisburg and Altoona were ludicrous, but struck home the point of grossly exaggerated copy to describe certain films. He ended his short discourse by quoting a Chinese philosopher on words.

SRO Sign Up On 1st Day of Chaplin Film

morning admissions from 25 cents to 40 cents, the day got off to a moderate start at 9:30 o'clock. By 9:40 there was no sign of a crowd outside, although theatre attaches and a couple of policemen were standing near the box-office waiting for a rush.

At 11:30 there were no lobby holdouts, but cash customers were visiting the box-office in a steady stream.

At 1:10 there was considerable activity in the lobby, but the ticket booth could have been busier. There was no line waiting to get in. By this time the house was comfortably filled. The rear of the orchestra during the third show had about 50 standees. The balcony was practically full, but ushers were seating new arrivals up near the roof where a few vacant seats remained. A full staff of ushers was on hand.

Afternoon Attendance Fair

From 3 o'clock until a little after 4 o'clock the theatre had some empty seats. In the rear of the orchestra there were a number of vacant spots.

As the 6 o'clock price change to 99 cents neared there was no rush, although a second box-office was opened, evidently in anticipation of one. The rear of the balcony to the right and left of the center were practically deserted, but the front part and the loges were comfortably filled. The orchestra was well filled and ushers were seating new arrivals singly and in pairs. The out-jutting sections in the rear of the orchestra were empty.

Ordinarily the week day scale is 25 cents from 9:30 A.M. to 1 P.M.; 55 cents, 1 P.M. to 6 P.M.; 75 cents, 6 P.M. to 10:30 P.M., and 55 cents for the so-called midnight show. On Saturdays it is 25 cents to 1 P.M.; 65 cents, 1 P.M. to 6 P.M.; 99 cents, 6 P.M. to 10:30; 55 cents for the midnight show. The Sunday scale is: 55 cents, 12 to 1 P.M.; 99 cents, 1 P.M. to 11 P.M., and 75 cents for the midnight show.

Standees After 7:30

At 7.30 o'clock the orchestra was full and standees totaled to 25. The balcony was peopled to capacity and a steady stream was applying at the street box-office for admittance. Between 7.50 and 8.10 P. M. roughly 400 tickets at 99 cents each were sold across this box-office.

At 9.20 P. M. there was a break in the show. At that time the Rivoli was packed with 300 standees in the rear of the orchestra and a waiting throng gracing the stairs leading from the lounge to the upper balcony. Applause greeted the end of the picture at this performance.

At 11.10 a check showed that the orchestra was 90% full while the balcony had 50% of its capacity. At that time stragglers were still filtering past the box-office.

Rates are advanced all along the line for the run of the Chaplin picture. They follow: 40 cents, 9 A.M. to 1 P.M.; 75 cents, 1 P.M. to 6 P. M.; 99 cents, 6 P.M. to 11 P.M.; 75 cents, midnight show. Saturdays and holidays: 40 cents, 9:30 A.M. to 1 P.M.; 99 cents, 1 P.M. to 11 P.M.; 75 cents, midnight show. On Sundays the scale will be 55 cents, 12 M. to 1 P.M.; 99 cents, 1 P.M. to 11 P.M.; 75 cents, midnight show.

N. Y. Critics Give Chaplin Feature a Mixed Reception

New York newspaper critics view "Modern Times" with mixed comment, ranging from that of William Boehnel of the World-Telegram, who found it the funniest picture since "City Lights," to Eileen Creelman in The Sun, who sang its praises, but found it behind the times "in direction as in sound technique."

A consensus of their opinions follows:

Daily Mirror—. . . Should warm the hearts of the Chaplin enthusiasts who pine for 1916. It contains the skating rink scene, the shanty scene, the cruel Juvenile Society scene, the tramp wistfully taking the high-road fadeout—all these trusted and honorable situations from Keystone, Essanay, "The Gold Rush," "The Kid," "The Rink." They are skillfully worked into a typical Chaplin story about the browbeaten tramp and the irrepressible waif whose optimism shines through the darkness of benighted society.

Undoubtedly, everyone will want to see it. . . . As modern movie entertainment, it is just a pleasant gag comedy.

Its chief weakness seems to lie in Mr. Chaplin's determination to be "significant" and his having begun the film several years ago at a time when his message was more pertinent.

Daily News.—There is nothing new about "Modern Times" except the title. All the old gags are brought out and dusted off for use. But they are such good old standbys that they still earn laughs. Chaplin has stuck to his traditional way of making comedies by working strictly in pantomime himself and by having most of his cast follow suit.

Evening Journal.—It's curious, these days, to see the lips of actors move and to hear no sound, but the lack of talk is almost unnoticed whenever the picture resolves itself into the characteristic Chaplin slapstick and mimicry.

And "Modern Times" is, for the most part, fast-moving and frequently hilarious action. . . .

The best of the gags is one in which Chaplin, as the factory hand, is fed by a mechanical food server that goes out of commission with riotous results. His roller skating episode in the department store, the song that he chants in the cafe and numerous other bits are diverting slapstick and much funnier seen than detailed in cold type.

Herald-Tribune.—For the fun-lovers, it presents the great Chaplin in a piece of slapstick hilarity, which, if it is not quite a worthy successor to "City Lights," "The Pilgrim" and "Shoulder Arms," is still one of the great triumphs of hearty motion picture rowdiness. For the antiquarians, it offers a brilliant example of the greatest tradition in film history, that of the glorified tramp comic and the missile thrower, brought up to date, with the latest uses of sound and fury presented intact. For the philosopher, it provides, amid its frantic physical insanity, a sardonic contemplation of current events, done from a surprisingly direct, if intermittent, leftist viewpoint. . . . There are many scenes in "Modern Times" that are magnificently hilarious, but it must be confessed that there is no climax or episode that quite belongs in the first flight of the Chaplin tradition.

Post—"Modern Times" is worthy of its author, its principal actor, its director and its musical composer. Mr. Chaplin, rolled into one or unrolled into his component parts, becomes a picture that no other screen artist could paint. "Modern Times" bears his imprimatur, which is to say that it belongs in a category of its own.

If this observer left it last night with a qualified enthusiasm it was because he had been misled by the secrecy ballyhoo into his own (and secret) hope of a radical departure in style or form. "Modern Times" does not attempt any innovations in the motion picture technique. On the contrary it is a bold retreat to the early silent film days. . . .

The gorgeous spoofing, tbe annihilating inventiveness of the comedy, comes from Chaplin rather than from his material. The picture is a brilliant succession of gags and stunts, strung together on the priceless tradition of Chaplin bimself. His story is not so much a satiric thrust at the machine age as it is an employment of machinery as a field for comedy.

Sun—This, in spite of its title, is a silent film, somewhat old-fashioned in technic but boasting some grand slapstick. The comedy is regulation Chaplin, broad, sentimental and, at its best, very funny.

"Modern Times," of course, is not always at its best. The absence of dialogue, along with frequent, unnecessary and decidedly dull written titles, often makes the film seem something out of the Museum of Modern Art's Film Library. . . . is good Chaplin, filled with funny and well executed gags, told against a topical background of strikes and unemployment and whirring factories. But in direction as in sound technic it is behind the times. . . .

Mr. Chaplin, during his two or three years of work on "Modern Times," has collected plenty of good material for his new comedy. Even with all those subtitles and those dreary bits of sentimentality, this is very funny slapstick. Even funnier, I thought, was the accompanying Disney cartoon, "Mickey's Polo Team," with Donald Duck as its frantic hero.

Times—. . . Restores him to a following that has waited patiently, burning incense in his temple of comedy, during the long years since his last picture was produced. . . .

"Modern Times" has still the same old Charlie, the lovable little fellow whose hands and feet and prankish eyebrows can beat an irresistible tattoo upon an audience's funnybone or hold it still, taut beneath the spell of human tragedy. A flick of his cane, a quirk of a brow, an impish lift of his toe and the mood is off; a droop of his mouth, a sag of his shoulder, a quick blink of his eye and you are his again, a companion in suffering. Or do you have to be reminded that Chaplin is a master of pantomime? Time has not changed his genius.

World-Telegram—There may have been funnier comedies produced and shown during the time that Chaplin was making "Modern Times" out in California's famed climate, but if there were I haven't seen them. All I know is that last night I saw the funniest motion picture since this same Chaplin produced "City Lights" nearly half a decade ago.

Let others tell you that Chaplin is a great artist or a great genius. I prefer to think of him as the most ingratiating and brilliant clown that the screen or the stage has produced, who combines superb inventive humor with pathos in an extraordinarily effective manner. Let others tell you of what hidden momentous comments on the current social scene "Modern Times" possesses. I prefer to think of it as grand knockabout, satirical nonsense that needs no apology or label.

American—Good old days or "Modern Times," there's only one Chaplin, nor can familiarity with the pantomimic antics stale the infinite variety of his talent as an entertainer. From the opening shots of his latest contribution he kept last night's Rivoli audience in almost constant mirth. True, some of the material had a reminiscent ring. But there is a new public by now. And, anyway, Chaplin will bear repetition through many years to come. . . .

The star is busy in nearly every scene, the equipment, that derby, which is now the world's most famous; the cane, the shoes, the baggy trousers, all are the same. He still flips things over his shoulder to give them a backward fillip with his heel. He still turns corners in the same amusing way, and with variations, he continues to elude the ever-pursuing minions of the law.

make one or two pictures a year for the new company outside of their contract schedules. The producers would own 50 per cent of the new company. A sufficient number of producers to launch the project were found to be interested but were unable to obtain authorization from their companies to participate.

William Fitelson, New York film attorney, represented the financial backers of the plan.

Koplar's Suit Started with Fraud Charge

WILMINGTON, Feb. 6.—Harry Koplar's stockholder suit against Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., the three Warner brothers and others got under way today with charges of fraud, abuse of duties as directors and other sweeping statements by Ernest L. Wilkinson, Koplar's counsel.

Koplar seeks to have Harry M., Jack L., and Albert Warner, and other directors, return approximately $14,000,000 said by Koplar to have been the value of stock given in 1928 by the company in part to Renraw, Inc., family holding company of the Warners, and in part to Goldman, Sachs, brokerage house.

Plaintiff's counsel charged the stock was given away fraudulently, and that the Warners used the assets of the company for their own purposes. The defense counsel pictured the brothers as men of vision in the matter of talking films, as having loaned millions to the company, and as having staked their reputations and fortunes upon their product.

Joseph Proskauer, New York defense counsel, told of how Sam Warner worked on producing "The Jazz Singer," and died on the night the film opened. His three brothers carried on, the attorney said, and that picture revolutionized the industry.

The suit has been pending since 1932. Koplar is a minority stockholder. Wilkinson charged that in 1928 Renraw entered an agreement with Warners whereby the former would sell the services of the Warner brothers exclusively to the picture company for a total of $10,000 weekly for six years; that Renraw also received 90,000 shares of Warner common valued then at $11,000,000; that this stock was given by a company of which the Warners were directors and was not in consideration of any services, and that the issuance of the stock to Renraw was fraudulent and in violation of the state constitution. He also charged that the giving of a block of stock to Goldman, Sachs, valued at $9,000,000, for which 25,000 common shares were received in return, valued at $3,000,000, was an abuse of duties, since 25,000 shares was too high a remuneration.

Proskauer traced the development of the company, and told of Warners' loans during the depression period. He also gave details of the Stanley Co. of America acquisition and called the court's attention to the results of the recent St. Louis litigation.

Warners Hit Koplar Suit

WILMINGTON, Feb. 6.—In a statement issued here today in connection with Harry Koplar's suit against Warner Bros. Pictures and the Warner brothers the company's counsel charged that Koplar has "openly admitted that the purpose of this suit was to force the Messrs. Warner and the corporation to pay substantial sums of money or else suffer the heavy expense of litigation."

The text follows:

"This suit (Koplar vs. Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., et al) is brought by a minority stockholder, Harry Koplar, who instituted his action in June of 1932 seeking to hold the officers and directors of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., liable for 90,000 shares of stock in the company voted to Harry M. Warner, Albert Warner and Jack L. Warner in December, 1928, as part of a six-year employment agreement with the company. The plaintiff charges that the issuance of the 90,000 shares was not supported by a consideration and was therefore a bonus or gift.

"The management has answered, stating that the Messrs. Warner from 1926 to 1928 had made unsecured loans to the corporation and had personally guaranteed bank loans to the corporation in a total exceeding $13,000,000 and that the Messrs. Warner had contributed 50,000 shares of stock to the corporation in order to enable it to secure the underwriting of a $4,000,000 note issue.

"The management also has answered stating that it was through the far-sightedness and unfailing conviction of the Messrs. Warner that talking pictures became an accepted medium of entertainment and displaced the silent movies; that as a result of the industry and enterprise of the Messrs. Warner the corporation was enabled to emerge from a small company with recurrent losses to the largest motion picture company in the business, with assets totaling over $150,000,000; that for the years 1926 and 1930 the corporation made over $24,000,000 profit; and that under the able management of Messrs. Warner the corporation has survived the depression when its other largest competitors were compelled to go into bankruptcy and receivership.

"The plaintiff, Harry Koplar, has waged an unceasing warfare against the corporation and the Messrs. Warner since 1931. He instituted receivership actions in St. Louis and in the trial of those cases the courts found after a full examination of the facts that Koplar had brought the actions for the purpose of forcing a sale of his stock at an exorbitant price. The court found that his 'purpose in prosecuting this suit was an attempt to force Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., to purchase his stock at his price or suffer the consequent loss.'

"After this defeat Koplar organized a group to take over the theatres in St. Louis operated by the corporation, and he and his associates filed charges with the Federal Government which involved the corporation and its officers in further litigation, all of which has resulted in favor of the corporation and its officers.

"Koplar has openly admitted that the purpose of this suit was to force the Messrs. Warner and the corporation to pay him substantial sums of money or else suffer the heavy expense incident to litigation.

"The same matters alleged by Koplar in this litigation were presented to the stockholders at the annual meeting in 1932 and the stockholders voted in favor of the management and against the claims raised by Koplar in his complaint in this case.

"The officers of the company stated they would welcome the opportunity to air this entire situation in court so that there can for all times definitely be put to rest the wild and groundless claims of minority stockholders who seek to benefit personally by their ability to involve the company in litigation."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Preview Murder Mystery"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6.—There is much in this that is refreshingly new in the way of a murder mystery, plus many inside revelations of the art of picture making which should provide unique entertainment for audiences and give the exhibitor a wealth of angles on which to base intriguing exploitation. It is a story of murder for revenge—intelligently handled from beginning to end.

Film star Rod La Rocque, who has been warned that he will never live to see the picture he is making, is killed at the theatre preview. Publicity director Reginald Denny, assisted by Frances Drake, takes charge of the case, and the scene moves into the studio itself as the sinister activities of the murderer continue. A policeman and director Ian Keith are slain. Denny finally traps the murderer, Conway Tearle, a passé star, who killed La Rocque and Keith because of a belief that they had ruined his career. During the unfolding of this story the audience is taken into every nook and corner of the studio, to be shown in complete detail the mechanics of picture making.

The players mentioned contribute realistic performances, while the work of Gail Patrick, George Barbier and Thomas Jackson adds to the show's entertainment value. Robert Florey's direction accounted for an arresting brand of suspense. The screen play by Brian Marlow and Robert Yost is a smart adaptation of Garnet Weston's excitement-packed original. Sell the picture as one that will keep the patrons on the edge of their chairs and which will give them many inside glimpses of studio workings. From these angles it should click loudly.

Production Code Seal No. 1,899. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"The Rest Cure"

(Regal)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6.—Done in color, using Magnicolor, this unusual Regal feature stacks up as something that will engage attention. Not only is color intelligently applied, but the story has an action adventure quality which, dominated by comedy and amplified by romance and drama, packs an entertainment punch that easily creates and holds interest.

Ex-gangsters Reginald Denny and Vince Barnett, seeking a rest cure from bullets and pineapples in Paris, carry on a flirtation with Sisters Esther Ralston and Claudia Dell. They join the Foreign Legion because Miss Dell is to accompany her sister, Capt. Robert Frazer's wife, to a Moroccan outpost. There the pair, breaking every legion regulation, are in more hot water than in the most hectic gangster days. Following sequences in which both legionaires are excited about singing and dancing Eleanor Hunt, the two sisters arrive.

Sentenced to a disciplinary camp for infractions, comedy-tinged drama enters as Denny and Barnett, after precipitating a mutiny, break up an Arab attack. Their heroism wiping out the stigma of past offenses, both are promoted and Denny is further rewarded by winning Miss Dell.

Produced by George Hirliman from a story by J. D. Newsom with the screen play by Roger Whately, Crane Wilbur's direction concentrates on the comedy trend save in the dramatic death scene which sets off the mutiny. Selling both the novelty of color in an outdoor feature, the worth of the story and the quality of the performances by all players should be sufficient to arouse patron attention.

Cannot Bar Cripples From Houses, Ruling

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 4.—Crippled persons have the right to attend theatres in wheel chairs, the attorney general has ruled in an opinion to W. C. Theimer, state fire marshal. Theimer declared that a Bristow, Okla., exhibitor sought to have him take action on the ground a wheel chair might be a fire hazard by blocking exits. The attorney general decided he had no authority in the matter, and that it rested with the exhibitor to refuse to sell a ticket to anyone whom he wished to exclude.

City Asks for Dismissal of Sale Tax Stay

Exchanges Inform Court Of Their Appeal

The city yesterday asked for dismissal of a motion for a temporary injunction against the levying and collection of the city sales tax on film rentals at a hearing before Justice Callaghan in N. Y. Supreme Court. The court reserved decision.

Essaness-RKO Row Is Reported Ended

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—It is understood that the Essaness-RKO booking difficulty was straightened out today, but that no progress has been reached toward an agreement with Warners.

Essaness objects to one week clearance for Warner product playing the Warner Metropolitan.

Justice Department Declares New St. Louis Case Is in Work

BY CLARENCE LINZ

Washington, Feb. 7.—Far from abandoning the St. Louis case, the Department of Justice is definitely engaged in making preparations for a new suit, it was declared by officials today.

Denying rumors that the department was holding back and intended to undertake further consideration of the facts before proceeding, officials asserted that the matter is "all set" and that while the new suit may not be filed immediately, it will be delayed no longer than is necessary to line it up.

It was explained at the department that the Attorney General yesterday, in response to a question at his press conference, repeated his announcement of some days ago that the Government had secured dismissal of the suit without prejudice and planned to bring a new case with additional defendants so as to get into the record certain conversations which were barred by rulings of Judge Molyneaux. By no stretch of imagination, it was declared today, could this be construed as meaning that the department was quitting.

The department has all the facts necessary for the new suit, but requires a little time in which to arrange its campaign. Attorney General Cummings was consulted before the suit was withdrawn last month and gave his approval to the motion as an advisable strategic move to secure the introduction of testimony which the Government considers vitally important.

U.S. Firms Resume Selling in Mexico

American distributors in Mexico resumed selling activities in that country yesterday following upon the publication in the Mexican Official Gazette of the recent settlement decree entered into between the Government and the distributors. The publication of the decree automatically makes it a law, officially permitting the resumption of business.

The settlement involved a favorable adjustment of import duties on American films and income tax schedules of the companies operating in Mexico. A settlement of an employes' strike which closed the offices of eight distributors in Mexico City last Sept. 27 preceded the agreement with the government by about 10 days. Under the strike settlement the employes received a 25 per cent wage increase and 80 per cent of their pay for the time they were out.

Equity-Guild Merger Is Asked at Meeting

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—Demands for an amalgamation of the Actors' Guild with Equity were voiced here last night at a general meeting at which Frank Gillmore, Equity head, was one of the speakers. Morgan Wallace was chairman.

The meeting was marked by arguments for and against the move.

In explaining the agreement existing between Equity and the guild, Gillmore said that Equity's jurisdiction over screen actors had been aban-

Nat'l Board Hears Censorship Attack

"Censors have two purposes, to hold their jobs and to save people's souls. The former requires that they find occasion for the latter," declared Arthur Garfield Hays, attorney connected with the American Civil Liberties Union, in an address last night before the delegates to the 12th annual conference of the National Board of Review.

Hays' address, on "The Problem of the Censors," was delivered at the New School for Social Research, in the closing session of the third day of the four-day meeting. The two earlier sessions at the Hotel Pennsylvania were devoted to a discussion of "The Cultural and Teaching Applications of

Indies Plan Split From Conn. MPTO

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 7.—Independent members of the M.P.T.O. of Connecticut are expected to form their own exhibitor organization, separate from the affiliated theatre members, within the next few weeks, according to some independents. Consideration is being given to an affiliation with Allied by the independent group.

There is said to be a feeling of resentment against Edward G. Levy, general counsel of the M.P.T.O.A. and reelected secretary of the Connecticut group. It is claimed by the independents that he has attempted to bring the local unit into line with the larger organization.

LeBaron Head, Para. Studio; Unit Plan In

Lubitsch Has Own Unit To Produce 4 Yearly

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—William LeBaron today became head of all production at Paramount studios by appointment of John E. Otterson, company president. LeBaron succeeds Ernst Lubitsch who relinquished the title of studio managing director. Lubitsch, however, steps into a unit producing berth which provides for the heading of his own unit and for his production of four pictures annually, with the possibility that he will direct two of them himself.

LeBaron's post was announced here as a temporary arrangement during the establishment of several other units similar to the one headed by Lubitsch. Following the completion of the transition to the new system, LeBaron will be placed in charge of one of these units. Today's appointment, however, is effective immediately. The decision to establish the unit system is the result of several weeks of executive conferences at the studio during which time the changes which are now confirmed have been constantly reported as imminent.

Lubitsch leaves for London next week on a three-month hunt for talent and story material.

Paramount-Schine Dicker Is Delayed

Paramount's deal with the Schine circuit of upstate New York and Ohio has been delayed until next week when George Lynch and Louis Schine will return from Gloversville, N. Y.

One hour after Lynch arrived from Gloversville Wednesday he received a telephone call that his wife had to undergo an operation for a ruptured appendix. Both Lynch and Schine left for their upstate headquarters and are due back either Tuesday or Wednesday.

O. P. Heggie, Actor, Dies in California

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—O. P. Heggie, English stage and screen character actor, died here today of pneumonia at his hotel. He had been a resident of the United States for about 20 years, having come here following a successful career on the English and Australian stage. He was born in south Australia. Private funeral services will be held here Monday, and will be followed by cremation.

Among the American pictures in which Heggie appeared were: "Anne of Green Gables," "Peck's Bad Boy," "The Count of Monte Cristo" and the recently completed "Shark Island."

The ashes will be scattered from an aeroplane over Great Island near Hyannis, Mass., where he had a home. He is survived by his wife, Lillian Clara Heggie; two daughters, Barbara and Kean, and a son, Peter.

Second Variety Club Jubilee Is Planned

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7.—Plans were launched today for a second annual Showman's Variety Jubilee and Miss America contest to be held at Atlantic City Labor Day week. Ed Corcoran was named general maanger, with Lenore Slaughter as parade director.

The commitee will include Earl Sweigart, James Clark and one more to be selected from the Variety Club tent. Mayor White and three other Atlantic City men will also be members.

Allied Is "Company" Union, Court Rules

"Allied at all times was and still is a company union," Supreme Court Judge Frank F. Adel in Brooklyn yesterday held in denying Allied M. P. Operators an injunction against Terminal Associates and DeGrow Amusement Co., operating the Terminal, Atlantic and National in Brooklyn. Local 306 intervened through its attorney, Matthew Levy.

The three theatres have been employing Local 306 operators and some time ago joined the I.T.O.A. Allied, which has a 10-year master contract covering all members of the exhibitor organization, demanded that its projectionists replace Local 306.

Continuing in part, Judge Adel said: "Allied was organized by the I.T.O.A. and was sponsored by them.

"Allied never selected a committee to negotiate with the I.T.O.A. for the master contract," he said, adding, "prior to said contract there never was a 10-year contract in the industry and the usual terms of labor contracts prior thereto was for two-year periods. The contract, dated Aug, 21, 1933, is against public policy."

In denying the injunction the court also assessed Allied for costs.

Political Pictures Get Chicago Permit

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—After delaying his decision 24 hours Police Lieutenant Harry Costello has granted a permit for the showing of "Amateur Fire Brigade" and other political anti-New Deal pictures to start Feb. 10 at the Grand Opera House.

Costello, who is head of the censor board, asked a final decision from Police Commissioner Allman.

"As the pictures violate no law," Allman said, "we cannot refuse a permit."

Costello's explanation of the delay was: "I thought the pictures disrespectful. They hold the President up to ridicule. After all, he's our President and he shouldn't be held up to ridicule."

Shubert Sues Authors

A suit for $5,000 damages alleging conspiracy and fraud was filed in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday by Lee Shubert against Basil Dean and Dorothy Gladys Smith, the latter half owner of "Autumn Crocus."

The complaint sets forth that on Aug. 15, 1931, Schubert and Dean & Reed, Ltd., entered into a contract for exclusive producing rights and was to get one-quarter of the film rights. Shubert sets forth that in February, 1933, the defendant sold the film rights to Associated British Film Distributors, Ltd., for £3,000. He charges that this caused Dean & Reed, Ltd., to breach an agreement with him.

Extensions Granted In Broadcast Suits

Extensions of from 10 and 20 days to file answers to suits instituted against local and national broadcasting stations have been granted by Warner music companies, it was stated yesterday by Wattenberg & Wattenberg, attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Among the stations getting 20 days were NBC, CBS, WHN and WNEW. WMCA in New York and WIP, Philadelphia, have been allowed 10 days.

"At first the companies were very anxious to have the suits filed so that they could answer them, but now they are asking for delays," a representative of Wattenberg & Wattenberg said yesterday.

Two new actions were filed yesterday for alleged damages totaling $25,000. The first was Witmark & Sons against WNEW for $5,000 for broadcasting without permission "I Like Mountain Music." This is the third suit filed against this station, the total damages sought being $15,000.

The second complaint was lodged by Remick against Knickerbocker Broadcasting Co., Inc., WMCA, for $20,000 for using without Remick's consent "Chinatown, My Chinatown," "Crying for the Carolines," "Nagasaki" and "I Want to Bounce Around with You." Previously Warners filed three suits for $15,000 damages against this station.

Nathan Burkan is reported representing all defendants. His firm also is counsel for Ascap.

Precedents Cited In F. W. C. Hearing

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 7.—Walter K. Tuller, continuing arguments here today in the Fox-West Coast bankruptcy hearing before Judge James Alger Fee, cited many instances to prove that the courts have refused to reopen closed bankruptcies. Tuller claimed that the present case parallels that of the Lerner chain stores bankruptcy even to the inclusion of a dividend payment such as is now questioned. He stated that in claims for future rents the courts have maintained that landlords have no provable claim.

Judge Fee will study the records of the case over the week-end and will hear further Tuller arguments on Monday.

M-G-M Studying Appeal

M-G-M is considering applying for a writ of certiorari to appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court the recent decision of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here holding that "Letty Lynton" is an infringement of the play, "Dishonored Lady" by Edward Sheldon and Margaret Ayer Barnes. The Circuit Court yesterday denied M-G-M's petition for a rehearing. The U. S. District Court here had decided the picture was not an infringement but an appeal was taken to the higher court by Sheldon and Mrs. Barnes.

the Motion Picture: Progress and Possibilities." The morning and afternoon meetings were presided over by Professor Robert A. Kissack, Jr., of the University of Minnesota, and Dr. Frederick M. Thrasher of New York University, respectively. Dr. Claude Hardy, superintendent of White Plains schools; Dr. Walter S. Barnes, N. Y. U.; Dr. V. C. Arnspiger, of Erpi; John E. Abbott, of the Museum of Modern Art Film Library, and Dr. J. F. Montague, editor of the Health Digest, were among the speakers.

The conference yesterday afternoon adopted five resolutions: (1) endorsing the program of the National Board; (2) urging the further development of local film councils; (3) endorsing the program designed to give young people the opportunity to select and evaluate films; (4) urging all efforts to educate the public to the value of films as aids in education; (5) endorsing the National Board's refusal to accept censorship in any form, and opposing any extension of legal censorship "which might be applied to the selection or classification of films either for children or adults."

In his attack on censorship, Hays said, "The demand for censorship legislation and its discriminatory enforcement shows a desire to control morals and thoughts by law and to save people from themselves. The crusaders would set up a howl if anyone suggested that a law be passed compelling them to see something they disapprove. But they actually exercise this power on others."

Today's closing conference session will be featured by the twenty-first annual National Board luncheon at the Pennsylvania.

City Asks Dismissal Of Sales Tax Stay

late Division on the city's recent decision that rentals are subject to the tax. Raftery stated that the distributors felt that their procedure was the one most likely to be successful and feared that the injunction proceedings might prejudice their appeal. He asked the court to fix bond for exhibitors in the amount for which they might be liable under the tax in the event the injunction was granted. This was done because the city sales tax law provides that the tax must be passed on to the ultimate consumer and if the tax on film rentals is not invalidated exhibitors would be liable to distributors, under the city's interpretation of the law, for a two per cent tax on their film rentals from Dec. 28, 1934. The city's contention is that the exhibitor and not the public is the ultimate consumer.

The city based its plea for dismissal on the grounds that the tax law itself provides for a review by certiorari of the city's decisions on the applications of the sales tax, which makes an injunctive proceeding unnecessary if not improper.

The state supreme court yesterday granted United Artists' application for a writ of certiorari under which it will take its appeal from the city's tax decision to the Appellate Division.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Shadows of the Orient"

(Larry Darmour Prod.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—Providing the maximum amount of thrill action, embellished by romance, drama, melodrama and comedy, this is geared to appease the appetites of the excitement-adventure fans as well as those who like a little freshness in their entertainment fare.

It's a story of Chinese smuggling. It tells of the activities of a new kind of G-man, a young immigration inspector, an in-the-rut veteran who was just smart enough to be on the job at the right moment, a suave behind-the-scenes racketeer and a girl who had a penchant for getting herself in all kinds of romantic and dramatic trouble.

Moving rapidly, it spends no time beating around the bush, but plunging right into the plot, makes good use of rigid suspense to carry it through realistically and logically. The story centers on a drive to break up the smuggling ring. How the young inspector adapts new-fangled detective methods to amaze the veteran and put the finger on the villain are continual sources of interest. How he brings the full force of his magnetic romantic personality to work on the girl is equally so. How he gets her out of a serious jam in the finale is bold and intriguing.

Regis Toomey is the inspector, J. Farrell McDonald the old stager, Sidney Blackmer the heavy and Esther Ralston the girl. Eddie Featherstone, Matty Fain, Kit Guard and James Leong are an assortment of gangsters.

Production, which is ample in its suggestion for interest-creating showmanship is based on a story by L. E. Heifitz, with screen play by Charles Francis Royal and direction by Burt Lynwood concentrating on thrill action elements.

cause why the court should not make the order permanent.

Cagney charged that his Warner contract, signed in October, 1932, provided for his appearance in only four pictures a year. His complaint said that during the first year he appeared in only four, but during the following two years he was assigned to five pictures each year. He claimed that the number of roles assigned him resulted in overwork and was detrimental to his popularity.

No statement on the Cagney action was obtainable at the Warner home office yesterday.

Koplar Suit Hears Catchings, Koplar

WILMINGTON, Feb. 7.—Harry Koplar and Waddill Catchings, director of Warner Bros., were the only witnesses to be heard today in the Koplar-Warner trial. Time consumed by the plaintiff in presenting the case was surprisingly short, Koplar being the only witness. The rest of the time was taken by the introduction of the plaintiffs, exhibits, documents and records pertaining to the Koplar acquisition of stock through the Skouras deal. There were additional exhibits concerning the Goldman-Sachs deal.

Koplar, on the stand to establish himself as a stockholder, testified that he now owns 15,181 shares.

There was read into the testimony during the afternoon session, parts of the Warner Bros. "Biography" to show how Goldman-Sachs came to undertake the floating of securities for the company and to show the extent of the services rendered by the financial organization.

"Mickey's Polo Team"

(Disney-United Artists)

There can be no comparison of this cartoon series. Each is as good as the last and then becomes better. The whirlwind action and splendid animation of a burlesqued polo game here leaves audiences breathless and then revives them to applaud. The team is spotted with various film personalities in good-natured satire. Gable, Shirley Temple, W. C. Fields, Garbo, Oliver Hardy with Stan Laurel and many others are in the stands and on the field. The game is a fast, hilarious and spectacular picture of action, with Jack Holt as referee. The usual comic invention and clever sound effects bring the game to a close, with the mounts riding the riders. Production Code Seal No. 1,570. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

Warners May Move to End Music Taxes

Studying Plan to Have Producers Pay Costs

Warners favors the elimination of the music tax for all theatres and believe that the entire music royalties levied against films should be paid by the producers, it was learned yesterday from an authoritative source.

Warners are now studying the theatre music tax situation with a view to putting their policy into work, and, if they are successful in this, there is reason to believe that other major producers as a matter of policy might be obliged to follow suit. A successful development of the policy by Warners reasonably could mean that exhibitors within a short time would be relieved of the music tax.

While Herman Starr, vice-president of Warners and in charge of its music publishing subsidiaries, could not be reached yesterday for a statement on the information given to MOTION PICTURE DAILY, the current issue of Metronome, a professional

Censorship Hit by Post at Board Meet

A general attack on censorship and praise for the work done by the National Board of Review keynoted a talk by Langdon W. Post, tenement house commissioner of New York City, at the concluding four-day session of the 12th annual conference and 21st luncheon of the national board on Saturday.

Post told conventionites assembled that "the people who sit in judgment on these films are in my opinion incompetent and completely without ability to tell the people in this state what they shall and shall not see." He added that only the work of pre-

Moss to Seek Stoppage for All Giveaways

Notices have been sent out by the commissioner for all circuits to be represented at a meeting scheduled for 10:30 o'clock this morning at his office at 6 Reade St. Practically every circuit, large or small, will be represented, it was learned Saturday. John Manheimer, secretary of the I. T. O. A., also will be on hand as the official representative for members of the organization.

Commissioner Moss has made various efforts to have the numerous types of games eliminated from theatres, contending that they violate the lottery laws. Many suits have been instituted and where exhibitors have

Paramount Circuit Buy-Back Deal Set

A new agreement under which Paramount is given the right to exercise an option to purchase the 50 per cent stock interest in the A. H. Blank and Karl Hoblitzelle circuits from the operators has been concluded. The original buy-back privilege expired last Dec. 31 after having been extended several times.

Under the agreement Paramount is privileged to purchase from Blank his 50 per cent stock interest in the Iowa-Illinois circuit up to April 1, and from Hoblitzelle a 50 per cent interest in the Texas circuit up to April 4. The new buy-back arrangements were consented to recently by the operators following negotiations with Paramount.

Chicago Gains 19 Theatres; 20,060 Seats

Trans-Lux Has Plan to Cover All Key Spots

Arthur Mayer Will Have General Supervision

With a handful of theatres spotted in New York and Pennsylvania, Trans-Lux plans an expansion move which will provide for the establishment of a short subject unit in every key city, it is learned by MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

In line with the plan, Arthur Mayer will supervise management of all new theatres. Parcels are now being assembled in two eastern cities and deals are expected to be closed within a fortnight. Because of competitive bidding for properties in the same cities, no sites will be revealed until negotiations are completed.

Mayer's deal with Trans-Lux gives him a 25 per cent interest in all Trans-Lux houses with the exception of the Brooklyn show window which was turned down by Mayer and subsequently taken over by Henry Seigel. In return for the one-fourth interest, Trans-Lux has received a 25 per cent equity in the Rialto.

The two Trans-Lux theatres in Manhattan now are being operated by Mayer and it is expected that the Philadelphia unit will soon come under his management.

Carrying with the rumors is the additional understanding that the hear-

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

Chicago, Feb. 9.

THE western legal slant on the incorporation in exhibition contracts of clauses having an actual, regulatory effect on the theatre's minimum admission and playing policies differs widely from the eastern version, as exemplified by the recent U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision at Philadelphia holding the anti-double featuring clauses in contracts to be illegal. . . .

The still more recent decision of Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye in U. S. District court at Minneapolis in the case of Shubert Theatres Players Co. against major distributors, involving the 15-cent minimum admission clause as well as the duals clause, is in sharp contrast and was rendered by the Minneapolis court after attention had been given by it to the Philadelphia appeals court's ruling. Judge Nordbye held the distributor has an interest in theatre policy where his pictures are played and that the safeguarding of this interest by contract clauses which regulate policy may be valid; that, when those clauses are similar to clauses contained in the contracts of other distributors this, in itself, is not evidence of concerted action in violation of the anti-trust laws. . . .

Excerpts from this decision follow:

"The high cost of production of the modern motion picture film requires an arrangement between the distributor and exhibitor, whereby the former may be assured of a sufficient source of revenue to repay the costs of production with a profit. The distributors, therefore, have a direct interest in the admission price of a theatre where its pictures are exhibited. . . ."

"The court finds . . . that the policy of these defendants with respect to the establishment of a minimum admission price and the prohibition of double features in the theatres in this vicinity where their films may be licensed, is predicated on long years of experience in the moving picture field, and that such policy has for its purpose, and does tend to secure to the defendant distributors, a better remuneration for their copyrighted motion picture films, so licensed and to be licensed."

"That none of the defendant distributors individually produce or distribute a sufficient number of motion picture films to monopolize or control the available motion pictures for license among the various theatres in this vicinity, and the restrictions in the license contracts regarding the admission prices and double features do not tend to substantially lessen competition in contravention of the Sherman Act or the Clayton Act, and do not tend to create an illegal monopoly in interstate commerce, if it be a fact that such contracts are promulgated by their own individual experience and uninfluenced or supported by any arrangement, understanding or contract, express or implied, with any other distributor." . . .

The Shubert petition for a temporary injunction, therefore, was denied. Thus, indicating something or nothing about the judicial system of the nation, two diametrically opposite decisions emerge to further confuse the ultimate outcome on the vexatious problems of low admissions and double features. But there is something beyond law courts and citations and it leaves a mighty impress on the practicalities of the twin bill complexity. Major distributors rant against the system and apply all of the well-known arguments, not the least significant being the effect on the lowering of production standards. That's the one side. Many theatres owned, controlled or operated by distributors, nevertheless, play them. That is the other side and reduces their first contention to reductio ad absurdum with devastating, and little room for counter, argument. . . .

During the changeover from The Century to The Chief today, an interesting report was dumped in this traveler's lap. It stems to comment in this space recently about the increased tempo which is marking the expansion of major circuits and sheds an arresting light on ways and means. The report comes down Lake Michigan from Milwaukee and has to do with the growth in that area of Wisconsin Amusement Enterprises, one of the units in National Theatres which means Twentieth Century-Fox. There, Harold J. Fitzgerald is understood to be acquiring more houses, with still more to come, under a booking arrangement which keeps the original operators at the helm and charges a five per cent fee for the privilege of playing on and with National Theatres' buying power. Profits, if any, divide evenly both ways. . . .

It is said for Wisconsin independents that they are kicking up dust over the method and out of that something may come although perhaps nothing more than a good deal of yelling. As a cited instance of how it appears to be working out is the case in hand of the Sherman in Milwaukee, which is advertised as a Fox theatre. Home towners there, however, seem to be convinced it is actually operated by George Levine and Etta Weisner under an agreement with Fitzgerald. The booking combine angle itself revives several fond recollections. One: That distributors at large say they refuse to deal with them. This incidentally, is another example of fluctuating technique, as witness the trouble Aaron Saperstein long had right here in Chicago, whereas Ray Moon in overnight Detroit had little except with M-G-M. Two: The days, dim now, when the industry was rocked by the ambitious plans, engendered by the old Stanley Company of America, to organize a national booking circuit. You can't tell about these things. Either can we. That's why we're returning to window gazing. . . .

Board of Education Takes Chicago House

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—The Board of Education has taken possession of the McVickers Theatre building at 17-27 West Madison St. on an eviction order signed by Judge Stephen Adamowski. The court order was directed against the McVicker Theatre Co., headed by Aaron Jones, Sr., which held a 99-year lease on the property.

The order followed the theatre company's failure to pay rental to the school board for 1935. In addition a judgment for $66,878, the amount of unpaid rent for the year, was entered. Bids for leasing the theatre will be accepted shortly, the board stated. The house has been dark for some time.

Fox in 157 Chicago Spots for One Day

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—A new booking record was set here one day last week when Twentieth Century-Fox pictures were shown in 157 Chicago theatres. This is the largest number of bookings any one company has had in local history. Practically all "C" week and first and second week release houses played the company's pictures.

Advertising in the papers showed that 95 theatres out of 124 advertising, were playing product from the company. Most of the bookings were on "Old Kentucky," "The Littlest Rebel" and "Thanks A Million."

CLEVELAND, Feb. 9.—Stuart Cagney, manager of the Windamere, East Cleveland, has been arrested on a charge of running a lottery. A hearing has been set for Feb. 14 before Police Justice Myran J. Penty.

This arrest is independent of the activity of Police Prosecutor Perry A. Frey, who has been gathering evidence against Bank Night and other giveaways for a week.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Tango"
(Invincible)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9.—Good direction and a competent cast greatly help this twice-told tale.

Marian Nixon plays the poor, but honest, working girl who marries Matty Kemp, rich, but easily influenced younger brother of George Meeker, who also has an eye on Miss Nixon. Meeker, enraged at being rebuffed by Miss Nixon, conspires to have the marriage annulled and there are plenty of misunderstandings over stolen letters before all ends happily when Miss Nixon turns up to remarry Kemp with a surprise in the shape of a little stranger clutched in her arms.

This tale is well played and directed and such good actors as Warren Hymer, Herman Bing, Franklin Pangborn and Marie Prevost aid materially in the comedy roles. Chick Chandler as the loyal family friend, draws plenty of sympathy. So does Miss Nixon as the sincere bride. Meeker is smoothly caddish as the menace. Phil Rosen's direction keeps action progressing at a satisfactory speed. Arthur Horman wrote the screenplay from Vida Hurst's novel. Credit goes to Rosen for able direction and to Lon Young for producing such an adequate film on a limited budget for Maury Cohen.

Production Code Seal, No. 1,861. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

"Song and Dance Man"
(20th Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9.—This modernized version of George M. Cohan's stage success should please, although it lacks the fire of the original. Adapter Maude Fulton has made the title role, played by Paul Kelly, secondary, dividing the focus between Clair Trevor, Kelly's dancing partner, and Michael Whalen, wealthy playboy.

Whalen places Miss Trevor in a show he is backing after persuading Kelly it is best to split their dancing act. Left to drift, Miss Trevor is all but forced from the show by Ralf Harolde, stage director, who seeks her numbers for his sweetheart. At dress rehearsal Kelly returns, exposes Harolde and leaves Miss Trevor to Whalen after the opening.

Director Allan Dwan frequently interrupts the main trend of the story and inserts comedy, which is ably handled by James Burke and Ruth Donnelly as comedy lovers, and Helen Troy in an amusing switchboard operator routine. Three musical numbers written by Sidney Clare and Lou Pollack are tuneful, but the dances staged by Fanchon are not impressive. In general the production is good, however. The love scene and comedy offer the best exploitation angles.

Production Code Seal No. 1,824. Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Toonerville Trolley"
(Radio)

The characters of Fontaine Fox's comic strip are vividly brought to animated life in this color effort. The Skipper, the powerful Katrinka, and the trolley car all go to make an amusing few minutes with a new set of figures. The plot centers around the Skipper's attempt to get to the depot on time to meet the daily train. Aided by Katrinka, he bests a cow who goes after the car and with some toreador tactics outwits a bull also bent on mischief. It is a good cartoon offering. Production Code Seal, No. 0758. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Winter Sports"
(Radio)

Bill Corum takes the audience to the parts of Canada where the best of winter sports are in sway. Well photographed, there are seen champion skiing, curling, figure skating. It closes with a day in the life of a set of champion Siberian sled dogs. A short that fills a demand due to its timeliness. Production Code Seal, No. 0838. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Dr. Bluebird"
(Columbia)

One of the Color Rhapsody cartoons, this is an entertaining number, with the bluebirds rallying to cheer the small boy whose sprained foot makes fishing impossible. The characterizations of the Marx Brothers, Mae West, Laurel and Hardy and Charlie Chaplin in bluebird form are well done, and the subject should fill a spot on any program. Production Code Seal No. 1,419. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Bird Stuffer"
(Columbia)

Krazy Kat, taxidermist, is ordered by the bulldog to stuff a fish and make it look like a bird. His dog steals the fish and, chasing him, Kat is knocked out. His dream has all the stuffed animals coming to life and trying him before the owl judge for his treatment of them. When he comes to be puts to rout the fussy customer. The subject is of average quality with others of its type. Production Code Seal No. 1,898. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Winter at the Zoo"
(Van Beuren-RKO)

The Easy Aces pull gags about what the title implies as scenes of the New York Zoological Park are shown. There are some interesting shots of feeding time and winter pastimes of the animals winding up with Jane Ace, who has been sitting uncomfortably all through it discovering that she has been on a man's lap. Excellent photography accompanies the piece which should be found entertaining by most audiences. Production Code Seal, No. 0872. Running time, 12 mins. "G."

"Ice Cut-Ups"
(Columbia)

With the narrative delivered by Ford Bond, this World of Sport subject offers interesting shots of various forms of fun on the ice. Included are racing and stunt skating, trotting races in sleds and sulkies, ski racing behind horses, iceboat sailing and handsail skating. The feature of the subject is a recent professional hockey match at Madison Square Garden, when the boys became "annoyed" at each other and sticks and fists were flying with reckless abandon. A good subject. Production Code Seal No. 0,839. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Screen Snapshots No. 6"
(Columbia)

In this number of the Seeing Hollywood with Harriet Parsons group, the audience is given glimpses at home of Bette Davis, Hal Mohr and his wife, Evelyn Venable, Ken Maynard, Arthur Rankin and Gloria Shea. The reel features the opening of Max Factor's beauty salon, attended by dozens of stars. For audiences who like to see the players in off moments this subject should be satisfactory. Production Code Seal No. 1,913. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Radio Barred"
(Radio)

Johnny Arthur, Landers Stevens, Ruth Hiatt, Maxine Jennings and Ed Kane act out a typical comedy plot in this short. Revolving around the theme of too smart neighbors, the story has Arthur, promoted to sales manager at the office, replacing a fellow who entered a contest run by the firm. Arriving home he finds himself in a similar predicament due to his wife. There follows a free for all in which a prize, a gift and a dog all make for ordinary comedy fare. Production Code Seal, No. 1847. Running time, 15½ mins. "G."

"All Business"
(Radio)

This is a dull treatment of a comic theme that is tarnished from constant rewriting. It concerns the efforts of Ford Sterling to sell a line of diamonds to Kitty McHugh and the suspicions of his wife who thinks he is carrying on with another woman. He is also beset with facing his boss and annoyed by the attentions of the house detective. The usual quota of slapstick situations prevails and it ends up with a degree of understanding on all sides. Production Code Seal, No. 1,666. Running time, 18½ mins. "G."

Transfer of Trust Case Here Rumored

ings, when set, will be heard before three judges in the U. S. District Court. It is stated that when the Government brings an anti-trust action in equity three judges instead of one can be demanded for the proceedings.

When the equity case was tried in St. Louis, Federal Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux of Minneapolis was called in to decide the issues at stake. Just as Russell Hardy, chief Government attorney in the matter, was about to wind up his presentation with Harry C. Arthur, chief Government witness, a dismissal was sought and granted without prejudice to again file and name individuals as supplementary defendants. The hearings had been on for three weeks.

One of the reasons given for the possible change in states is said to be the fact that all of the individuals to be named as defendants are in New York. Many of the witnesses called to St. Louis were inconvenienced no end, having to report daily to the attorney general's office and then remain in the corridors because they were excluded from the courtroom. This, it is stated, would be done away with if the case is transferred.

Warners May Move To End Music Taxes

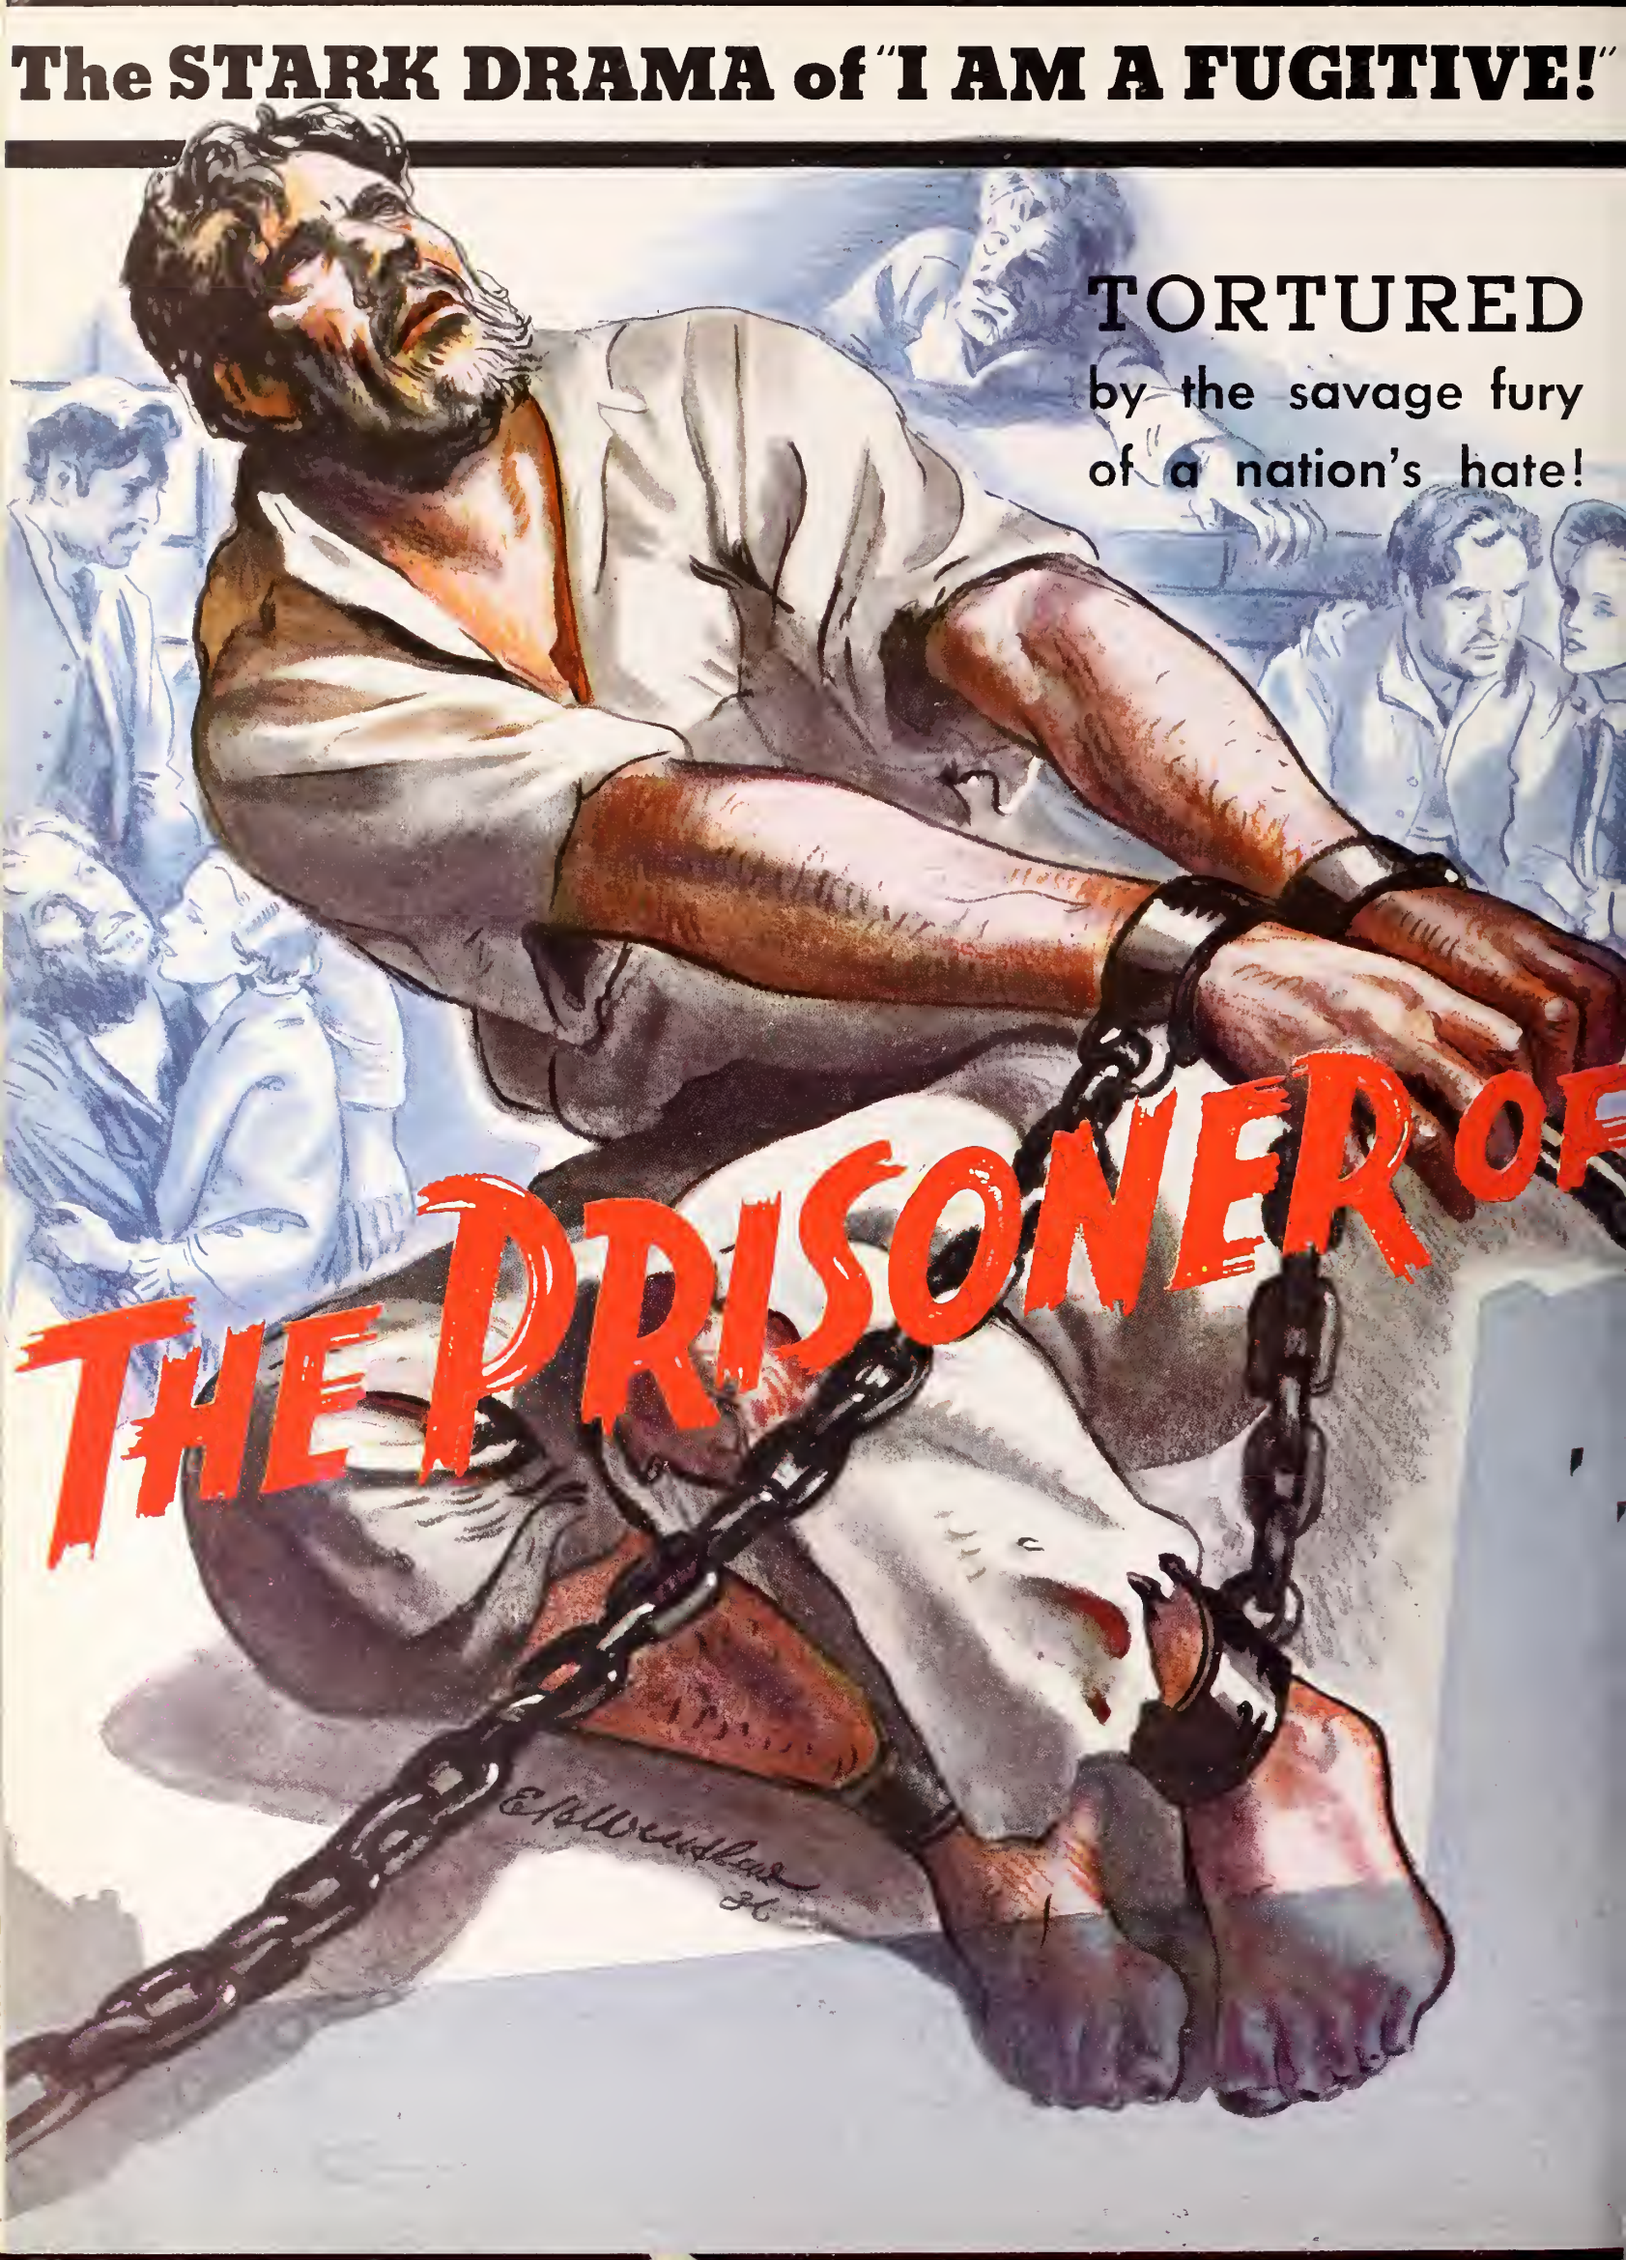
musicians' publication, carries an interview with Starr in which he is quoted along lines which substantially verify this information.

"The performing rights business is a new one with us," Starr is quoted as saying, "and we are studying a number of angles at the present time. We believe, for instance, that all performing rights fees should be paid at the source and for that reason are not interested in whether hotels have radios in their rooms or not. What's the difference if a man catches a radio program in his home or in a hotel room? We do not propose to tax hotels for the use of our music. Likewise," Starr is quoted as saying, "we see no point in imposing a double tax on pictures—at the source and in the theatres where they are showing—and are studying this situation with a view to simplifying the matter. While the ultimate amount paid for the use of music in pictures should not be any less, we believe the producer should pay the whole amount."



Greenwich Opening Set Despite Strike

Despite differences with Local 306 over an operators' agreement, Ben Knobel will open the new 600-seat Greenwich in Greenwich on Wednesday, as originally planned.

Construction on the theatre was halted last week when crafts affiliated with the A. F. of L., of which Local 306 is a member, walked out on the job. However, equipment dealers and others interested in completing the work, appealed to the A. F. of L. and after a few days men who had been employed on the theatre were called back.

A STATEMENT TO THE TRADE

Hollywood, Calif.

ANY six-page insert should have a serious purpose and carry a proportionately important message to our customers.

In my eighteen years in this business I have personally endorsed very few productions; but I feel that "The Prisoner of Shark Island," which I have just viewed at the studio, deserves everything that I shall say about it.

Not only is it Darryl Zanuck at his best, but the work of John Ford, the director, Warner Baxter and the entire cast is so outstanding as to label it definitely one of the three great pictures of the year.

"The Prisoner of Shark Island" is a true page from our own history. It could be properly labeled our own American "Les Miserables" and Dr. Samuel A. Mudd, its chief character, could well be called our own Jean Valjean.

The story is that of the tragic fate of Dr. Mudd, who lived through many hells because he dared to serve the highest ethics of his calling – only to be saved when, under circumstances that will wring your heart, he answered the call again to save hundreds of helpless, as well as his own worst enemies.

Only recently our government has taken action to pay proper honor to this hero – the victim of mob hysteria – a sacrifice thrown to an inflamed and prejudiced public.

The holders of 20th Century-Fox contracts should approach the handling of this subject in their theatres with the same responsibility as I feel for its proper handling the world over.

censorship should exist in this country, if at all.

Applauding the work of the board, Post continued: "It seems to me that the National Board of Review is based on a correct and proper principle and I commend it for its stand against silly and stupid censorship laws which exist in this country."

Messages were read by Wilton A. Barrett, executive secretary of the board, and President Roosevelt. The president said, in part: "I believe our motion pictures should be sane and salutary, enlightening and mentally stimulating. This can be accomplished without subjecting the industry to onerous restrictions." A message from Mayor LaGuardia also was read. He, likewise, praised the efforts of the organization. R. H. Cochrane, vice-president of Universal, highly lauded the group's activities in his message.

Harry M. Warner spoke in eloquent defense of the screen.

At the speakers' table were Edward G. Robinson, John Beal, William Bakewell, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Harriet Hilliard, W. G. Vam Schmus, Ernest Truex, Tilly Losch, Ed Kuykendall, Dr. A. A. Brill, Dr. John Rathbone Oliver, Mrs. Oliver Harriman and others.

'Hitch Hike Lady' Holds Entertainment

Alison Skipworth Heads Lengthy Cast in Strand Film

By CHESTER BAHN
Cinema Critic of the Syracuse Herald

"Hitch Hike Lady," found currently at Robert Pekin's R-K-O Schine Strand, is important for two reasons. First, because it is spritely entertainment, unfolding a story as rich in human interest as May Robson's cinematic success of a few years back, "Lady for a Day."

Secondly, because, for once, a cast of seasoned players recruited by an independent studio (Republic) has not figuratively bitten the hand feeding it, but instead has earnestly and unanimously proceeded to turn in performances of major studio caliber.

Miss Skipworth is corking, Miss Clarke, splendid, and the others, whether carrying a light or heavy histrionic load, exceedingly capable. Mr. Scotto has paced the story with ... and guided the action ... precisely the right touch. ... major studio who could have done a better job in this instance than Republic.

Business in New England On Up Trend

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—The film business in New England is heading up hill at an encouraging clip on the whole, according to a cross-section of industry members. Distributors, exhibitors, premium men and the equipment field join in the prediction.

"The year 1936 should prove memorable in the annals of our country," declared Gov. James M. Curley of Massachusetts, "marking as it will the end of the greatest depression ever visited upon the American people."

Theatre openings in the territory in 1935 showed an increase of at least four per cent over 1934, records indicate. The new product available this year is pointed out as important to the expected gains in business. Thomas Woodbury, city manager for the Ramsdell Brothers circuit, cited a need for fewer and better pictures, and predicted that this year "film fare is going to be more important than dishware."

On the other hand one exhibitor foresaw giveaways as being a mainstay of theatre business in 1936, while another showman, Al Somerbee, of Lothrop Theatres Corp., expressed the belief that vaudeville will have difficult sledding during the year.

Substantial gains in repair and replacement of equipment are anticipated. Martha W. Ferris and Joseph Brennan, executive secretaries of the Film Board of Trade and the M.P.T.O., respectively, were cheerful in their forecasts of business for the year. Brennan pointed out that in Gov. Curley's message to the legislature he proposed no new taxes on the film business.

1936 Outlook in Bridgeport Bright

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 9.—Local exhibitors are agreed that the box-office prospects for 1936 are bright and that indications point to the best year since the depression. Business has been on the gain since early last fall and is expected to hold a high level through the winter months.

Matt Saunders, manager of Poli's Palace, says, "Business is far ahead of last year and taking into consideration the large increase in factory payrolls here there should be a growing attendance at the theatres during the coming months." The neighborhood houses are feeling the pickup in business and a number are erecting new marquees and fronts and redecorating interiors with confidence that business will remain good.

The larger factories here are employing more hands and have returned to the policy of vacations with pay for employes starting next summer. Theatre men feel this is an indication that more film money will be spent.

Theatre business in Norwalk has proved a bit disappointing. Even such stars as Lily Pons have failed to increase receipts.

Stamford and Danbury report business gaining slowly, but exhibitors do not look for any spectacular increase during the year.

Washington Sees Big '36 Advance

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9. — The enthusiastic expectations of the leaders of the industry are reflected in this exchange territory by distributors and exhibitors alike. It is the consensus that the gains registered in the year just closed are as nothing compared with the tremendous strides forward which will be made in all film branches in 1936.

Many observers characterized the year just passed as one of the best since 1928, and the productions thus far this year as superior to those of any similar period. Production schedules of both major and independent producers are pointed to as further evidence of continued high quality.

During the past year exhibitors have spent freely improving theatres and building new ones, principally Warners' Penn and Sidney B. Lust's Milo, Rockville. The major construction program for 1936 is the $4,000,000 Warner project, calling for six new houses during the year.

During 1935, postal receipts, sales of electricity, telephone installations, originating telephone calls and earnings of utility corporations indicated a resumption of commercial activity and presaged still greater expansion of trade in 1936, an expansion which cannot but materially assist the theatres—and through them the exchanges—in forging ahead to bigger and better things.

Predict '35 Gains Will Hold in Iowa

DES MOINES, Feb. 9.—Reports of a 20 per cent increase in business of Tri-States Theatres Corp. for the last 14 weeks of 1935 and expectations that this percentage will be maintained during 1936 are typical of the reports by other theatres in this territory and of the business indices in the state.

Business prospects are excellent throughout Iowa, according to W. E. Banford, manager of the M-G-M exchange here. He based his opinion on the general business improvement and the quality of product.

General increases were noted in business indices. New theatres, six new suburban houses having been opened locally, played a part in the increased building permits issued. The value of building permits for 1935 was $2,083,765, compared with $1,145,284 in 1934. Bank deposits showed an increase, postal receipts gained, and increases in new car and truck sales were taken as indicative of the improved farm situation. Significant was the increase in farm income, $43,000,000 in 1935 over 1934.

Indicating that Iowans are spending more money, car registrations showed a distinct gain, as did the revenue from the gasoline tax. Members of the Allied Theatre Owners of Iowa, in general, reported favorable business gains.

"U" Gets Comic Strip

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9.—Universal has purchased screen rights to the King Features comic strip, "Secret Operator No. 9," and will make a screen serial from the series. The deal was set by the William Morris office.

Prospects Hit New High on the Coast

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9.—If signs mean anything in southern California, Los Angeles and particularly Hollywood stand on the threshold of an unprecedented prosperity. The area's basic industries are on a sounder basis than ever before. Optimism runs high. Leaders in the film industry have voiced their future plans and anticipations. Business, finance and commercial executives are confident.

All point to the millions spent on the recent Pasadena Tournament of Roses pageant, and the thousands that are daily going into the Santa Anita race track parimutuels as evidence of the territory's willingness to spend. Film Row is one long chorus of enthusiasm, a spirit tunefully reflected by theatre people, circuit managers and independent operators.

Yet there are a few flies in the ointment. Business generally is fearful of new taxes. Almost every important leader qualifies his statement with an "if" or "but." The implied question is: "In view of the Federal, state and local tax threat, if we make any money, can we keep it?"

Exhibitors are hoping for the best. Sure that their patronage has the money to spend, and is willing to spend it, if the right sort of screen merchandise is to be available, they know they can take care of themselves, given any sort of a break.

Optimism Stressed By Houston Houses

HOUSTON, Feb. 9.—The general attitude in this territory is one of optimism for 1936, with planned construction to add three to the present total of eight neighborhood houses, and four planned in outlying sections, indicating the feeling of confidence. Houston's leadership during 1935 among cities of Texas in building, as an inland port and its position as the focal point for the oil fields of the Gulf Coast region, are other indications of a pickup.

Postal receipts here were $2,240,460 in 1935, an increase of $168,074 over 1934. Theatre operators are optimistic but stress the importance of good product from Hollywood. The improvement in films in the past few months is viewed as a hopeful sign.

Will Horwitz, head of a downtown circuit of subsequent runs, and L. O. Daniel, Jr., manager of the Delman, were among the exhibitors who expressed optimism over the prospects for 1936. It is pointed out that general building plans for the city this year, already involving a total outlay of $15,000,000, should have a helpful effect on theatre business here.

Theatre Gain Seen For Albany Houses

ALBANY, Feb. 9. — Theatres here look for an upturn in business during the year, since increased activity of the state government is expected to bring nearly a thousand new employes, and their families, to the city.

Theatres during the past year have been somewhat affected by the city's over-seating problem, although it is said that giveaways of various sorts have been of value to exhibitors in stimulating business.

Vancouver Is In Sight of Better Times

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 9.—For perhaps the first time in six years Vancouver and British Columbia theatre men are optimistic about their prospects. British Columbia has been slow to feel recovery, just as it was slow to feel depression, but it appears certain now that the entertainment business is at least within sight of good times.

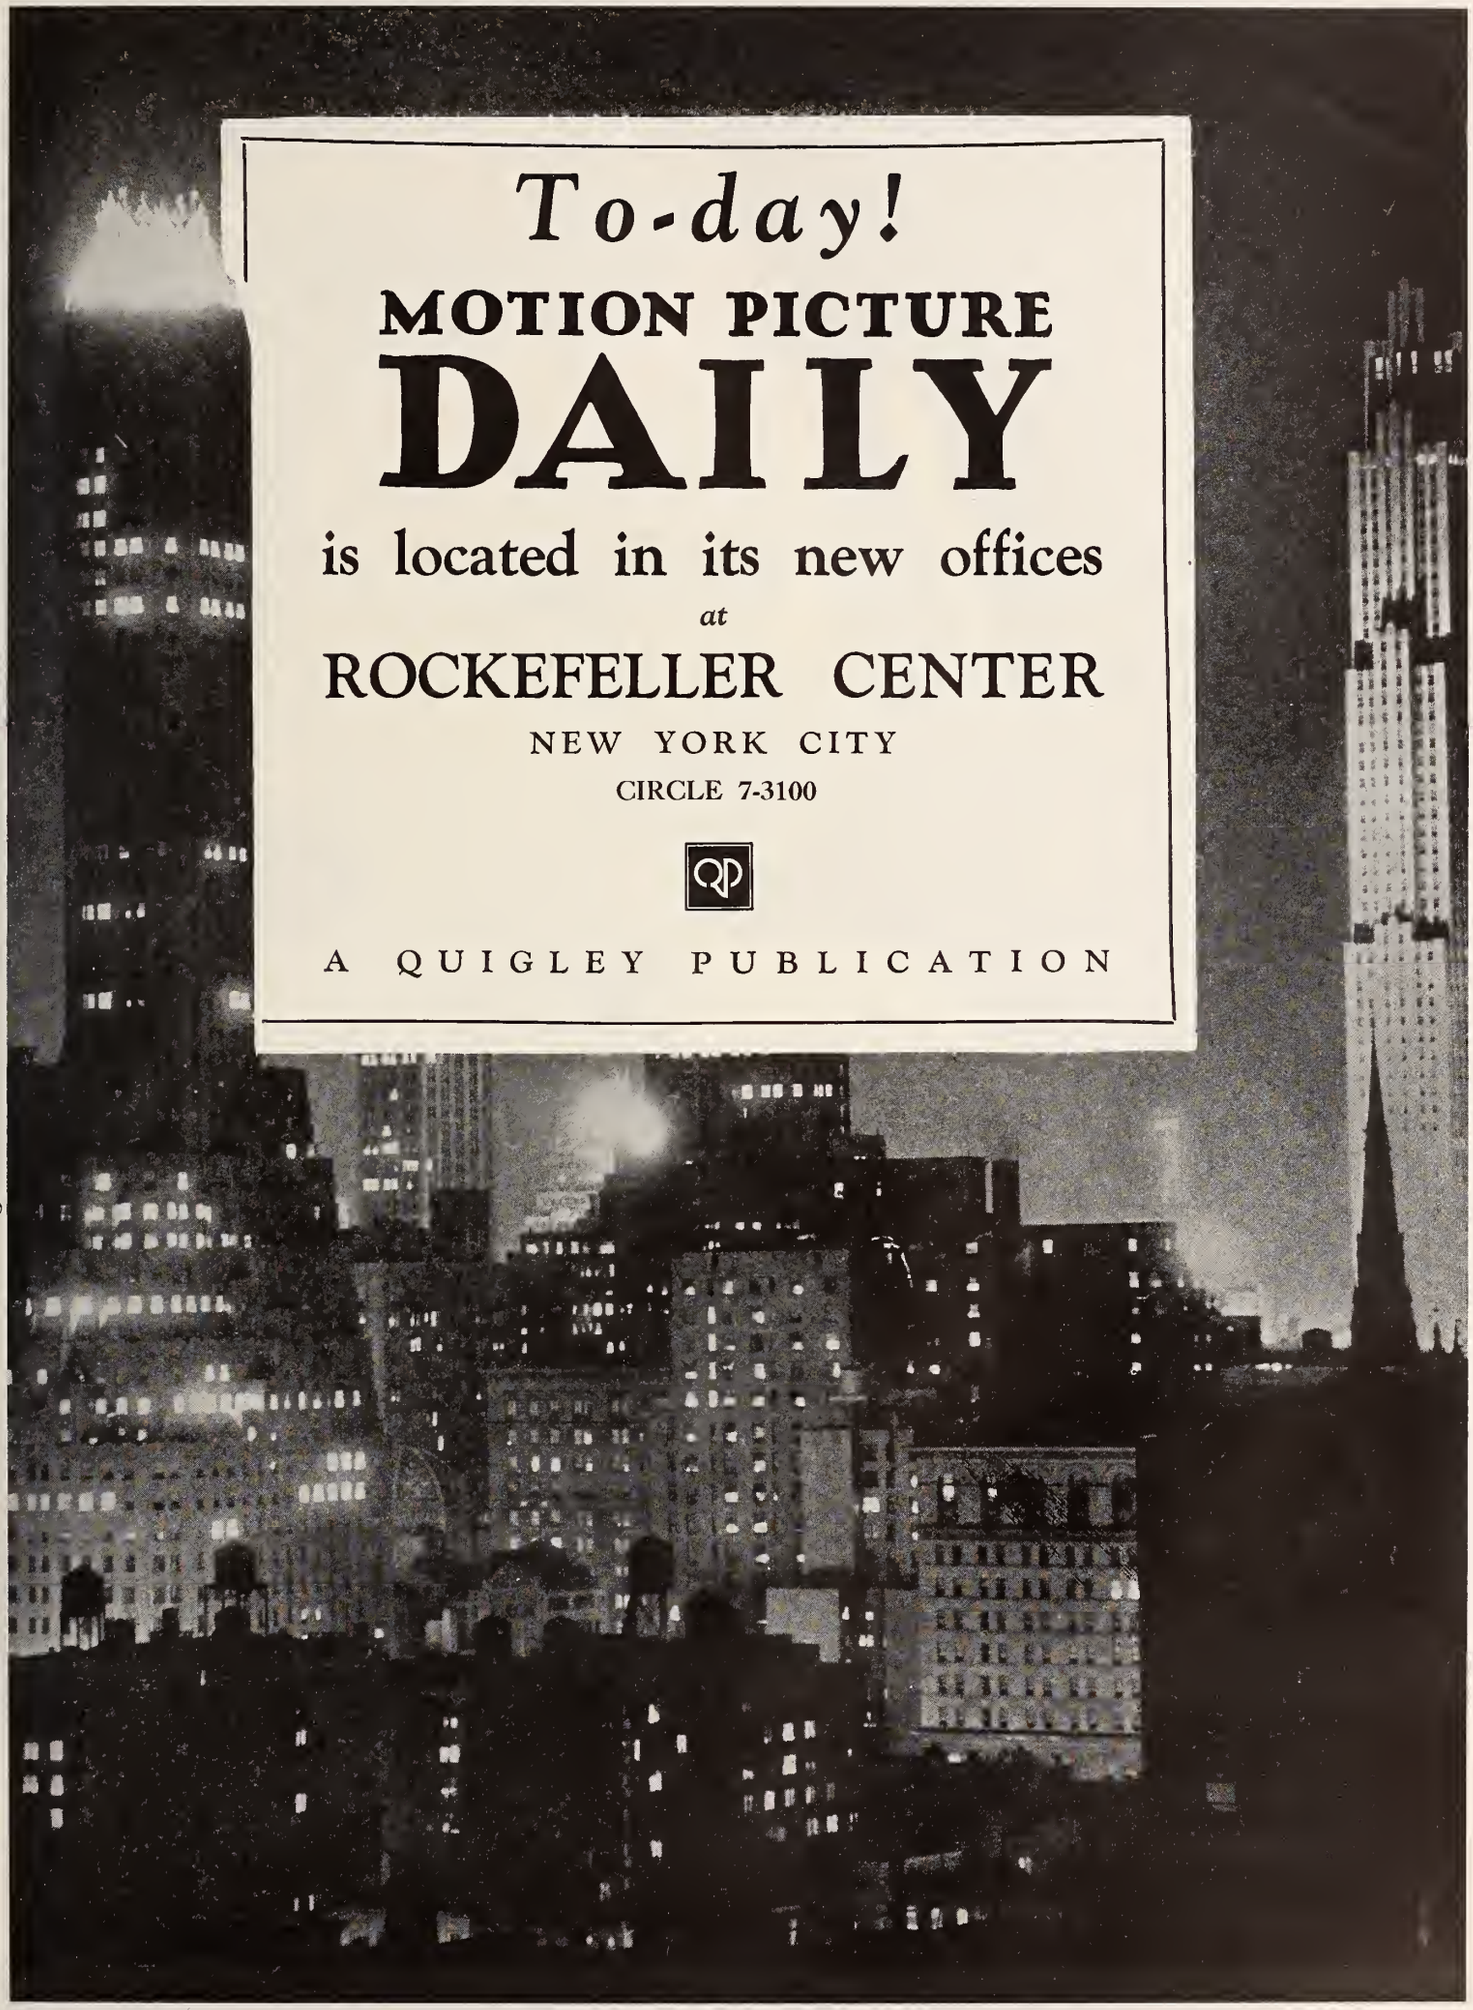
Concrete proof of this is shown in a review of theatre receipts for 1934. While Canada as a whole showed a 1.5 per cent increase over 1933, B. C. came through with a gain of 6.6 per cent, the largest of any province in the Dominion. Exact figures for 1935 are not yet available, but B. C. again will lead the field in gains over 1934.

Nearly all reliable trade and commerce indices explain this gain. B. C.'s major industries—lumbering, mining, agriculture and fishing—all made a striking improvement. Forest products show a gain of $5,000,000 over 1934, with employment in mills, camps, and agencies up by 2,500. Mining authorities estimate that 1936 will show at least a $6,000,000 gain. Agriculture is looking more healthy now than for years, and the biggest salmon run in years has put new blood into the fishing business.

In Vancouver, bank clearings showed a gain of $25,000,000 over 1934, and last year local building was the highest in three years. During 1935, five new independent suburban theatres were built here, and an additional seven were constructed in smaller towns in British Columbia, and at the present time only one house out of 36 is dark.

With a year as promising as 1935 under their belts, exhibitors and exchange men are optimistic about 1936.

A promised property tax reduction of two mills this year will make it easier to keep down the overhead.



The old lineup—sometimes a half-block in length—is coming back again, and that is the surest indication of all.

Encouraging Signs Increase in Tampa

TAMPA, Feb. 9. — Business locally and in the Tampa territory is showing definite signs of improvement. This winter the tourist activity increased grosses by a greater percentage than last year.

The cigar-making industry, this locality's leading business, showed a gain of 15,000,000 cigars in 1935 over 1934. The local chamber of commerce, in support of the general belief that conditions are better, points to an increase in postal receipts of 12 per cent in 1935 over 1934, a gain of 10 per cent in retail business, and corresponding increases in bank deposits, building permits, automobile sales and other activities.

Although actual figures are not available, it is generally agreed that theatre grosses are on the way up, despite severe competition in the form of slot machines, now legalized in the state, dog races and the like.

Circuit Court Rules Against Wiseman Plea

Directors Examination of Former Para. Officer

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed a decision by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe which held that Sir William Wiseman, partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and a former Paramount director, must submit to examination in connection with suits instituted by the Paramount bankruptcy trustees to recover from former officers and directors of the company for losses involved in certain official actions prior to the bankruptcy.

Wiseman had appealed from Judge Coxe's decision on the grounds that with the approval of the Paramount reorganization plan by the Federal court all litigation begun by the trustees was automatically ended. Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, counsel to the trustees, successfully contended tain official actions prior to the bankplan specifically retained for the trus-

New England Houses Gain 8% for Year

Territory Ranks Second In National Rating

BOSTON, Feb. 10.—Better than eight per cent more theatres are now operating in New England than were in lights one year ago, according to the local Film Board of Trade, of which Martha W. Ferris is secretary. Whereas 708 houses were open in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont and Rhode Island last year, a total of 768 were doing business at the close of the present year. This is an increase of 8.51 per cent.

The jump of 60 houses puts the northeastern territory in a strong position, inasmuch as it ranks a strong second nationally, both in the total number of theatres and in capacity. The theatres booked from Boston number only 40 less than those covered from New York.

A market trend was shown in independent control. New England ranked first nationally a year ago in the number and total capacity of independent theatres. Although it still tops the field in independent seatage, it now ranks second in the number of independent houses. Whereas unaffiliated circuits took on 30 additional

Loew's Gets Chaplin For the N. Y. Houses

Loew's will get "Modern Times" for its metropolitan New York theatres as well as for its out-of-town group, it was learned yesterday. A deal between the circuit and United Artists for the New York playing time has just been completed.

On Dec. 26 Joseph R. Vogel completed negotiations with Charles Chaplin over the long distance telephone whereby the picture would play in Loew theatres in 46 key cities exclusive of New York. The latest pact gives the circuit 100 per cent playing time.

British CEA Ends Move to Impose Fines

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Feb. 1.—Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n. has abandoned the suggestion for an amendment to its constitution to permit imposition of cash penalties against members who fail to comply with officially approved policies.

The proposal arose in connection with C.E.A. decisions that 40 per cent should be a maximum film rental. Exhibitors were to be asked to make cash deposits with the association which would be forfeited if they paid rentals above this rate.

Legal advice was that these penalties could not be constitutionally imposed. From a practical point of view, according to T. H. Hartley, a member of the general council, it would have meant members as a whole depositing $5,000,000 with the associations, with owners of big houses called upon to pay $2,500 per theatre.

To combat high rental demands, Hartley urges local agreements among exhibitors conducted "without ostentation."

Move by Moss To End Games Strikes Snag

Exhibitors Air General Industry Complaints

Efforts by License Commissioner Paul Moss to put an end to games in all New York theatres yesterday simmered to a free-for-all on admissions and clearance and zoning when 25 representatives of major and independent circuits convened at Moss' office.

Loew's, RKO, Springer & Cocalis, Cohen and Seigel and Consolidated Amusements agreed to drop the practice provided all theatres would unite in the move. Bernard Barr, representing the I. T. O. A., said all members of the organization would go for the plan only if certain changes in scales and protection were made.

Charles C. Moskowitz of Loew's and A. Burns of Century questioned the illegality of games as played in their circuits and also held that the problem was one which should be worked out by the industry itself.

Basing his opinion on recent decisions of the Appellate Division of the Brooklyn Supreme Court and the

Majors to Rush New Philadelphia Plea

Major distributors expect to file their application for a rehearing of the Perelman double feature case in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia late this week, it was learned yesterday. The distributors have until Saturday to make their application.

The Circuit Court of Philadelphia last month affirmed a decision of the U. S. District Court there holding the exhibition contract clause which prohibits the playing of a second feature with any other covered by the contract to be a violation of the anti-trust laws. Indications are that if the motion for a rehearing is denied distributors will take the case to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Leeds Resignation Immaterial—Tuller

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—Walter K. Tuller, testifying today in the Fox-West Coast bankruptcy hearing, maintained that the resignation of Arthur W. Leeds as officer and director of F.-W.C. prior to the original bankruptcy proceedings makes no difference in the present status of the case. The petition of T. L. Tally and the Corbar Corporation charges that Leeds resigned because the bankruptcy was scheduled to come before his father-in-law, Federal Judge William P. James. Tuller claimed that relationship is immaterial.

Tuller further attacked the conspiracy claim in the petition, quoting numerous court decisions to show that conspiracy is not subject to civil action although damages resulting therefrom may be. He denied the existence of intrinsic fraud.

William Neblett, counsel for the petitioners, is expected to testify at tomorrow's sessions.

Move by Moss To End Games Strikes Snag

Bronx Special Sessions, which have held in the cases of Winthrop, Brooklyn, and Tremont, Bronx, that the games were illegal, Commissioner Moss stated: "The giving away of prizes constitutes a lottery."

Declaring he had been advised by the corporation counsel that he would be justified in revoking licenses and closing theatres employing "lotteries," Moss asserted at first that he would set March 1 as the date for all theatres to eliminate games. Moskowitz asked that the order be deferred until cases pending in the Bronx Supreme Court affecting Loew's have been decided.

Ralph Vatner, representing the Yoost circuit, and Barr, held that if the games are ruled out independent exhibitors could not exist because of the competition from major circuits. They sought relief in a re-scaling of admissions and protection. Both Loew's and RKO declined to agree to such a move, contending they had bought and paid for protection and admissions are at their peak.

Moskowitz suggested that every man work out his own problem with his competitor, asserting this has been a long-standing practice of Loew's and that he has never refused to see any man who calls at his office in an effort to work out a strained situation. In some instances, he said, the meetings have been fruitful and in other cases nothing has come of them. He pointed to a recent agreement with RKO as the latest effort between the two circuits to increase admissions. "We have boosted our prices and are giving the plan a trial for several months to see how it works out," he asserted.

Loews Followed Others

Burns said Century was in favor of discontinuing games, but found in a year-to-year comparison that they had helped, improving business to pay for licenses, taxes and other assessments. He said there were 646 theatres locally producing a revenue of $154,000 for the license department.

"Loew's had for many years been limited to entertainment," Moscowitz said, "until we found ourselves confronted with other attractions. About 75 per cent of our competitors had something more than the show.

"We hesitated for several weeks before adopting games because of a legal question. Loew's doesn't want anything in its theatres that isn't 100 per cent according to law," he stated. "We did it to compete with the others," he declared, referring to the adoption of Screeno in most of the circuit's houses. He pointed out that if exhibitors go in for other stimulants, Loew's would follow suit.

Speaking for about 175 independents, Barr, discussing prior runs, said "the situation is an intolerable one." The organization's members are ready to stop games provided there are changes welcome to us. He recommended a revision of admissions from the first run down to the last.

In discussing the futility of several meetings with independents in an effort to boost prices, Moskowitz picked two situations in Brooklyn and said such moves were hopeless. He added: "We set our prices according to the prospective buying power of a neighborhood. The customer decides whether 25 or 40 cents is too much for him.

"We're not going to be driven out of the business," the Loew executive emphasized. "We're going to live and will compete with giveaways. Let's all stick to entertainment and stop giving away things."

Vatner interrupted the general trend of discussion to attack an unnamed exhibitor who lines up a number of theatres and books them for a fee. He said this was a "racket" and should be stopped.

As a gesture to help clean up the muddle, Moss offered his services, telling them his offices could be used for meetings which he hoped would bring about a solution. "I don't see why this business cannot regulate its unfair practices," the commissioner stated, referring to an instance where laundry owners worked out a plan with his cooperation.

"A New Problem," says Moskowitz

Moskowitz definitely refused to increase prices, saying they are at their top. "It is no new problem to us. We have it every day," he said. Turning to Vatner, who broached the subject of protection, Moskowitz said: "I run my business, you run yours. If you want me to sit down and talk about illegal acts, that's all right, but I will continue to buy first runs as I have done in the past."

RKO also declared it had raised its prices to the top and that another move at this time could not be considered.

The meeting broke up with Moss requesting those present to write him suggestions. The commissioner consented to defer action on games until the cases pending before various courts are determined. He indicated he would call another session shortly.

Also attending the meeting were Lou Goldberg, R. H. Emde and William Englander of RKO, Hyman Rachmil, Rudolph Sanders, Gilbert Josephson, Eugene Picker, Irving Renner, John Manheimer, Yoost and attorneys for a number of circuits.

New York Critics Bestow High Praise on "Pasteur"

Practically unanimous in their praise were New York newspaper critics in their evaluation of "The Story of Louis Pasteur."

A consensus of their opinions follows:

American—"The Story of Louis Pasteur" is a cinematic masterpiece. . . . Paul Muni, in the title role, has never given a more vivid, a more impressive, a more vital portrayal than he offers in his powerful, ever discerning characterization of Louis Pasteur.

Daily Mirror—Stirring, dramatic and exciting, this is the first film drama close to our times and vital to our problems. Handsomely produced, splendidly acted and deftly directed, it is a film to thrill and excite all the thoughtful.

Daily News—The intensely thrilling story of the enormously important discoveries of Louis Pasteur, the great French scientist who had either direct or indirect effect on the lives of all of us, has been made into a vital motion picture.

Evening Journal—Intensely impressive and stirring is "The Story of Louis Pasteur." A powerful narrative. . .. It takes its place as the most distinguished screen drama of the season. Emotionally as well as intellectually exciting, the picture is something new in screen writing.

Herald-Tribune—"The Story of Louis Pasteur," written and directed with honesty and tenderness, and stirringly played by Paul Muni, is not only an exciting and beautiful screen drama, but possesses a quality of heroism and nobility that actually makes you proud of the petty, hapless and bewildered human race.

Post—The picture moves with a dignity and forcefulness and conviction which should be heartily endorsed by the average movie fan, as well as those in the scientific know. For, besides being a stimulating account of a great man's activities and accomplishments, it is vastly engrossing movie material as just that . . . . There are countless stirring sequences.

Sun—It is as exciting in its own way as any tale of G-Men . . . and as a dramatic show as well as a noble tribute, is decidedly on the must list.

Telegraph—It is fine and occasionally really great photoplay. Its merits lie in both the material it has to present and the way in which it is presented. It is a matter of credit to the Warner studios and to the whole motion picture industry that it has been made at all and that it has come out so well.

Times—"The Story of Louis Pasteur" is an excellent biography, just as it is a notable photoplay, dignified in subject dramatic in treatment and brilliantly played. . . . The Warners have chosen a subject that should speak personally to every audience and should receive, in return, something more than the transient attention accorded the ordinary photoplay.

* * *

World-Telegram—Warner Brothers have screened impressively and excitingly Louis Pasteur's gallant and eventually successful struggle. . . . A thrilling chronicle film founded on fact, it commemorates a great man in simple, human, natural terms, without once becoming hysterical about its lofty theme and its epochal character.

Plan Cleveland Arrests

CLEVELAND, Feb. 10.—Bank Night arrests will be made this week, according to Police Prosecutor Perry A. Frey, who last week told 27 operators of the scheme that he would shut down on them on the ground of operating a lottery. There has been no cessation of Bank Night since then. Police are visiting all operators and reporting to the prosecutor. Frey says he wants reports from all local operators so as to determine whether, in his opinion, all of them are running according to Bank Night rules. After Bank Night, he will go after Movie Sweepstakes, Farm Night and other giveaways.

Bank Night Files Suit

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 10.—Bank Night has instituted copyright infringement suits in Federal court against the Whalley, Howard, White Way and Fishman Theatres in New Haven, the Strand, Wallingford, and the Colonial, Southington.

These are the first theatres in Connecticut featuring Cash Night, against which actual stenographic evidence is alleged to have been gathered. Many other exhibitors in the state, however, are running similar plans.

Boston Case Near Settlement

BOSTON, Feb. 10.—The case against Charles Wilson, manager of the Hamilton, Dorchester, who was found guilty on a lottery charge, may be settled out of court if present conferences are successful. The case was appealed to Superior Court following Wilson's conviction. The suit is regarded as a legality test for Bank Night throughout metropolitan Boston.

ernment in regard to Sunday opening. An appeal for the legalization of universal opening would, he says, meet with a friendly reception in official quarters at this time.

Earl Winterton, M.P. recently offered to initiate action in Parliament with a view to the abolition of the general principle of local control which at present operates under the British licensing laws. The local licensing authorities, he suggested, should be bound by official rules laying down the conditions under which licenses should be granted or refused. At present they have practical freedom of action.

In the case of Sunday opening, however, local option operates in a strict form, a public vote being the deciding factor. Opening, if granted, is subject to a percentage of receipts being paid to charity. Exhibitors as a class are even more anxious to be free of this levy than to see the principle of local decision amended.

Looking 'Em Over

"Follow the Fleet"

(Radio)

The Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers team goes to town again, this time in a yarn of gobs and girls, with emphasis on the comedy element, and, of course, built around the fast and high stepping of the cast's leaders. There is something to sell in addition in the song numbers, with music and lyrics by Irving Berlin. A lively, tuneful, fast-moving light comedy drama, there is plenty of romance in a double combination, and the dancing pair do all that may be expected of them.

The second romantic pair are Randolph Scott and Harriet Hilliard, the latter a newcomer to the screen from the radio, who gives considerable promise both in voice and appearance. Astaire gives further evidence of the fact that he is a first class comedian even without his educated feet, and Miss Rogers is expert playing opposite.

Astaire and Scott, sailor-mates, meet Astaire's old dancing partner of his vaudeville days, Miss Rogers, in a 10-cent dance hall, where she is an entertainer, when they are on shore leave. Be-speckled Miss Hilliard, Miss Rogers' sister, is attracted to Scott, but he is cold to her, until she does a little dress transformation. Astaire and Miss Rogers win a dance contest, and she loses her job when he says the wrong thing.

Miss Hilliard spends all her savings having a boat her father once owned refitted, dreaming of Scott taking command when they are married, and not realizing Scott didn't mean what he said. When the fleet returns, there is comedy and drama and stepping, with Astaire putting on a show to save Miss Rogers and her sister from the loss of their ship. Scott, who has been attracted to wealthy Astrid Allwyn, realizes he loves Miss Hilliard, the show is a success and with a producer looking on, the future is big for the Astaire-Rogers husband and wife team, and Scott is headed for the command of his wife's ship.

Pandro S. Berman produced and Mark Sandrich directed from the screen play by Dwight Taylor and Allan Scott, who adapted the play, "Shore Leave," by Hubert Osborne.

Production Code Seal No. 1,801. Running time, 110 minutes. "G."

Circuit Court Rules Against Wiseman Plea

tees their causes of action in the suits against the former officers and directors of the company.

The suits brought by the trustees, in both of which Wiseman is a defendant, endeavor to recover for Paramount large sums alleged to have been lost by the company as a result of the theatre acquisition deals of 1927 to 1932 under which Paramount was committed to redeem its stock, issued for the theatres, at guaranteed prices, and for losses alleged to have resulted from the participation of Paramount officials in the company's so-called employes' stock purchase plan.

The circuit court yesterday took under advisement a motion by Samuel Zirn, counsel for Paramount Publix bondholders, for a stay of a U. S. District Court order directing him to abandon litigation instituted by him in the state court in 1932 against a number of banks formerly identified with Paramount financing. The contention of the banks that the settlement of their bankruptcy claims agaist Paramount carried a provision releasing them from litigation was upheld by the lower court, which directed Zirn to withdraw his state court actions or be cited for contempt of court.

In his appeal yesterday Zirn asked for a stay of the lower court order until an appeal has been decided. The court asked for additional briefs.

No Theatres Dark In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—With no film theatres dark in the San Francisco bay region, the year has started under most favorable circumstances for exhibitors. Informed quarters estimate that receipts now are averaging at least 15 per cent better than a year ago. Last year at this time there were seven first runs here; today there are nine, and all are successful.

Approximately 20 new theatre ventures have started in the past few weeks, and theatre advertising is approaching the lineage figures of 1928-29. Government spending and the construction of two new bay bridges are held largely responsible for the improvement locally. The completion of the bridges in the fall will mark the beginning of preparations for the new world's fair. The bridges are expected to increase the population of the city from the present 700,000 to over 1,000,000 within a few years.

The unusual activity in theatre building, opening and remodelling is being matched by the growth of exchanges, especially among the independents. Many of them recently have enlarged their quarters.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 10.—Little damage was caused by the fire which swept one of the cutting rooms at the Western Laboratory over the week-end. Several studio rushes were destroyed, but the loss was unimportant.

In an elaborate ceremony, Tent No. 16 was inducted into the national Variety organization.

OMAHA, Feb. 10.—In an elaborate ceremony, Tent No. 16 was inducted into the national Variety organization at 2:30 A. M.

JOHN H. HARRIS, Pittsburgh, national chief barker, and JAMES G. BALMER, Pittsburgh, national dough-guy, conducted the ceremonies.

The induction was preceded by a banquet. HARRIS was caught without a tuxedo. The entire membership of 70 (with one or two exceptions) was in formal dress. The banquet was set on two long tables joined to form a V. A radio program carried part of the entertainment over the air. A full orchestra played throughout the dinner.

At the end of the banquet hall, letters carved out of ice spelled VARIETY. A fountain played in the center of the V-shaped tables.

The meal began at 1 A. M., Harris and Balmer, having been delayed enroute. Following the induction, a business meeting was held. The affair ended at 4:30 A. M.

Among honor guests were D. E. BRADSHAW, king of Ak-Sar-Ben and president of the Woodmen of the World, and HARRIS P. WOLFBERG, district M-G-M manager, Kansas City.

HARRIS, in his banquet address, repeated the story of the start of Variety Club, and told about CATHERINE VARIETY SHERIDAN'S adoption and her present status. He explained how Variety Club's charities have grown to include annual milk fund drives and the placing of children in homes for adoption. The address, as one member put it, was "short, sweet and swell!"

H. J. SHUMOW, local chief barker, made the responses and acted as toastmaster.
